LOUIS P. ALOE DIES OF HEART DISEASE; ILL FOR 10 MONTHS

PLAYED LARGE PART IN DRAFTING CHARTER

Widow and Four Daughters Survive Former Civic Leader — Death Follows Sudden Sinking Spell.

Louis P. Aloe, optical manufacturer, former president of the Board of Aldermen, a contender in 1925 for the Republican nomination for Mayor, died at 4:30 yesterday afternoon at his home, 6202 Rosebury avenue, of heart disease. Mr. Aloe, who was 61 years old, had been ill for 10 months. His death followed a sinking spell, which came unexpectedly.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edith R. Aloe, and four married daughters, Mrs. E. J. Marx Jr. and Mrs. Howard Baer of St. Louis; Mrs. Samuel Leopold of Chicago and Mrs. Julian Weissbein of San Francisco. There are two grandchildren, the children of Mrs. Marx.

A brother, David B. Aloe, is vice president of A. S. Aloe & Co., of which Louis P. Aloe was president. The business was founded by their father.

The day of the funeral will depend on the time of arrival of Mrs. Weissbein, formerly Miss Clara Aloe. A message received at the family home last night said she would leave San Francisco today by airplane, making the first stop at Salt Lake City. If she can reach here Tuesday, the funeral will be on that day; otherwise it probably will be held Wednesday.

Host to Marshal Joffre.

As President of the Board of Aldermen, Mr. Aloe was acting Mayor on several occasions, one of these being when, soon after the entrance of the United States into the war, Marshal Joffre was the guest of the city. His chief service of importance to the city, however, was in the legislative body, where in his six-year term he exercised actual leadership, and took an important part in shaping civic projects in the 1923 bond issue.

As a member of the Board of Freeholders which drafted the present City Charter, Mr. Aloe originated and perfected some of the most important of the charter provisions. He was credited with authorship of the provision for the 8-hour day for city employes, in the form in which it was placed in the charter. The shaping of the Departments of Public Welfare and Public Service, as now constituted, was in large part his work.

Legislation credited to his leadership in the Board of Aldermen included the bills for curb markets for farm products, acquisition by the city of a 6-mile railroad on the Levee, establishment of the psychiatric clinic and city control of infant health clinics. He directed an investigation of the milk supply, which was followed by pure milk legislation. He also directed an inquiry, made in 1921, into housing and rental conditions.

Helped Draft Bond Measure.

As chairman of the special Bond Issue Committee of the Board, he participated in drafting the bond issue ordinance, and worked with a citizens' committee for the approval of the bond issue by the voters. As acting Mayor he signed, in November, 1922, the ordinance for the bond issue election.

He was active in the work of the City Plan Commission, and defended zoning restrictions, as necessary for the ordered growth of the city and protection of residence districts, at a time when this principle still was in dispute.

On Mr. Aloe's retirement from office in the spring of 1923, a gathering of 1700 persons honored him at a dinner in Hotel Chase. Four years ago, when Mayor Kiel decided not to seek a fourth term, Mr. Aloe became a candidate, but was defeated in the primary by Victor J. Miller, now Mayor.

Carried on Father's Business.

Mr. Aloe was born in St. Louis and attended the public schools and Washington University. He entered business with his father, A. S. Aloe, who died in 1893. He remained for 35 years in active charge of the business, which expanded into one of the largest concerns in the country dealing in optical and surgical goods. These two departments were separated in recent years, the optical establishment having locations downtown and on Grand boulevard, and the

THIRD IN 'WITCH' KILLING FOUND GUILTY BY JURY

Wilbert G. Hess, 18, Convicted of Murder in Second Degree at York, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

YORK, Pa., Jan. 12.—A verdict of second degree murder was returned by a jury tonight in the case of Wilbert G. Hess, 18 years old, for his part in the killing of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, alleged "pow wow" doctor.

The other two who took part in the killing of Rehmeyer, John H. Blymyer, 32 years old, a "pow wow doctor," and John Curry, 14, were convicted in the same court earlier in the week of murder in the first degree. Both received life terms in the penitentiary.

Rehmeyer was killed when he resisted the efforts of the trio to obtain a lock of his hair to break a "spell" he was supposed to have laid in the Hess family. His body was then set on fire.

The jury was out two hours and 20 minutes in the Hess case. Murder in the second degree is punishable by imprisonment of 10 to 20 years.

EGYPT TO REJECT FORD'S PLAN

Said to Be Averse to Giving Up Tariff in Exchange for Road.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Jan. 12.—The Egyptian Government was understood today not to be prepared to consider Henry Ford's proposal that he build a road in exchange for free entry of his cars into Egypt.

An 8 per cent ad valorem duty is paid now on Ford cars imported into Egypt. The newspaper Siassa recently said that Ford had proposed that he construct, at his own expense, about 155 miles of roadway anywhere in Egypt and undertake its upkeep, if the Government would allow his automobiles to enter the country free of duty.

NEW GOVERNOR TO BE INAUGURATED TOMORROW NOON

Caulfield Will Take Oath in Rotunda of Capitol—10,000 Visitors Expected in Jefferson City.

PUBLIC RECEPTION AND BALL AT NIGHT

Executive-Elect Is Likely to Keep Off Organization's Toes but He Puzzles Job-Hunters.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12.—Governor-elect Henry S. Caulfield and Mrs. Caulfield arrived in Jefferson City late this afternoon, to be the guests of Gov. and Mrs. Baker at the Executive Mansion until noon Monday, when Caulfield will be inaugurated as Governor in the rotunda of the State Capitol. After the ceremony they will be escorted back to the mansion, where a private luncheon will be given by Mrs. Baker to the new mistress of the State Executive's official residence.

Hotels in the capital had begun to fill tonight with inauguration visitors, a few of the members of the military staff chosen by the Governor-elect being on hand early. All hotel accommodations have been reserved for several weeks, and a local committee has been active in arranging for housing visitors in private homes. At least 10,000 visitors are expected for the inauguration.

The two houses of the Legislature will meet at 11 o'clock in the morning, and at 11:45 will march in separate bodies to the rotunda, where they will reconvene as a joint assembly with Lieutenant-Governor Bennett, president, and Speaker Parker seated beside him. Caulfield will stand at the top of the winding marble stairway leading from the rotunda to the entrance of the Governor's suite.

Program for Inauguration.

The oath will be administered by Chief Justice John Turner White of the Supreme Court, and Caulfield immediately afterward will deliver his inaugural address, which will be his first message to the Legislature. It will contain his recommendations for legislation which he considers of first importance.

Preceding the administering of the oath, an invocation will be delivered by the Rev. A. B. Jackson, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Jefferson City. As the ceremony is completed the Governor's salute of 17 guns will be fired by Battery B 128th Field Artillery, stationed on the capitol lawn.

Gov. Baker will introduce his successor. The benediction will be pronounced by the Right Rev. Joseph Selinger, Monsignor, dean and pastor of St. Peter's Parish, Jefferson City.

The gubernatorial party with Gov. and Mrs. Baker, will be escorted to the executive mansion, by the Governor's military staff and the 128th Field Artillery band.

Lieutenant-Govenor-elect E. H. Winter of Jefferson City, will be inaugurated in the Senate Chamber at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon with Supreme Justice William F. Frank administering the oath.

Public Reception and Ball.

There will be a public reception by Caulfield in the executive suite at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, after which there will be a public ball in the rotunda of the capitol.

Caulfield is the thirty-seventh governor of Missouri, and the first Republican governor from St. Louis since the civil war. He enters office with better equipment for a sane and progressive administration than any other governor of recent years. He has had wide experience in public affairs and will not be hampered by numerous pre-election promises. He has stated that he has not pledged himself in advance on any matters of patronage or official action, so that he will have a free hand in the selection of his subordinate heads of departments. His knowledge of affairs of government has been gained in service as excise commissioner of St. Louis, as Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, as Congressman, as City Counselor of St. Louis, and by close study he has given since his election to the needs of the State.

Caulfield Puzzles Job Hunters.

The job hunters who for weeks have been pressing their claims and who are thronging to Jefferson City have found him puzzling and uncommunicative. Applicants who have gone to him with long lists of indorsements have learned that indorsements mean little to him at this stage of affairs.

There is no doubt that Caulfield

TO FIX PLACE OF INDIVIDUAL IN HUMAN AFFAIRS

Intellectual Survey Announced by American Philosophical Society Head.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—An intellectual survey to define the individual's place in the scheme of human affairs, by a committee of 42 nationally known intellectual leaders, was announced today by Dr. Francis X. Dercum, president of the American Philosophical Society.

The survey, which it is hoped will be helpful in "formulating a future program of service to all branches of learning," aims to "make more clear the relation between man and his environment, and the place of the individual in the scheme of human organization."

Among the questions which the committee hopes to clarify were:

What today is the world's intellectual situation?

Is there a drifting apart of the purely scientific interests and the humanistic interests?

Is there a loss of perspective and of grasp of great principles by reason of specialization in education and in thought?

How can these interests and these branches of individualistic learning be co-ordinated into one program with one common purpose—the promotion of useful knowledge?

RUMOR MONGERS ON ROME STOCK EXCHANGE GO TO JAIL

Four Arrested; One Accused of Saying Government Bonds Were Due to Slump.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 12.—Four arrests for alleged attacks upon the public credit and six so-called temporary arrests were made at today's session of the Bourse.

One of those held for trial was alleged to have said that Government bonds were due for a slump, another was accused of spreading an alarmist report that Secretary Turati of the Fascist party was about to lose his post because he no longer enjoyed Premier Mussolini's confidence, a third was alleged to have called an official agency's reassuring communique "mere palliative," while a fourth was said to have declared that the rise in Government issues was ephemeral.

The six men held for examination were released later provisionally, but the remaining four await court action.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Jan. 12 (via Whaler Hektoria and KUP, San Francisco Radio Station.)—Taking advantage of an interval of calm, we removed wings from one plane today and carried it to the shed where it will be stored through the coming winter.

Because of the excellent design of the Lockhead plane, we four men of the expedition were able to remove the wings and prepare the machines for storage with safety and dispatch. The engines must now be thoroughly oiled, greased and wrapped to protect them from moisture for the next week or two. After that the temperature will probably be, until we return, about freezing or lower, and no rust and deterioration will take place.

HUSBAND RUINS WIFE'S DEBUT

Uses Ruse to Get Audience, Uproar Results; She Faints.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—The police announced tonight that an attempt by the husband of a Vienna woman conductor to insure a large audience for his wife's debut with the Philharmonic Orchestra of Berlin was responsible for uproar that interrupted the concert and caused her to faint. He has deposited with the police sufficient money to redeem the tickets of those who entered the hall under the misapprehension that they were about to meet a rich and matrimonially inclined widow.

Lia Maria Mayer was in the midst of her work as guest conductor when a man in evening clothes arose, pulled a pink scented note from his pocket and cried: "I protest against this piece of bluff." Other notes which the husband had sent were produced in the audience, general disorder followed during which the guest conductor fainted.

STEWART TO FIGHT; SAYS JOHN D. JR. CANNOT OUST HIM

MAKES NO PERSONAL APPEAL FOR PROXIES

But There Has Been Some Solicitation in His Behalf —"Lie" to Hold He Has Not Been Vindicated.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, today challenged the authority of John D. Rockefeller Jr. to speak for the 58,000 stockholders of the company, in a formal statement commenting on Rockefeller's recent assertion that Stewart does not merit the confidence of the shareholders.

Stewart reiterated his intention to fight to retain the chairmanship from which Rockefeller has asked that he be ousted.

He said that he has made no personal solicitation for proxies but said solicitations by others had shown that he would have the support of a large number of stockholders voting a large amount of the stock at the March stockholders meeting.

Charges Political Motives.

Stewart referred to the charges against him as a result of his refusal to answer questions of a Senate investigating committee as "attacks by politicians and others—attempts in many cases actuated by political and personal ambitions." He added he had been vindicated of these charges by the courts.

He termed a suggestion that his acquittal of perjury was the result of a technicality as "a lie." He declared the record for the past year would be the best in the company's history and said that his associates, fellow employes and the company's best customers "have that confidence in this company's management which, I regret to say, Mr. Rockefeller Jr. claims has been lost."

"I am a candidate for re-election as a member of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana," says Stewart in his formal statement. "I am being opposed by Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr., who is personally asking other stockholders in the company to give him their proxies that he may vote them against me.

"The regular request for proxies sent out by the company will be mailed to stockholders about Jan. 16 as is the usual procedure. As in years past, I shall be named therein as one of the proxies.

Making No Personal Appeal.

"I have made no personal solicitation for proxies since Mr. Rockefeller Jr's letter. Some solicitations have been made by others, and I am already assured of the support of a large number of the stockholders voting a large amount of the stock of this company.

"More pleasing than anything else that has occurred is the spontaneous and practically unanimous support that has been extended to me by my fellow employes of this great company, and also by thousands of the stockholders in the territory served by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, showing (or at least, so I feel) that those who know me best, with whom I work daily, and upon whom this company must depend for business support, have confidence in me.

"This support is purely and entirely voluntary. A statement that has been published to the effect that coercion has been used on these employes is unqualifiedly false. No coercion of any kind has been or will be used.

"I have been the subject of numerous attacks by politicians and others—attempts in many cases actuated by political and personal ambitions. I refused to answer certain questions propounded by certain Senators which were wholly beyond their power.

Vindicated by Courts.

"In this position I have been vindicated by the courts of the land. These attacks I have hitherto endeavored to ignore, feeling that my ultimate vindication of these charges would be a complete answer. This vindication I received at the hands of the regularly constituted judicial establishment of my country in the shape of the verdict of two juries.

"Mr. Rockefeller Jr. has now brought the fight to me through our stockholders and the challenge must be accepted.

"The suggestion that my recent acquittal of charges of perjury in Washington was the result of a technicality is a lie. I have in my

26,000 DIE IN U. S. IN 7 WEEKS OF EPIDEMIC

Influenza and Pneumonia Toll Reckoned by Federal Health Officers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Public health officers today estimated approximately 26,000 persons died from influenza and pneumonia in the United States in the seven weeks preceding Jan. 5. The estimate is based on reports to the Census Bureau.

"Any doubt as to the reality of the current influenza epidemic," the health officials' statement said, "is promptly dispelled by an examination of the mortality statistics."

"During the seven weeks from Nov. 18 to Jan. 5," the statement said, "the cumulated annual death rate from influenza and pneumonia in excess of the average for the corresponding period of the last four years was 1129 a 100,000 population in 78 large cities reporting to the U. S. Bureau of Census.

"This is equal to an actual rate for the seven weeks of 21.7 a 100,000. Applying 120,000,000, yields an estimate of 26,000 excess deaths for the seven weeks, at the end of which the mortality had entered a definite decline only in the Western states." The heaviest mortality thus far, the statement noted, was in mountain states. There was a possibility, it said, that the peak of mortality may now have been reached in South Atlantic and some of the Central states.

Several Senators are ill with influenza and other ailments.

Watson of Indiana remained at home today with a severe cold which it was feared might develop into influenza, and Howell of Nebraska, has been in Walter Reed Hospital suffering with an artery ailment ever since Congress convened before the holidays.

Hale of Maine, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, has been obliged to stay at home with grip, but is expected to return to the Senate Monday. Walsh of Montana has been absent for several days with influenza, but is recovering.

Black of Alabama, who also had influenza was detained at home after the holidays. Larrazolo of New Mexico, another influenza victim, returned today.

SNOWSTORM HITS BYRD EXPEDITION

City of New York Crew Has Trouble Holding Bark to Ice Field.

ABOARD THE BARK CITY OF NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The Byrd Antarctic expedition is in the midst of a bad snowstorm. It is with much difficulty that the ship is prevented from being blown away from the ice field to which it is secured with ice anchors.

The men at Little America are safe and snug in their tents, but it is feared that the walls of the house, which is only half erected, have been blown down during the storm. Visibility has been almost nothing and at 4 o'clock this morning, when it was seen that the storm was approaching, the dog teams, which generally leave the base for the ship at that hour, were unharnessed and all hands told to take a much needed rest until the storm was over. And so they are in the tents, tucked in their reindeer-skin sleeping bags. A temporary kitchen has been made at Little America of canvas and food boxes.

The departure of the Eleanor Bolling from New Zealand has been delayed for at least two days. Brophy is in charge there. The expedition truly has reason to be thankful for the excellent equipment he secured.

HENRICI'S COMBINES WITH THOMPSON RESTAURANTS

Announcement in Chicago Follows Purchase of Site for 24-Story Building.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—The Thompson Restaurants and "Henrici's" have been consolidated.

Henrici's, which coined the slogan "no orchestral din," will continue to operate independently of the chain of popular priced "armchair" Thompson lunchrooms, but the ownership of the two concerns will be with the John R. Thompson Co.

Announcement of the consolidation followed purchase of a site for a 24-story building at 23-29 West Randolph street by the Thompson company. By the transaction the Thompson company acquired the Philip Henrici Co., William M. Collins, owner of Henrici's, receiving a block of stock in the Thompson company as well as a cash consideration.

Under the expansion plan announced, Henrici restaurants will be established in other cities, details already being complete for restaurants in Evanston, Ill., and St. Louis.

M'NARY SEES HOOVER AND DROPS FARM RELIEF BILL

Extra Session, Consequently, Will Be Necessary to Enable President-Elect to Redeem Pledge.

TARIFF REVISION UP AT SAME TIME

Oregon Senator Expects Congress to Meet in April and Finish Its Work by July 1.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—It has become evident that an extra session of Congress will be necessary in order that President-elect Hoover may redeem his campaign pledges to the farmers.

Hoover said that he would call a special session if the farm relief problem should not be solved by the present session. The last chance of a solution before March 4 vanished with the statement today by Senator McNary, after a conference with Hoover, that he would not seek the passage of his revamped McNary-Haugen bill.

Some of the leaders of Congress had hoped that approval of this bill, which carries the recommendation of the President-elect for the creation of a Federal Farm Board with wide powers, would make an extra session unnecessary. Very soon after the opening of the present session, however, the farm organizations and some of their leading spokesmen in Congress made it plain that they desired the whole subject of relief to go over to the new Congress and the new President.

Senator Borah, who was responsible for the Hoover promise, said repeatedly that even if the McNary bill should be passed, further measures would be required. He declared warmly for an extra session.

Hopes to Finish by July 1.

McNary, who is chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, said that he expected the extra session would be called for the middle of April, to consider both farm legislation and tariff revision. Republican leaders, he added, hoped that the session would be able to finish its work by July 1.

McNary indicated that his pending bill would be somewhat revised before its reintroduction in the next Congress. It is expected that the powers conferred upon the proposed farm board will be enlarged.

Among the other callers on the President-elect today were Chester Gray and Sam Thompson, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation, both of whom have been strongly in favor of leaving the farm relief question to a special session.

Hoover plans to leave next week for Florida, where he will remain until shortly before his inauguration.

By the Associated Press.

While those with whom he has discussed the question have announced that Hoover is of the opinion that a special session should be called about April 15, there has been no official announcement of the position of the President-elect. Nevertheless a tentative legislative program for the proposed session has already been discussed.

Under this program, as outlined by those who have been conferring with Hoover, the legislative activities to be undertaken would be limited to farm relief and tariff revision, both of which were promised by the next President during the campaign. The tariff revision would be in the shape of an amendment to the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922 and would cover both agricultural and industrial schedules.

Tariff Hearing in Progress.

With tariff hearings already in progress before the House Ways and Means Committee, House leaders estimate that both pieces of legislation could be put through in time for an adjournment of the special session by the middle of July at the latest, but Senate Democrats might be able to upset that program by making a prolonged fight for a general downward revision of duties.

While the president-elect has set forth his views on farm relief, of which revision of tariff duties on farm products is an important part, he has said that he will call a conference of agriculturists to seek the best way out of the condition in which the farming industry finds itself.

This conference probably will

COOLIDGE TRYING TO SPEED ACTION ON KELLOGG PACT

Senate Leaders Guests at White House Breakfast—Borah to Renew Request for Debate Limit.

MOSES-REED GROUP CIRCULATES PETITION

Urge the Secretary of State to Agree to Some Sort of "Clarifying Declaration."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—President Coolidge threw his influence today against the Senate legislative jam in which the Kellogg anti-war treaty and the cruiser construction bill are caught and this added pressure resulted tonight in at least a renewal of conferences looking to a way to obtain action.

On Monday Chairman Borah, of the Foreign Relations Committee, in charge of the treaty, will renew his request for an agreement to limit debate on the pact and thinks it will be accepted. Conferences looking to that end were revived late today.

White House alarm over the Senate situation was reflected in a senatorial breakfast party and a conference later attended by Coolidge and Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican leader; Borah, and Secretary Kellogg, the father of the treaty.

While this conference was going on, the Republican-Democratic group seeking an interpretation of the pact started a petition in the Senate asking for some sort of a "clarifying" declaration to the treaty. More than 26 signatures had been obtained tonight.

The petition, however, is conciliatory in tone, saying that the signers believe in the treaty, but would like a clarifying declaration. The petition contains a statement that unless the Foreign Relations Committee makes some form of interpretative report, the petitioners will feel required to vote for an interpretative resolution. However, some of the signers have exempted themselves from the provision of this last stipulation.

Petition to Go to Kellogg.

It is intended to have the petition sent to Secretary Kellogg, who so far has stood adamant against any interpertation of the treaty other than that contained in his correspondence with other nations.

The petition, which Senators Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut; Moses (Rep.), New Hampshire, and Reed (Dem.), Missouri, are passing around, proposes that a report be made by the Foreign Relations Committee setting forth the views expressed by Chairman Borah on the floor regarding the treaty as a sufficient guarantee of America's interpretation of the pact.

Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, who has declared for a committee report on the treaty or an interpretative resolution, was called to the White House late today by President Coolidge for a discussion of the pact. Later he said he had told Mr. Coolidge that he considered it unfortunate that the administration insisted that no reservations or interpretations accompany the ratification of the treaty.

The White House conference resulted in some frank discussion and ended about where it started with promises of hope only. Senator Borah informed Mr. Coolidge that he was not interested in whether the bill authorizing 15 new cruisers was passed or not and reminded the President that those who are talking against the treaty happen to be among those most interested in passage of the cruiser measure.

Secretary Is Unchanged.

The Moses-Reed group is ready to compromise on its resolution of interpretation in favor of only a committee report stating that it was not considered that the treaty would infringe upon or embarrass the Monroe doctrine. Senator Borah has expressed this view on the floor, but Secretary Kellogg and the Senator are unwilling to have a formal interpretative declaration made regarding the pact. Secretary Kellogg reiterated his views in this regard at the White House parley.

There appear to be good prospects that the petition will get more than 33 signatures—the one-third necessary to defeat ratification of the pact—but the sponsors of the petition disclaim any intention of seeking to defeat the treaty.

Senator Borah held the treaty before the Senate again during the afternoon, with Senator Shortridge (Rep.) of California taking up the cudgels in its behalf. Shortridge spoke at considerable length and was interrupted only by Senator Blaine (Rep.) of Wisconsin, who wants a resolution adopted declaring that Great Britain's note reserving freedom of action in the protection of her territories shall not be regarded as a reservation to the treaty.

assemble in Washington soon after inauguration so that the relief program can be worked out in detail by the time the President is called upon to submit his first message to Congress.

While it is expected that Hoover in any call for a special session will suggest the enactment of only farm and tariff measures, Congress would be free to legislate on any other subject. However, House leaders hope to forestall any general legislation by organizing only two House committees, those that will deal with two of the major problems confronting the Hoover administration.

Prohibition Survey Likely.

While there is no present intention of any general prohibition legislation at the special session, there is a possibility that it may come up at the first regular meeting of the new Congress, which will begin the first Monday in next December.

The President-elect has had in mind since before his notification to have an impartial commission make a thorough investigation not only of the enforcement of the Volstead act but also as to whether the abuses in enforcement are inherent in the act itself.

Congressional authorization for the naming of such a commission is proposed in a joint resolution sponsored by Senator Edge of New Jersey, a leader of the Senate wets and a strong supporter of Hoover in both the preconvention and the presidential campaigns.

Senator Jones of Washington, foremost among the Senate drys, and also an early Hoover man, previously had proposed a Congressional investigation but he and Senator Edge are reported to be close to an agreement under which the President would be authorized to name the commission which would be directed to report to Congress as well as to the chief executive.

Hoover May Leave Wednesday.

Today was the sixth of the 10 days Hoover has set aside for conferences here with party leaders before leaving for Miami Beach, Fla. He probably will be unable to get away from Washington before next Wednesday.

Because of the pressure of other engagements, he decided to have Senator Couzens of Michigan as a dinner guest tomorrow evening instead of at a headquarters conference today. The Michigan Senator is fighting the reappointment of Andrew W. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury.

Mrs. Alvin H. Hert of Kentucky, a vice chairman of the Republican National Committee, whose appointment as Secretary of the Interior is being urged upon Hoover, also will be a dinner guest tomorrow night at the Hoover home on S street.

Ogden Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, visited Hoover during the day for half an hour's talk, but he said Cabinet selections were not discussed.

In the political gossip around Washington the suggestion is heard frequently that with Mellon remaining as head of the Treasury for two years more, which would give him the longest term ever filled by a Secretary of the Treasury, Mills would be given an important diplomatic post overseas and subsequently named to succeed Mellon.

Ex-Kaiser Sues Publishers.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Former Kaiser Wilhelm today brought action against the publishers of a German translation of Sir Frederick's Ponsonby's book, "The Empress Frederick's Letters." He asked an injunction against the sale of the book on the ground "that these letters reached England in a not unauspicious manner and were not destined for publication."

STEWART TO FIGHT; SAYS JOHN D. JR. CANNOT OUST HIM

possession a statement signed by every member of the jury directly stating that no technicalities were considered, and that upon the first ballot—and even before a ballot was taken—they were unanimously of the opinion that the charge of perjury was false, and intended their verdict as a complete vindication. Any one may see this statement.

"Mr. Rockefeller Jr. says that several months ago he requested my resignation as a director of this company, affirming that I told him that such resignation would be forthcoming when it was requested by "the stockholders of the company."

Defies John D. Jr.

"I cannot recognize Mr. Rockefeller Jr.'s right to speak for all the 58,000 stockholders. He is admittedly a larger stockholder in other companies of the former Standard Oil group than he is in the Standard of Indiana. He is not dependent upon his return from this company for his future well being, although he has received a constant stream of dividends, amounting to millions of dollars in the last 10 years, and has not purchased a dollar's worth of the products of this company.

"There are thousands of stockholders, among them many of the 28,000 employes, who have invested their life savings in this company, who are desperately concerned over its future. Unlike Mr. Rockefeller Jr., they purchase its products and aid its progress. On account of them, I feel in duty bound not to desert, regardless of Mr. Rockefeller Jr.'s demands.

"I am proud of the record made by this company under my direction as chief of the executives in the last 10 years. The year just ended will prove the greatest in its history in volume of products sold, in cost of operation, and in profits accrued. It surpasses every previous record. For this I do not claim the credit. Much of it is due to that fine group of fellow employes who have worked shoulder to shoulder with me.

"This record is fair evidence that my associates and fellow employes and our customers in the field we serve have that confidence in this company's management, which, I regret to say, Mr. Rockefeller Jr. claims has been lost."

Jury Quoted as Saying Verdict Was Meant as Vindication.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The jury, which acquitted Robert W. Stewart of perjury here last summer, was quoted today in a statement issued through the office of Frank J. Hogan, Stewart's attorney, as saying that the verdict was intended as a vindication of the oil man.

Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, is now in a fight with John D. Rockefeller Jr., who is seeking to remove him from the office he holds.

The statement included a letter signed by the 12 jurors, which Hogan said was written to disprove "press reports in which it is stated that our verdict was based upon a technicality."

"This was not a fact," the juror's letter said. "We considered the charges on their merits and acquitted the defendant thereof. It was our intention our verdict should stand as a vindication of Col. Stewart.

"Our verdict was not based on the lack of a quorum in the Senate committee. It was based on our belief, after hearing all the evidence, that Col. Stewart had not testified falsely as charged."

Stewart testified before a Senate committee investigating the oil cases. During the trial the claim was made that at the time there was no committee quorum present and that therefore the proceedings were illegal.

F. H. KREISMANN EXPECTED TO BE POLICE BOARD HEAD

Ex-Mayor Thought to Be Caulfield's Choice for Position—Two Others to Be Named to Body.

Frederick H. Kreismann, former Mayor, now head of the committee backing Henry W. Kiel for Mayor in the Republican primary, is thought to be Governor-elect Caulfield's choice for president of the Police Board, to be named within the next few days.

The president of the board is selected by his fellow commissioners, but the Governor dictates their choice. It now seems likely that the board's present head, Col. Allen C. Orrick, will be asked to remain on the board, but not as president, and it is expected he will remain for a time, although probably not through the Caulfield administration.

This will leave two more members to be selected, besides the Mayor, who is a member ex-officio. Three names are thought to include the two probable appointees. These are Dietrich Hedenkamp, secretary-treasurer of the St. Louis Bank Building and Equipment Co., vice-president of the American Exchange National Bank, of which Collector Koeln is president; George T. Kollas, real estate dealer, and Daniel Bartlett, who has been Caulfield's law partner.

One Lives at Kirkwood.

Hedenkamp is a resident of Kirkwood. The State statutes prescribe that Police Commissioners in cities of 500,000 population or more "shall have been residents of the cities for a period of four years next preceding their appointment." It is not known whether any way of circumventing this apparent legal obstacle in Hedenkamp's case has been found. The selection of Kreismann for a Police Board post necessarily would mean his retirement from campaign activities.

Two Republican and two Democratic members of the Election Board are to be named by the Governor, who designates the chairman. The best information as to the probable choice for this board points to Oliver T. Remmers as chairman, and John B. Edwards or Clifford G. Haley as the other Republican member.

Remmers Lost in Primary.

Remmers, a lawyer, was chairman of the Republican City Committee until after the last primary, when a political upset in his ward, the Twelfth, deprived him of his committee seat. Edwards was chairman of the Election Board under Gov. Hyde's administration. It is not known whether he would be willing to return to the board.

Haley is City Commissioner of Weights and Measures. He is a former subordinate of Caulfield as Excise Commissioner, and was an active Caulfield worker in the primary campaign last summer. His ward, the Twenty-second, was the first to indorse Caulfield's candidacy.

For Democratic members, the selection of James Y. Player, now a member of the board, and Joseph W. Hannauer, is expected. Hannauer is a former president of the Real Estate Exchange. He is a brother of George Hannauer, formerly a St. Louis railroad clerk, now president of the Boston & Maine Railroad system.

KING ENJOYS A RESTFUL DAY, BUT QUEEN HAS SLIGHT COLD

Ruler's Consort Keeps to Palace, But Indisposition Is Considered of Minor Character.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—King George today enjoyed another restful day but Queen Mary was suffering from a cold. Her indisposition, however, was described as of a minor character and not sufficiently serious to justify issuance of a medical bulletin. The Queen did not leave Buckingham Palace yesterday or today. Because of the cold weather it was deemed inadvisable for her to leave her rooms. It is a rare occurrence for the Queen to be even slightly indisposed.

POSTMASTERSHIP PATRONAGE INQUIRY FOR THREE STATES

Senators Vote to Investigate Florida, Texas and Arkansas and May Go Farther.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Extension of the inquiry into postmastership patronage to Florida, Texas and Arkansas was decided upon today by the Senate Investigating Committee.

In this connection the Senate also approved a motion of Senator George, (Dem.), Georgia, to increase the appropriation for this inquiry from $5000 to $8000.

Senator Brookhart, (Rep.), Iowa, chairman of the committee, said complaints had been received about the manner of disposing of postmasterships in all three states, and that witnesses would be summoned here within a few weeks. He is anxious, however, to defer the investigation until the Senate concludes the approaching fight on the cruiser construction bill which he intends to oppose.

Brookhart said further investigation of the South Carolina situation was contemplated and he indicated Virginia might also receive attention.

Invitations were sent to President Coolidge President-elect Hoover and Senators Harry B. Hawes and James A. Reed of Missouri.

LOS ANGELES LEAVES MOORING

PORT ST. JOE, Fla., Jan. 12.—The navy dirigible Los Angeles cast off from its mooring on the tender Patoka at 4:35 o'clock this afternoon and glided away to pay a visit tomorrow to Miami and Florida east coast cities.

It was the third time this week the craft had set its nose toward Miami, where it was to have participated in the inauguration of Pan-American air mail service. Twice adverse weather and winds compelled the airship to turn aside from the journey. Crowds of people thronged this little port town late today to watch the dirigible get under way. Weather bound for two days, the crew was elated to get under way again. Commander Rosendahl said today the craft had weathered the stormy conditions in fine shape.

GEORGE F. HAID TO SUCCEED DAUES IN JUDGESHIP

Gov.-Elect Caulfield Announces Intention to Appoint Him to St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Governor-elect Caulfeld announced at Jefferson City last night that he would appoint George F. Haid, former City Counselor, to the vacancy on the bench of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, created by the resignation of Judge Charles H. Daues.

Judge Daues' resignation, to take effect Tuesday, is in Caulfield's hands. The term for which he was elected ends in 1932, but Haid will hold the office by appointment only until the 1930 election.

Haid was Associate City Counselor when former Judge Caulfield was head of the city law department, during Mayor Kiel's latest term. When Caulfield resigned in 1922, Haid succeeded him. Haid resigned in 1924 to go into business as an executive of a motor truck company.

Haid is now associated in law practice with Benjamin A. Wood. Daues resigned in order to return to private practice, after a prolonged period of office holding in the Federal District Attorney's office, the city law department and the Court of Appeals.

During Haid's term as Counselor condemnation proceedings for the carrying out of bond-issue projects formed an important part of the city's legal business. The Fourteenth street viaduct case was terminated by an agreement reached by him with the Terminal Association, which paid the amount asked by the city for the structure.

He served also in the Delmar grade-crossing case, and in the Auditorium case, decided by the Supreme Court in the city's favor. He lives at 5712 Cabanne avenue.

will be an organization Governor and that he will limit his appointments, or at least most of them, to Republicans who can get the support of the organization, but the idea is growing that Caulfield will select the men he wants to appoint and will expect them to get the organization indorsement, which except in rare instances can be done easily. It is not expected the organization will dictate the appointments, but probably Caulfield will make few if any appointments over the protest of the organization.

It is apparent in Jefferson City that the job-holders are worried. The report is out among them that something more than political faithfulness will be required to land a job. If that proves to be true, it will be a shock to many, and there will result a big exodus from the capital.

Mr. Aloe's first activity in politics was in the days of the Merchants' League Club, at Eighteenth and Olive streets, in the Ziegenhein administration. He was president of the club, a partisan organization. He was twice a delegate to the Republican National Convention. Gov. He was a member-at-large of the Republican State Committee for four years.

Mr. Aloe's first election to the presidency of the Board of Aldermen was in 1916, to fill a vacancy. In 1919, he was elected for the subsequent 4-year term. By appointment of President Wilson, he was chairman in wartime of the St. Louis District Draft Board of Appeal.

Former Mayor Kiel last night said: "The passing of Mr. Aloe was a very sad thing for St. Louis. He has been a man of great civic usefulness. We were ardent friends, and I have deep feeling of personal loss."

SENATE DELAYS VOTE ON NICARAGUAN CANAL

King and McMaster Request Action—Minor Amendments Advance Measure.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The pending Senate resolution for a survey of the Nicaraguan Canal route by the army engineers was advanced a step today by the adoption of several minor amendments, none of which was opposed by the sponsors of the measure. One of the amendments, inserted to meet objections by Senator King (Dem.) of Utah to the original phrasing provides that nothing in the measure shall be construed as binding the United States to build the canal. King had asserted that the authorization to the President to enter upon negotiations with Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Salvador and Honduras might be read by these countries as a definite commitment of the United States to the canal project.

In response to requests by King and McMaster (Rep.) of South Dakota, both of whom declared the subject should have further consideration, the resolution was allowed to go over, on the understanding that it would be taken up again next week.

King said that no step should be taken toward the construction of a second Isthmian canal until it was first determined that the needs of commerce could not be met by enlargement of the Panama Canal.

Declaring that "severe burdens" had been imposed on the Middle West by the building of the Panama Canal, McMaster said he was unwilling to support the Nicaraguan project until he had chance to see what the incoming administration was going to do about general waterway plans. He wanted to be assured, he said, that the whole system of inland waterway improvement would keep pace with development to the south.

Edge pointed out that the resolution did not seek to commit the Government to any policy, but only to gather information on which to base a policy.

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL INDORSES KIEL FOR MAYOR

President Tells Candidate He Is Favored Because Under Him 'Labor Got a Square Deal.'

PLEDGE OF ACTIVE SUPPORT MADE

All Unions in City Represented Except Bricklayers and Ex-Mayor Has Card in That.

The Building Trades Council, representing about 18,000 union craftsmen, has unanimously indorsed former Mayor Kiel for the Republican mayoralty nomination. Formal notice of the indorsement was given to Kiel yesterday by Harry G. Lindeman, president, and Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the organization.

The council is composed of 70 delegates, representing all the building trades except the bricklayers' union, in which, incidentally, Kiel still holds his union card. Only three delegates were absent from the meeting at which the Kiel indorsement was voted.

A forecast of a decided drift to Kiel in union labor circles is seen by politicians in the resolution. It had been anticipated, however, not only because of Kiel's record as member of a labor union and as Mayor, but also because of expressed dissatisfaction among labor leaders with the attitude toward union labor of Mayor Miller, Kiel's opponent for the nomination.

Active Support Pledged.

"The Building Trades Council is back of you almost to a man," Lindeman told Kiel in informing him of the indorsement and pledging the council's active support to his candidacy. "When you were Mayor of St. Louis labor got a square deal and any differences that arose were amicably adjusted."

Kiel recalled his own career as a bricklayer and declared his support of the principle of trade unionism.

Cassidy said the Building Trades Council would carry on an active campaign in Kiel's behalf, organizing into districts for greater efficiency, and campaigning actively for the former Mayor on primary election day.

During the Miller administration union labor has repeatedly complained against granting bond issue contracts to companies which hire non-union workers from other cities to carry out the work. It is the contention of union members that as taxpayers they are in effect forced to contribute to the pay of non-union workers and foes of organized labor.

When the Municipal Opera was founded in 1919, Kiel was Mayor of St. Louis. He has been president of the Municipal Theater Association for nine of the 11 years that the organization has existed.

$60,000 Indoor Tennis Court Built For Girl Champion's Winter Training

OSAGE COUNTRY CLUB PLANS REORGANIZATION

Membership Would Substitute Private for Real Estate Company Control.

Tiring of membership in a club owned and controlled by a subdivision company, members of Osage County Club have reorganized with the expectation of taking over the club under the same name on May 1 as a private association.

They have obtained a five-year lease, subject to annual renewal at their option, with the privilege of buying the buildings and equipment for $212,000 on easy terms and leasing 82 acres of the 18-hole golf course for 99 years. A long lease on 30 acres more of the links will be assumed.

The club, on Big Bend road in the western part of Kirkwood, was opened July 4, 1926, by Bixby & Smith, Inc., developers of the surrounding subdivision, Osage Hills. More than 900 persons joined at first, paying $50 each for the first year and a half and $75 for the year beginning last May. They had no voice in the management. In spite of various efforts to keep up the membership, it had dwindled to 512 recently, and various interest were dickering to acquire the establishment from Ralph F. Bixby and J. C. Smith, owners of the company.

Private Club Started.

A group of members headed by E. C. Johnston of Webster Groves, district manager of the Tubular Woven Fabric Co., entered negotiation and formed the skeleton of the new private club. Details were withheld until a meeting at the club Friday night, attended by more than 150 members. Johnston, who presided, having been chosen president by the proposed board of 17 governors, explained that the commercial form of management was unsatisfactory and was causing loss of members. Some persons resented the "real estate tactics" employed in connection with the club, he said, but he praised the attitude of Bixby & Smith toward the reorganization.

Applications for membership in the new club were circulated at the meeting and signed by 136 men. After the first 500 members are accepted, without charge except for dues, there will be an initiation fee of $100. The dues will be $75 for the first year and $100 annually thereafter.

Expect $10,000 Profit a Year.

The new club will have 15 years to pay the $212,000 purchase price after accepting the option to buy, or it may reject the option and return the establishment to the company. A $120,000 mortgage will be placed on the 82 acres as a means of financing half of the purchase price and interest on this will be $7200 a year.

From the dues of each member after the first year $25 will be placed in a sinking fund toward retirement of the principal, but this money will be returned if the purchase is not consummated. Johnston said Bixby & Smith had made $4200 profit in the club operation last year, even showing a profit on the dining room, but the new board figures it can make $10,000 a year, applicable to the purchase price.

The new club's equity would be worth at least $253,000, Johnston said, or $506 per member, with 500 members. The membership shares would be transferable after the purchase was made and nonassessable.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Davis Complete Ornate Structure for Their Daughter, Alita, Near Country Club Grounds.

ALITA DAVIS placed her tennis rackets in their presses and cases unwillingly each autumn and watched her tanned arms bleach to whiteness as winter months passed with the wish that tennis might be a sport without season.

There were infrequent opportunities to develop her exceptional backhand stroke on indoor courts while snow covered the clay court beside the summer cottage of her father, Samuel C. Davis, on the Barnes road, adjoining the Country Club grounds. But one's tennis is not improved by occasional playing.

Tennis is a tradition with the Davis family. Her father started her on her way to the women's indoor tennis championship of the St. Louis district, which she won a year ago, by buying her a 12-ounce racket when she was 10 years old. Her father played, and her mother. Then there is her uncle, Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, who did much to establish the family tennis tradtion in the preceding generation by winning the Olympic championship at the World's Fair here in 1904, and later offered the famous Davis cup for international tennis play.

Riding and swimming also are summer sports, and, aside from them, there was nothing of particular interest to the 21-year-old athlete. Cold, blustery winter days were dreary and uninteresting.

Composite of 3 Courts.

So it was that Davis, abetted by Mrs. Davis and Miss Davis, contrived to exempt the young champion's major sport from the bonds of the seasons, by building, at a cost of about $60,000, an indoor tennis court that stands out imposingly against the western horizon when viewed from Barnes road.

Such buildings, which have come into vogue in the East, were studied by Mrs. Davis, who chose a composite of courts of Ralph Pulitzer and Joseph P. Grace both at Manhasset, Long Island, and Marshall Field's at Lloyd's Neck, L. I.

Designed by Marcel Boulicault, the building is English in architecture, employing rough cream stucco and half-timber work in the exterior. Green, hand-split shingles roof the lounge, and the ridged glass skylight over the court is visible. Evergreen trees and shrubs border the flagstone veranda.

Built upon the side of a hill, entrance is gained through a door which gives upon a gallery overlooking the court. The room is furnished with interesting early American stools, benches, chairs and tables, lending an atmosphere of hospitality. The mantel of a rustic fireplace is lined with 14 pewter measuring cups from France and England. Framed maps of a century ago and gay landscapes and hunting scenes are on the walls. Dressing rooms for men and women adjoin.

A similar lounging room, reached by stairs, is immediately below, on the court level. Here players may await their turns, rest or play cards. The fireplace and furnishings are similar to the entrance level lounge. A kitchenette and furnace room are at either end.

The portion of the building occupied by the court is 126 feet long and half as wide, allowing generous space for the runback and on either side of the limed lines. The steel trusses supporting the skylight are 30 feet above the floor at the sides and 10 feet higher at the peak above the half court line. Six hundred panes of glass were used in the skylight and 704 panes were required for the high windows which may be opened in one operation by a system of cogs and shafts.

132 Floodlights for Night Play.

Banks of 132 floodlights with silvered reflectors line the sidewalls at the top, permitting night play. Unit heaters, blowing blasts from the four corners of the court, provide warmth and ventilation. Steam heat is used.

Yellow clay, obtained when excavating for the building, was combined with sand and calcium chloride, to absorb moisture, and rolled into a hard, smooth surface for the court. At either end ivy is trained upon green wire backstops, paced two feet in front of the wall and curved in order to deflect balls harmlessly. Varied shrubbery grows along the sidewalls.

Weatherbeaten hand-carved spread eagles of wood which once adorned bows of clippers and whale boats, relieve the monotony of white wall spaces above the light green lower portion. One was obtained in Maine from an aged sea captain who recovered it from his whaling vessel, the Victoria, when it was condemned and he quit the sea. Another came from the wreck of a three-masted clipper which went on the rocks on the northern coast of Scotland almost a century ago.

Among the guests of Miss Davis at the court have been Misses Medora Steedman, Anne K. West, Martha Love and Janet Kauffman, and George Lea Lambert and Stafford Lambert.

Miss Davis, who resides with her parents at 13 Westmoreland place, has spent much time during the past several years in European travel and study. She was presented at the court of St. James two years ago, and, with her cousin, Miss Alice Davis, made her debut last winter at a ball at the Country Club.

Mrs. Edith G. Tabler, 5319 North Kingshighway, and her husband, Harry C. Tabler Jr., whom she divorced last Tuesday, were remarried last night in the home of the Rev. H. E. Ryan, pastor of the Methodist Church in Clayton. The pastor said the Tablers said they had decided the divorce was a mistake.

Tabler is president of the Tabler Cleaning Co. and owner of the Tabler Cleaners, a professional soccer team. The Tablers departed last night for Biloxi, Miss.

APPROPRIATIONS HEAD NAMED

Kirk Jones of Jefferson County Is House Committee Chairman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12.—Representative Kirk Jones of Jefferson County will be appointed chairman of the House committee on appropriations, in which all State appropriation bills originate, Speaker Jones Parker announced today. Parker has not selected the remainder of the committee.

The appropriations committee is one of the most important legislative groups of the House and will have a large task this session of the Legislature in bringing the appropriation requests of the departments within the estimated Missouri revenues for 1929 and 1930. Jones, an automobile dealer of De Soto, is serving his second term in the Legislature. He was not a member of the appropriations committee his first term. Frank B. Meyer of Gasconade County, chairman of the committee in the 1927 session, was an opponent of Parker for the speakership of the House. Parker has not indicated whether he will give Meyer a place on the committee.

UNPAID GASOLINE TAX CAUSES ATTACHMENT

State Takes Over the Property of Motor Oil Co. to Satisfy Claim.

The Attorney-General's office, acting through Assistant Attorney-General H. C. Whitehill, yesterday attached the assets, property and offices of the Motor Oil Co., a corporation for distributing oil and gasoline, at Clayton road and Terminal Belt Railroad tracks, between North and South road and Hanley road, to satisfy the State's claim for $897.08 due in gasoline taxes.

Whitehill procured the attachment papers in the Circuit Court at Clayton, and the Sheriff's office immediately carried a court order into effect. A watchman, in charge of the books of the corporation and of all its effects, took his post in the corporation's offices yesterday afternoon.

The State's affidavit alleged that the Motor Oil Co., a $35,000 corporation, owed taxes going back to May, 1928. If an oil distributing concern fails to remit its taxes within 25 days of the last day of a given month, it is fined an additional 12 per cent of the amount of the owed tax. The Motor Oil Co.'s defection, it was alleged, included taxes for several thousand gallons of gasoline plus the 12 per cent fine for several months.

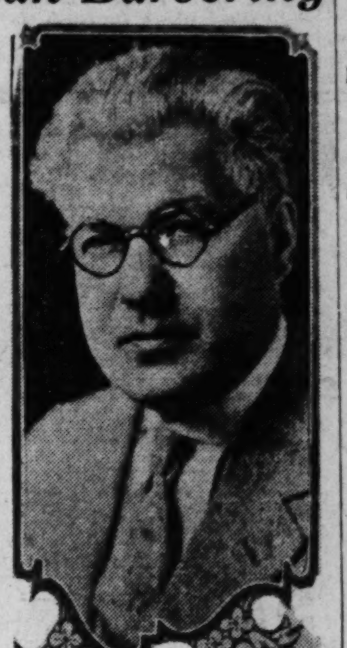
The State further alleged that the company was preparing to dispose of its assets to the City Service Co. Whitehill said the attachment action, an unusual proceeding for the State to bring, had been decided upon as a lesson to other distributers of gasoline who are delinquent in remitting their tax.

Ralph M. Appel, president of the company, declined to comment on the attachment suit, saying the matter was in the hands of the company's attorney, A. J. Haverstick of 4549 Forest Park boulevard. Haverstick said the company would fight the attachment on the grounds that certain items in the tax bill were without justification, particularly the fines assessed for tardiness in remitting the gasoline tax.

"The State has been high-handed and exorbitant in its tax penalties," Haverstick said. "We expect to answer their charges fully when we go into court at the May term in defending ourselves against this suit."

Finds Insurance Business Is Harder Than Barbering

Frank J. Falzone, Promoter of Three Firms Facing Receivership Suits, at Desk Despite Doctor's Orders.



FRANK J. FALZONE.

When Frank J. Falzone enters his insurance company offices at Clayton he finds the benches occupied by stockholders and policy holders waiting to see him, just as they used to wait for his call of "Next," at his barber shop.

That was when the president of the two insurance companies operated a two-chair shop in the rear of a small notion store at Maple and Sutter avenues, now a part of University City, then known as the Hodiamont district, just outside of "Hell's Half-acre."

But attending a barber chair is not so exacting, mentally or physically, as filling an executive's chair in an insurance office, especially when there is more than one company. It is much like shaving a customer in one chair while trimming the hair of another in a chair adjoining.

Too Many Irons, Son Says.

It was a case of too many irons in the fire, according to his son, Joseph A. Falzone, attorney representing the Western States Life Assurance Co., the American Mutual Casualty Co. and the People's Insurance Co. in receivership suits pending against them. Physicians have told Falzone that he must leave his desk at 10 South Central avenue, where the business of the three companies is transacted, but he insists on staying until the difficulties are adjusted.

One of his customers at the Maple avenue barber shop 25 years ago impressed Falzone with the large roll of bills he always displayed. The man was an insurance salesman. Falzone started selling life insurance and met with such success that he sold the barber shop and store.

Started Agency in 1914.

He moved to Clayton and bought a small house at 7532 Forsythe boulevard in 1914. He added fire, automobile and life insurance to his business and several rooms to his house. He called his agency, which he still operates the American Underwriters Co.

Seven years later, with Judge Sam D. Hodgdon, Falzone founded the American Mutual Casualty Co., which he said now was "$14,000 in the red," owing to the failure of an Illinois company with which they reinsured. A double assessment of the 1000 policy-holders has been made and the additional $30,000 this will produce, if all respond, will place them on a sound footing, Falzone said.

The company has liabilities of $32,000 and assets of $18,000, and has suspended business by order of the State Insurance Department until the deficit is made up.

$5000 of Capital Paid In.

The Western States Life was incorporated Feb. 21, 1925, with a capital stock of $25,000, with $5000 paid in. It was increased later to $100,000, fully paid up, and another $100,000, authorized a few weeks ago, now is being sold, Joseph Falzone said. Assets are given as $208,000 and surplus as $80,000.

Frank Falzone has no connection with the People's Insurance Co., he declares, although petitioners allege he controls it through a relative, R. F. Buschorn of St. John's Station, its president. It is a small concern with about 200 policy holders and is insolvent, Joseph Falzone, its attorney, said, explaining that it was being dissolved by its directors.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Western States company was held yesterday. Falzone held proxies for 51 per cent of the company's stock and perfunctorialy elected directors satisfactory to himself. His attorneys explained to minority stockholders that the action was intended to protect the interests of the company. David P. Janes, an assistant Attorney-General, and Carl Otto, attorney for the State Insurance Department, who attended the meeting, told reporters the company was in good condition so far as the State was concerned.

TEAR GAS PUTS DOWN OUTBREAK IN PRISON

Holmesburg, Pa., Jail Inmates Say Food Is Bad and Wreck Furniture.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—After guards had called for aid, city policemen, using tear gas, today quelled an uprising among nearly 600 prisoners in the county prison at Holmesburg. The gas was discharged into three of the eight corridors arranged in the form of a wheel within the institution.

During the disorder, which began yesterday and continued intermittently until this afternoon, prisoners tore up mattresses, broke cell furniture and shattered some of the wooden doors on the inside of their iron barred cells.

No one was seriously injured, since most of the prisoners never got an opportunity to leave their cells. No firearms were found among the prisoners.

Trouble at the prison has been brewing for several days. Prisoners alleged that their food was insufficient and poor in quality. This is denied by prison officers.

The authorities declared the disturbances were due to unrest among the prisoners of whom 1750 are crowded into cells planned for only 1500.

The disturbances were minimized until noon today when a call was sent to city hall for reinforcements. Lemuel B. Schofield, director of public safety, ordered a detachment of policemen to the place with tear gas and later increased the force to more than 100 men.

BOOTH EXPECTED TO REFUSE PLEA TO QUIT HIS POST

This Action Would Probably Throw Question of Salvation Army Leadership Into Courts.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Salvation Army circles in London are inclined to believe that Gen. Bramwell Booth's reply Monday or Tuesday to the High Council's proposal that he retire voluntarily would be a declination and with it the precipitation of a legal fight for retention of the Army's leadership.

The possibility of legal complications has been foreshadowed by the recent appearance of William Allen Jowitt, K. C., former member of Parliament and a widely known lawyer, in behalf of the General. Army Solicitor Frost has been in attendance at Sunbury since the Council convened, but has not been allowed to enter the Council chamber. Advice has been taken, however, from time to time on questions of procedure and on each step that the Council has taken in order to avoid any technical slip-up which might form the basis of litigation.

Any legal struggle on the question would revolve on the issue of the legality of the summoning of the Council. Those who have been supporting Gen. Booth insist that the Council was summoned under the wrong clause of the Army's supplemental deed.

Evangeline Booth, American commander and leader of the reform group, is said to be grieved that she was unable to see her brother in an effort to stave off the expected legal fight which Mrs. Booth and Catherine Booth gave her to understand might be forthcoming. When Evangeline Booth entered the Council meeting at Sunbury today she looked tired and appeared to be feeling the strain of the prolonged negotiations.

Council Hears Formal Report of Visit to Gen. Booth.

By the Associated Press.

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, Jan. 12.—The high council of the Salvation Army today listened to the report of the committee which yesterday asked Gen. Bramwell Booth to retire as commander-in-chief, then adjourned until Tuesday morning, when the General's answer is expected.

The official announcement on the report of the deputation said:

"The interview, which was of the most intimate nature, lasted more than a half hour, and the General apparently bore the strain very well. The purport of the visit—to lay before the General the resolution of the council suggesting to him that he now retire from office—was fully understood by the General.

"The accompanying letter of an affectionate and appreciative character, signed by 56 members of the council, was also handed to him. The General promised to give earnest and prayerful consideration to the suggestion and to communicate his decision with as little delay as possible.

"The General joined in prayer with a deputation, himself leading them in proyer. Afterwards he exchanged personal greetings with the individual members."

GAS FUMES KILL MAN IN BUS; THREE OTHERS ARE MADE ILL

Negro Found Dead of Carbon Monoxide Poisoning on Arrival From Memphis.

When a motorbus of the Gregory Bus Lines, Inc., pulled into its garage at 2342 South Broadway yesterday morning after a night run from Memphis, one of its passengers, a Negro, was dead from gas poisoning and three other Negroes were in serious condition, apparently as a result of inhaling exhaust fumes.

An autopsy showed that the man who died had succumbed to carbon monoxide poisoning, apparently from the exhaust. A card in his pocketbook indicated he was Russell Bunpris of Jonestown, Miss.

The three passengers who were ill are under treatment at City Hospital No. 2. They are: Isaac Sprinkler, 50 years old, and his wife, Mrs. Carrie Sprinkler, 34, of Shulah, Miss., and Alby Bell, 36, of Hernandez, Miss.

A local officer of the bus line said there were about 20 passengers in the coach and that the others said they had not noticed exhaust gas in the bus.

WOULD PERMIT CHILDLESS ITALIAN PAIRS TO DIVORCE

Fascist Attitude, It Is Thought Will Break Down Restrictive Laws.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

ROME, Jan. 12.—Before long divorce may be possible in Italy, one of the few countries left where it has no place in the civil code. Giolitti, the former powerful Premier, did try to introduce a modified form of divorce, but public opinion was so much against it that the Chamber of Deputies threw it out.

However, Fascism is bent upon having bigger families and its propaganda for them and for sending peasants back to the land has caused thousands of letters to be sent to the Roman papers, wherein private citizens deplore the impossibility of obtaining divorce. The consensus is the divorce should be possible in childless marriages, if only to enable a childless couple to mate anew and, probably be the happy parents of children.

Everybody knows such a law would be the thin end of the wedge and that before long, such causes as are pleaded in the divorce courts of other countries would be added to that of sterility. But the Church would certainly object and it remains to be seen whether Rome, the capital of the Fascist State, would oppose Rome, the capital of Catholicism, in this problem. One thing is noteworthy: that a question which has not been broached in the press for decades, should be discussed by readers in the columns of their newspapers.

NERVOUSNESS Not Caused by Weak Nerves

JURY CONDEMNS WILMAS-MUELLER REGIME IN COUNTY

Former Sheriff and Prosecuting Attorney Called Derelict in Final Report to Judge Mulloy.

Al Wilmas, who retired as Sheriff of St. Louis County on Dec. 31, and Fred E. Mueller, who retired as Prosecuting Attorney at the same time, were derelict in their duty in the enforcement of liquor laws and suppression of slot machines, the grand jury declared in its final report to Circuit Judge Mulloy yesterday, criticising them severely for their official conduct.

It also condemned former Constable George Roth of Central Township in connection with liquor raids which did not result in prosecutions and in which the liquor disappeared.

Chief recommendations in the report called for a county police force under a bipartisan board, a new county courthouse and jail, abolition of the pernicious fee system for law enforcement and other officials, and further inquiry by Federal authorities into notable cases of liquor law violations.

"No Occasion to Fear."

Excerpts from the grand jury report concerning Wilmas, Mueller, Roth and others follow:

"Our investigation not only demonstrated that certain law enforcement officials were directly connected with the operation of slot machines, but that the operators thereof had no occasion to fear disturbance at the hands of any of the law enforcement officials. Investigation of the Sheriff's office disclosed a deplorable condition in this respect.

"The jury was unable to find a single deputy under former Sheriff Wilmas who had ever received instructions to arrest or otherwise interfere with any person on whose premises slot machines were found in operation, or to apprehend those persons found actively engaged in distributing and collecting from the machines, and while a number of slot machines have been ollected by Deputy Sheriffs, this effort ended by picking up the machines, conveying them to the Sheriff's office and supplying them storage; in fact, quite a number of slot machines were kept in the vault in the private office of Wilmas, ostensibly for evidence, although no one had been charged with their possession or operation.

"The jury also was unable to find a single representative of the Sheriff's office who could state that he had personally seen a single slot machine (out of hundreds confiscated) actually destroyed; on the other hand, the jury has good reason to believe from its investigation that a great many of these machines later found their way back into operation. The dereliction of duty on the part of Sheriff Wilmas in this respect was most flagrant.

No Record of Return.

"Investigation of bootlegging activities, and official participation therein, presented a deplorable spectacle. A concrete example is that of a raid conducted by former Constable George Roth and his force of deputies at a residence in Richmond Heights, where more than $25,000 worth of liquor was confiscated. Full newspaper accounts, with elaborate photographs of the liquor confiscated, appeared in the St. Louis papers on the day of the raid. In spite of this notoriety, we fail to find a single record at Clayton, or elsewhere, that Roth or any of his deputies ever made a return on the search warrant indicating the seizure of liquor; nor was any one ever charged with any offense in connection with this case, although the full details, together with the identity of the owners of the liquor, were known to the Constable, his deputies and Prosecuting Attorney Fred E. Mueller.

"It is significant that on the recommendation of former Prosecutor, Mueller a sum of money was later paid by persons interested in this liquor to a Justice of the Peace, although Mueller failed at that or any subsequent time to file an information or other charge in the case. Equally significent is the further fact that this jury had reason to believe that at least one truckload of this liquor was conveyed to Clayton on a truck, the property of one of Roth's deputies, and that subsequently sums of money were distributed among the officers participating in the raid, said to represent a part of the proceeds.

"Another example of the inefficiency of our law enforcement officials in liquor law violations is furnished by a raid conducted by former Constable Roth and his deputies at a residence in Pine Lawn, where a large store of liquors was confiscated under a search warrant. The home-brew was destroyed on the premises, but the more valuable liquor portion was conveyed on a truck to the residence of one of Roth's deputies, and its final disposition has not yet been accounted for.

"These specific cases are but typical of many as illustrating the manner in which these law enforcement officials failed to perform their duty. We are convinced that whatever activity these officials manifested in liquor matters in the county amounted to nothing more than a simple gesture to impress the public with the idea that an effort was being made to enforce the law while, at the same time, persons implicated in law violations in this respect had ample assurance that their illegal business would not be disturbed.

"Our investigation of the office of former Prosecutor Mueller further convinced us that information was obtained from channels in that office which enabled law violators to have contact with that office and to know at all times what steps the State proposed to take; that through this channel 'tips' were given out to persons having places which were to be subjected to raids and thus enabled them to conceal the goods and escape detection.

"Frequent instances of failure to supena important witnesses for the State in pending cases were shown, thus resulting in delaying prosecution, or placing the defendant in position to demand a dismissal. The entire record of this office for the past three years has shown to our satisfaction that the operation of the office has been intimately influenced by professional fixers and bondsmen and those having an interest in slot machine and liquor selling.

"We condemn unqualifiedly the action of former Sheriff Wilmas in collecting from the county sums for board of prisoners, hundreds of whom were not confined in the jail and never received a meal from his hands. His belated effort to adjust this overcharge by refunding in part a sum of the money within the last 30 days of his term, and after this jury had the matter under investigation, cannot entitle him to be publicly excused."

Turning to the question of county expenditures, the grand jury observed that if county financial methods were used in private corporations they would shortly bankrupt. Creation of a board to supervise expenditures was urged.

A county police force and a new jail were noted as among county needs. One grand juror, George W. Baumhoff, in a minority report demurred against a bond issue for the latter purpose "until the County Court satisfies the people that it will keep its promise made before the election for the $10,000,000 road bond issue, that no streets in subdivisions will be made with money from that issue."

Pilot, 18, Killed in Landing.

CANNES, France, Jan. 12—Pierre Fishback, 18-year-old pilot who was called "L'Enfant" of French aviation, was killed today in a landing forced by motor trouble. He was attempting a flight in short hops from Paris to Syri, using a small single seater plane.

Girl, 8, Dies of Brain Hemorrhage.

An autopsy in the case of Dorothy Miller, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Miller, 424 West Hancock avenue, Luxemburg, who died early yesterday after she suffered convulsions, showed that death resulted from a hemorrhage of the brain.

1929 and THE TRUCK BUSINESS

A SURVEY and A PLEDGE by

GENERAL MOTORS TRUCKS

LOOK for giant strides in commercial transportation during 1929.

Look for a tremendously increased use of trucks.

Look for vehicles of increased efficiency—and increased efficiency in their use (two different things).

Look for co-operation more active and intelligent between makers, sellers, and buyers of trucks.

Look for sounder, more profitable buying of trucks.

Look for a beneficial clarifying of knowledge and methods in every phase of transportation by truck.

These developments—and more—are certain. As certain as the seasons and months of the year. There is nothing vague about them. They are as tangible as bankbooks and bank-balances. They are definitely under way, right now. Any man can see them who will.

. . . .

To further this progress the General Motors Truck Company is pledged—with every resource at its command.

Every truck in the complete line this company produces is modern in the strictest sense of the word—and to the fullest extent that modern engineering knowledge can provide. By this we mean that these are vehicles designed, engineered and built to meet modern conditions, with maximum profit to the men who buy and operate them.

Their values share fairly, with buyers, the advantages of unusual facilities and resources, wisely used.

There is no "water" in their prices—no padding of list prices in anticipation of unsound "excess allowances" on trade-ins.

A real work test offer backs every statement made about every General Motors Truck.

And another important development—clarifying the purchase and operation of trucks—will be announced next week.

These are practical advancements in commercial transportation—real progress towards Better Delivery. They are available—and valuable—to every owner and user of trucks. They are sound reasons why it will pay you to find out, first hand, what General Motors Trucks offer, today!

MILLER FORCES ACCEPT NEGROES' HOSPITAL CHOICE

Salisbury Announces Work Will Proceed at Cottage and Whittier Site, Selected by Kiel.

The three-year discussion on choice of location for the proposed $1,200,000 City Hospital for Negroes, which assumed substantial political importance in the mayoralty campaign during the past month, ended abruptly yesterday when Director of Public Welfare Salisbury announced the Miller administration would proceed with work on the location selected during the Kiel administration.

During the closing days of former Mayor Kiel's term the Board of Aldermen had passed an ordinance locating the hospital at Cottage avenue and Whittier street, in a large Negro district. The Miller administration, however, delayed work on the ordinance and unsuccessfully tried to have it rescinded and another passed which would place the Negro hospital adjoining the City Hospital for whites at Fourteenth street and Lafayette avenue.

As a result of its stand, feeling among Negro voters, of whom there are more than 35,000 on the registration books, has been turning against the Miller administration, and politicians have agreed that because of the friendliness of the Kiel administration and the opposition of the Miller regime to the location at Cottage and Whittier, the Negroes were likely to throw the weight of their support to Kiel in the mayoralty primary.

Medical Society Opposed Site.

The first definite indication that that estimate might be correct came recently when ministers and officers of the Negro Methodist churches of the city, representing a membership of more than 10,000 unanimously indorsed Kiel in his race against Mayor Miller for the Republican nomination. At that time it was stated that no mention was made of the City Hospital question in discussion of the mayoralty candidates.

Nevertheless the question of hospital location has been a serious one among Negroes, who contend, since the institution is designed solely for them, that it should be placed in the center of greatest Negro population and that it should be free of possible interference by white City Hospital authorities.

The Miller administration, on the other hand, alligned itself with the Medical Society and the Bureau of Municipal Research, in contending that construction of the Negro institution next to the present hospital wolud result in economic and greater efficiency.

Aldermen Delay Action.

Recently the Board of Aldermen shelved a bill designed to invalidate the former ordinance and place the Negro hospital where the Miller administration wanted it. Fourteen aldermanic places are to be filled at the April election and the delay on the hospital matter was attributed to political necessity.

In announcing that the work of condemnation for the Cottage-Whittier site would proceed at once, Salisbury explained that "we haven't been able to make any progress in the Board of Aldermen and we don't want to delay any longer."

Mayor Miller said: "I have nothing to do with the location of the hospital. The Board of Aldermen does that but in this case they wouldn't do anything. Salisbury is handling the matter now, anyhow."

After the ordinance for the West End location was passed, City Counselor Muench expressed the opinion that it was illegal, contending that the bond issue called for an addition to the existing city hospital. Yesterday, in announcing that he would begin condemnation proceedings at once, he explained that his objection to the ordinance was only "technical."

Court Action to Proceed.

Homer Phillips, attorney for the Colored Citizens Hospital Committee announced he would proceed with the association plan to obtain a writ of mandamus forcing the administration to carry out the ordinance.

"We want to have an order on the court books forcing the administration to proceed," he said. "How othewise shall we be insured against the possibility of a change of heart after election?

"We have little faith in deathbed repentance, nor can we overlook the fact that if the Miller administration had made this decision three and one half years ago we should be using the new hospital instead of sending Negro patients to the antiquated City Hospital No. 2.

"Incidentally, I am somewhat surprised at Mayor Miller's statement that he has nothing to do with the location of the hospital. I recall a public hearing before the Aldermanic Public Welfare Committee in which Mayor Miller was the administration leader in urging a favorable report on the bill for the City Hospital location.

"He seemed at that time to be quite definitely under the impression that he had something to do with the matter."

Protect Health...Increase Comfort ...Save Fuel

SAFEGUARD your family's health and increase their living comfort all year 'round by insulating your house with Celotex.

In old homes and new this remarkable insulating cane board shuts out piercing winter cold and excessive summer heat . . . reduces sickness by guarding your rooms against dampness, chill and draughts.

It lowers fuel bills 25% or more by retarding heat-leakage through walls and roofs.

As a heat-stopper, Celotex is three times as effective as wood, eight times plasterboard, twelve times brick and twenty-five times concrete.

Its effectiveness is proven by the fact that it is used in thousands of refrigerator cars and household refrigerators, as well as in more than 250,000 homes.

COOLER IN SUMMER, WARMER IN WINTER—AND SAVES FUEL
YOUR LOCAL BUILDER

When you buy a house, look for this sign . . . it is your assurance of new home enjoyment and economy, undreamed of by other generations

Celotex is the only insulation made from the long tough fibres of cane. It comes in big, strong boards, 4 feet wide, 7 to 12 feet long and 7/16 inches thick. These boards add structural strength to buildings. They withstand all kinds of weather, make houses more permanent.

Celotex is used for sheathing; for insulating roofs; for lining basements, attics and garages; for making comfortable extra rooms out of waste spaces.

As interior finish Celotex adds new beauty to homes through its natural tan color and delicate fibre texture.

For plasterbase there is Celotex Lath, 18 x 48 inches. It is especially designed to reinforce against plaster cracks and eliminate lath marks . . . to give finer, smoother plastered walls.

Ask your contractor, builder or architect for further information on Celotex—and send in the coupon below for our free booklet.

AUDREY HOFFMANN

Missouri Girl in Health Test

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in Missouri, are being restored to health and strength by the purely vegetable tonic and laxative known as California Fig Syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compete with it as a gentle, but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion.

A Missouri mother, Mrs. C. Hoffman, 1936 Gravois Ave., St. Louis, says: "Audrey is absolutely the picture of health, now, with her ruddy cheeks, bright eyes and plump but graceful little body, and she stands at the top in every health test.

"Much of the credit for her perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since babyhood to keep her bowels active during colds or any children's ailments, and she has always had an easy time with them. She always responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the carton so you'll always get the genuine.

HOOVER SPEECH OPENS HUGE CASCADE TUNNEL

President-Elect Heard on Radio First Time Since His Election.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The voice of Herbert Hoover, for the first time since his election to the presidency, was heard over the radio tonight in connection with the opening of the Cascade tunnel in the Pacific Northwest.

Speaking into a microphone placed in the study of his home on S street, the voice of the President-elect was carried over a coast-to-coast hookup of 37 stations of the National Broadcasting Co. He described the tunnel, which has been constructed through the Cascade Mountains by the Great Northern Railway, as again demonstrating the "progressive character of American industry." The text of his address follows:

"To President Budd, friends in the Cascade Mountains and of the radio audience:

"I am glad to participate in a small way in recognition of a great engineering accomplishment—the completion of the greatest tunnel upon our continent. Perhaps only engineers can appreciate the technical skill, the labor, the courage required for such an undertaking.

Aids Swift Transportation.

"But the opening of a great transportation tunnel is more than an engineering accomplishment. It is a contribution for all time to quickened and cheapened transportation. Through these savings it adds something to the productivity and prosperity of far-flung communties which it serves. In the end it means a mite of contribution to better living of many hundreds of thousands of people.

"Never have we witnessed a more perfect co-ordination of the forces of American industry than in this great job. The miners who have operated the drills, who cleared the rock and built the new tracks during these three years have established a record in construction for their skill, every one of them needs no recommendation in the future other than that they were on the staff of the Cascade Tunnel ,

"President Budd and his fellow engineers who have designed this tunnel and carried it to successful completion have left an enduring monument to their skill and abilities. The great transportation organization which has made it possible by its courage and foresight has demonstrated again the progressive character of American industry.

"This accomplishment is of more moment than the improvement of the Great Northern Railway. It gives every American the satisfaction of confidence in the vitality of our civilization.

"I congratulate you, Mr. Budd, your associates, and our country."

Longest Tunnel in U. S.

The bore, the longest in the United States and the fifth longest in the world, burrowing under the mountain from Scenic, Wash., to Berne, Wash., cuts two hours from East-and-West railroad schedules.

Tonight's ceremony began at 6 o'clock at Berne, the east portal, where special trains bearing delegations from both sides of the State met. There Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern, was introduced by Graham McNamee, radio announcer. After a brief program at Berne, which included the opening of a gate and addresses, the trains consolidated and passed through the tunnel to Scenic, the west portal.

At Scenic the special train crashed through a cloth over the exit to the tunnel, marking the official passage of a locomotive.

The tunnel, built in the record time of three years, cost $14,000,000, and is part of a $25,000,000 development project of the Great Northern in the Cascades.

FORMER ST. LOUIS CONVICT GETS THREE YEARS IN ATLANTA

James R. Taylor Sentenced for Using Mails to Defraud.

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 12.—James R. Taylor, seven-term ex-convict, formerly of St. Louis, was sentenced to three years in Atlanta penitentiary yesterday when he pleaded guilty of using the mails to defraud. He had obtained $635 worth of goods from wholesale houses in St. Louis, Dallas and New Orleans by using the stationery of a reputable merchant in ordering and having the goods sent to himself at another address.

Taylor has served prison terms in five States since 1909 and has used seven aliases. As Robert E. Phillips he was sent to the Missouri penitentiary from St. Louis for forgery and as J. S. Brown served another term there for a similar offense in Shannon County. Nine other counts in the indictment were held in abeyance by Federal Judge Dawkins.

FLYER KILLED BY BLOW OF PROPELLER OF PLANE

T. T. Maroney of Wichita, Kan., Was Starting Machine at Parks Airport on East Side.

T. T. Maroney, a pilot of Wichita, Kan., was killed at Parks Airport, near East St. Louis, yesterday, when struck on the head by the propeller of an airplane he was cranking.

Maroney was starting the motor of a Travel-Air plane, piloted by Ray W. Brown, sales manager for the Travel-Air Manufacturing Co., at 7:40 a. m., preparatory to a flight to Kanass City. As the motor of the plane started Maroney fell forward into the arc of the propeller and was struck on the right side of the head. He died of a fractured skull two hours later at St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis without regaining consciousness.

Maroney complained of feeling ill before cranking the plane, according to Brown, and it is believed he became dizzy from the exertion of turning over the propeller. An inquest will be held at East St. Louis.

Maroney was 49 years old. He was an experienced pilot and a personal friend of Brown, although not connected with the Travel-Air Co. He accompanied Brown on the flight to St. Louis from Wichita Friday. He was one of the first pupils of the Curtis flying school in 1910, and a member of the "Early Birds," an organization of veteran airmen.

Dies After 30 Years With Department Store

—Strauss Photo.

FRANK J. HILL FUNERAL AT 2 P. M. TOMORROW

Manager of Store Department 30 Years was Familiar Figure There.

Funeral services for Frank J. Hill, who became known by sight if not by name to hundreds of St Louisans during the 30 years that he was a first floor department manager at the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney store and the many years that he walked in Forest Park feeding the birds that flocked about him, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Christ Church Cathedral with burial in Valhalla Cemetery.

Mr. Hill, who was 62 years old and lived at the Kingsway Hotel, died Friday at the Jewish Hospital of bronchial pneumonia after a week of illness.

Before taking sick, he had made it a daily morning practice, rain or shine, to walk at least four miles through Forest Park feeding the birds as he tramped along. Most of the motorists who observed him as they drove downtown knew him only as "the bird man."

Born near Lynchburg, Va., he came to St. Louis when 32 years old and remained continuously thereafter with the department store. In his position as a department manager, he probably was known to more men and women of St. Louis than any other department store man.

Mr. Hill is survived by two sisters, Miss Nina Hill of New York City and Mrs. J. H. Lemoine of Baltimore. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Morehead Hill, died five years ago. Associates in business will be pallbearers at the funeral.

ISADORA DUNCAN'S NOTE BOOK WILL, FILED IN NEW YORK

Daughter of Dancer Presents Scribbled Paper Disposing of $25,000 Estate.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—"What about your will?" a friend of Isadora Duncan's asked her on a morning six years ago as she was preparing to take off on an aerial honeymoon to Paris.

The dancer laughed at the idea—and at death. She looked around her Moscow apartment at a circle of friends gathered there. He eyes rested on the poet she had married twelve hours earlier.

"All right" she said, and took a penny notebook from her pocket on the back of which old accounts were scribbled. She scrawled the following in pencil:

"This is my last will and testament.

"In case of my death I leave my entire property to my husband, Serge Yessenin.

"In case of simultaneous death, then such property to go to my brother, Augustine Duncan.

"Written in clear conscience, May 9, 1922—Moscow.

"Isadora Yessenin Duncan."

Three years later she and Yessenin were separated and he committed suicide. The brother is in Germany now—blind. Sept. 14, 1927, the long, crimson shawl of the dancer caught in a wheel of an automobile which she was driving on the Riviera. She was dragged to her death.

Yesterday the note book will was filed for probate in Surrogate Court by her adopted daughter, Irma. The dancer left about $25,000 in real estate in France and the rights to her book, "My Life," published here. She died a Soviet citizen.

INSPECTOR CRITICISES JAILS IN WHICH U. S. BOARDS PRISONERS

Tells House Committee of Food Graft, Kangaroo Courts and Gambling.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Stories of kangaroo courts, gambling games and poor living conditions in county and other jails where Federal prisoners are boarded were related today to the special House committee investigating prisons by J. W. Sanford, an inspector of the Federal Bureau of Efficiency.

Testifying on inspections made of county jails in Covington and Newport, Ky., Toledo, and Bay City, Mich., Sanford said that conditions in them were bad. The witness said the county jails in Troy, O., Saginaw, Mich., Jersey City, and Trenton, N. J., were good.

"County officials are getting wise to Sheriffs on the proposition of boarding prisoners," Sanford said in asserting that the Sheriff at Bay City, Mich., "picked up about $4000" from the sum paid by the Federal Government for subsistence of Federal prisoners.

Sanford said he had been informed that the County Clerk was suing the Sheriff for sums alleged to have been saved from the allowance for the prisoners' food.

KOSSUTH AVENUE WOMAN NOW WALKS SUFFERED WITH SEVERE SCIATICA

Remarkable Recovery Surprised Friends—Gives Credit to Weldona Tablets

Mrs. W. D. Clement, who lives at 2905A Kossuth Ave., is enthusiastic over her recovery from a severe form of sciatic rheumatism, which crippled her so that she was unable to walk. Mrs. Clement said, when asked for a statement: "Life has taken on a new lease for me since I got rid of rheumatism. The pain in my hip was so severe that I had to actually crawl about and use my hands to help me go up or down stairs. After sitting any length of time I would have to have assistance to get up. I could not bend to lace my shoes or pick up anything from the floor.

"I had tried many doctors and treatments but nothing seemed to reach my case until I obtained Weldona tablets. I read about my neighbors who had been cured by Weldona tablets, and I am certainly glad I gave them a trial. After a month's treatment the pain and stiffness left me so that I can not only walk but actually dance. I now do my own housework and am running my sewing machine. Anyone may write or call on me for further information about my recovery if they so desire, and I will be only too glad to tell them some facts which will astonish them."

MRS. W. D. CLEMENT.

$1000 reward to anyone proving this testimonial is not genuine.

Weldona tablets are always put up in a box—never in a bottle. Ask for Weldona tablets, which are recommended for rheumatism and rheumatic conditions only. Weldona tablets are absolutely harmless and will not upset the stomach, affect the heart or any other organ.

The Weldona representative who now meets the public every day at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Av., St. Louis, gladly explains more about this remedy and gives out the 24-page books, entitled "Germs of Rheumatism," which are absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

INTERNATIONAL STOCK TRADING INCREASES

By ARTHUR W. KIDDY.

Copyright by New York Evening Post, Inc.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—After some days of hesitation the market in London temporarily is taking a reassured view concerning the immediate monetary prospects. This does not mean that lower money rates are expected, but since Capel Court started the year contemplating the possibility of an early rise in the Federal Reserve rate and also the rate of the Bank of England basing that view on the simultaneous continuance of the Wall street boom and the dear money rates, together with the German borrowings, and the consequent effect on German exchange.

Much attention is also being given to S. Parker Gilbert's observation in his latest report that the Reichsbank might now logically make Germany's return to the gold standard complete by making Berlin the free gold market both as regards exports and imports. Of course, to complete the reassurance concerning the monetary outlook it is necessary that all apprehension should be removed of any further rise in the money rates in the United States, especially as it is believed that the present strength of American exchange is largely due to various financial deals involving big demands from the United States for sterling remittances.

There is a growing tendency, however, for America to acquire international industrials and pay for or carry them in London. This practice has a double effect of helping sterling and of lessening the financial carried in Wall street.

In fact no feature is more interesting both at the end of last year and the beginning of the present year than the increasing tendency for the revival of the international financial dealings in London and New York in public securities.

Shorter View of Market.

Taking, therefore, a short view of the markets, the present indications suggest a continuance of activity in existing securities, particularly those in which London and New York are mutually interested, and this in turn confirms the end of the year forecast that whatever might be the character of 1929 as a whole, the prospects favored a renewal of the financial activity during the first quarter.

Moreover, this growth of mutual financial interests in London and New York has a good aspect, because with the centers so unitedly steady so much can be done both politically and financially to stimulate international prosperity. Nevertheless, the continuance of English financial activities in face of the depression in the staple industries of the country and the big figures of unemployment produce awkward problems.

These domestic problems will make the position of bankers at the forthcoming annual meetings a difficult one as the city is accustomed at these meetings to expect a complete diagnosis of the present financial and commercial conditions.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"Nearly all the important dealings in the foreign exchange market during the week, were connected with the money conditions in this city. Sterling which had been weak, under selling based on an expected increase in our bank rate was supported after yielding below $4.85, and ranked close to $4.85¼ in the last of the week. Many of the continental rates also declined as a result of the outlook for a change in our bank rate, but did not recover as the support tendered to sterling did not extend to other documents.

"Dutch exchange, which should follow sterling closely, became one of the weakest features, guilders falling from 40.16 to 40.11 and coming close to the record of last year. Swiss was also heavy, especially in the last few days and the action of these two exchanges seemed to foreshadow that there will be a nearby disturbance of the gold position on the continent.

"Italian, which had been supported by the institute in the previous week, when lira cables sold at 5.24 was in steady supply, and receded all through the week, dropping to 5.23¼. French which also had received semi-governmental support a week ago, was heavy although it was assumed that the earmarking of $30,000,000 gold was for account of the French Government.

"Scandinavian exchanges continued a downward movement that started after the beginning of the year and that group was again below parity.

"Japanese exchange was extremely heavy, falling from around 46 cents to close to 45¼ cents for the yen. This decline was the result of heavy offerings of yen here and in London, but no special reason was apparent for the sudden supply.

"The money situation caused increased importance to be attached to the announcement of heavy gold inflow from Canada. The steady selling of heavy gold on Montreal at ¼ per cent discount, made it natural to expect heavy gold shipments. Until the end of the week, only $2,000,000 was known to have been received but it was announced by the Federal Reserve Bank that $23,000,0000 had arrived in this city during the week from Canada.

PRICE MOVEMENTS ARE IRREGULAR ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Extensive week-end readjustment of speculative accounts imparted widespread irregularity to the price movements in today's curb market. Pools succeeded in marking up about a dozen specialties to new high records, but the general list was under selling pressure. Uneasiness over the credit situation was an important factor in the liquidating movement.

Public utilities, which were under heavy accumulation earlier in the week following the announcement that the Morgan interests had organized a holding company for power and light stocks, fell back on heavy realizing sales. Southeastern Power & Light dropped 5 points and American Gas & Electric, American Super Power A, Electric Bond & Share, Empire Power, Mohawk & Hudson Power and United Gas Improvement closed 1 to nearly 4 points lower.

Ford of Canada broke 21 points on a few odd lot sales. A thin market also was apparent for some of the other high-priced specialties, Hercules Powder breaking 20 points, and A. G. Spalding 10. Aluminum Co. of America, controlled by the Mellon interests of Pittsburg, ran up nearly 18 points and retained all but 3 points of its gain.

Trans Lux advanced to a new high record at 10½. Among the other issues to move into new high ground were Imperial Chemical, Westvaco and Williams Oil Heater.

Oils were quiet with price changes mixed. Vacuum moved up to a new top and Buckeye Pipe Line climbed 3¾ points but Gulf of Pennsylvania and most of the Standard Oil issues were heavy.

A brisk demand for Universal Aviation, which advanced more than 2 points to a new high at 22¾, featured the Aviation group. Aviation Corporation of America and Keystone Aircraft were heavy.

GRAINS UP ON SPECIAL CONGRESS PROSPECT

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 12.—The report indicating a special session of Congress probable led to conjecture as to farm legislation possibilities and upturn in grain prices. Wheat here closed 1⅛c to 2½c higher and corn 2c to 2⅞c over previous close. Argentine weather comment was also a factor in corn market.

In the cash grain market Saturday, choice soft wheat was 2 cents higher, but the demand was limited and mostly for selections. There was more No. 2 red offered. No. 3 red of dark caste sold at $1.36. Off grades were in light offering, but there was little demand for anything not sound. Hard wheat was 2c higher. There was a fair demand for blending types and off grades. Offerings were light. Corn was strong and prices advanced ½c to 3c. There was lively competition between local industries and mills on one hand, and shipping buyers for supplies. Elevators furnished some demand, too. Oats were steady to 1c higher, with lower grades showing the most strength and greatest advance. Shippers were the best buyers.

Wheat opened fractionally higher and gained some more in early trade. Liverpool closed ¼d lower on March and ⅛d on May and July. Winnipeg was up ⅝c early. Corn was up a fraction to cent early.

May wheat opened at $1.20⅞; July wheat $1.22; May corn 98½c and July corn 99¼c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 110,600 bushels, compared with 128,800 a week ago and 61,600 a year ago, included 43 cars local and 36 through. Corn receipts, which were 299,600 bushels, compared with 165,200 a week ago and 105,000 a year ago, included 164 cars local and 50 through. Oats receipts, which were 84,000 bushels, compared with 90,000 a week ago and 62,000 a year ago, included 27 cars local and 15 through. Hay receipts were 15 cars local and seven through.

Stocks in St. Louis Public Elevators amounted to 3,352,546 bushels of wheat, 794,008 bushels of corn, and 282,884 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised: 61,393 bu of No. 1 red winter wheat; 349,506 bu. of No. 2 red winter wheat; 592,785 bu. of No. 1 hard winter wheat; 1,265,782 bu of No. 2 hard winter wheat; 66,573 bu of No. 2 yellow corn; 14,267 bu of No. 2 oats; 18,654 bu of No. 2 white oats; 200,210 bu of No. 3 white oats.

WHEAT AND CORN PRICES REFLECT WASHINGTON NEWS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Advances in grain values today went hand in hand with Washington reports that a special session of Congress virtually has been decided upon. There was general buying movement of all grain future deliveries. Corn prices advanced to about 8½ cents a bushel over last week's figures, and wheat more than 8 cents. July delivery of corn crossed to above $1 a bushel, and all deliveries of corn and oats outdid the season's top prices heretofore.

Corn closed strong, 1⅞c to 2½@2⅝c net higher, wheat finished unsettled 1⅛c to 2⅛c up, oats ⅛c to ⅝c advance, and provisions showing 7c to 30c gain.

Wheat also scored sharp upturns. Drouth comment from Argentina was mentioned as one factor. Opening unchanged to ½c higher; corn soon showed decided general gains, with oats following. Wheat started unchanged to ⅝c up and continued to advance fast. Provisions were firmer.

Although definite reports were in circulation today that the door had been closed to farm relief legislation at the present session of Congress, the outlook for quick action on farm measures at a special session appeared to operate as much more than an offset, and all grain advanced early with a rush. Meanwhile the corn market was specially influenced by dispatch referring to the drouth situation in Argentina as very bad, with heavy rains during immediate future practically imperative for the new Argentine corn crop.

In the wheat market today talk was current that the trade had been almost unanimously bearish for six months, and that wheat prices were low as compared to other commodities with farm relief enactments apparently now assured. More speculative buying was said to be coming into the market, and commission house purchases today of wheat future deliveries were more active at times than has been witnessed in a long while.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 12.—Both in volume of leaf sold and in money received by the growers, the week just past was the biggest week of the present season on the Lexington Burley Loose Leaf market. A total of 6,680,260 pounds passed over the breaks of the 20 mammoth warehouses here for an aggregate money consideration of $2,368,760.92, an average of $35.46 a hundred pounds. The season's total sales now stand at 29,827,925 pounds for which the growers have received $9,887,008.95, or an average of $33.48. While the near zero weather today has somewhat slowed up deliveries, it is expected that the floors will be pretty well filled with the weed when the sales reopen Monday, with the prospects of still higher prices prevailing next week.

COTTON MARKET HIGHER IN WEEK-END TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The cotton market was higher today on covering combined with trade and commission house buying on more favorable reports in the southern spot situation and relatively steady Liverpool cables. After selling up to 20.24c or 20 points net higher for March contracts, prices reacted under realizing with March selling off to 20.14c, and closing at that figure. The general market closed steady at net advances of 9 to 12 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 12 to 15 points on the higher cables, and soon showed net gains of 15 to 20 points on the more active positions on reports of a steadier spot basis and better spot demand in the south. There was also comment on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool. January sold up to 20.16c and July to 19.87c, making new high ground for the present movement, and a recovery of about 60 to 64 points from the low level on Monday. The advance was then checked by week-end realizing, while there appeared to be a little Southern selling, but these offerings were absorbed on reactions of some 8 or 10 points from the best, and the market was reopened steady in the late trading.

A number of reports reached here indicated a steadier spot situation, and these advices were considered chiefly responsible for the better tone of the market, some buying was reported on a belief that if raw cotton held steady, an increased business might be expected in cotton goods. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 170,000 bales against 131,000 last year and 213,000 two years ago.

Private cable reported local and continental buying in Liverpool as well as trade calling with a comparative scarcity of contracts and said the demand for cotton cloths in Liverpool was active chiefly for shipment to India and China. There was some buying here during the morning believed to be for continental account, but it was said that Europe was trying to secure spot cotton at the old basis. Private advices from the Southwest reported a better inquiry for spot cotton yesterday than for some weeks past.

BANKS PAY OFF DEBTS AT RESERVE

Week's $275,000,000 Reduction in Rediscounts Strengthens Grounds for Belief That no Action Will Be Taken on Bank Rate.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Fears of an immediate increase in the rediscount rate here were dispelled late this week by the banks' failure to act and by the Reserve system's weekly statement. A downward drifting movement in stocks was checked when it became apparent that no change was pending in reserve policy. Whether or not an increase in the discount rate ultimately will come depends partly on the market itself but the week's $275,000,000 reduction in discounts strengthens the grounds for belief that no action will be taken. What the reserve officials have frowned upon right along was the rapid expansion in member bank borrowings at the regional institutions. In one week all the gains in six weeks have been wiped out until member borrowings now are down to about their Nov. 15 level at $876,000,000.

Reduction in Rediscounts.

"From a banking standpoint the encouraging aspect of this reduction is that it indicates to date a disposition on the part of member banks to use the January currency inflow to pay off debts. That is exactly what reserve officials wanted. Their fear was that instead of seizing the opportunity to cut down borrowings the member banks might be tempted to use the return holiday money as a basis for further credit expansion. Consequently this feature of the weekly reserve system holds out a hope that still further substantial reduction in discounts might come between now and the end of January with the continued currency inflow. While this would strengthen the reserve position there is, of course, always the possibility that the funds may be used in other ways than to pay off debts. Changes in brokers loans during the next few weeks and in the reserve items will be followed with special interest by those who seek light on the trend in money rates after the abnormalities of January have passed.

Gold Drift Watched.

"Conflicting movements still conceal the underlying 1929 drift in gold that everybody seeks. Importation of yellow metal from Canada lately have been heavier than expected but the bullish effects of these gains are offset by continued earmarkings of gold for foreign accounts. Accredition of the metal from our Northern neighbor naturally represent seasonal benefit. The question that puzzles the financial district now is how much gold will be lost through further earmarkings. Differences of opinion still exist on the direction of the gold flow that looms for the new year. Reputations were staked in the recent financial forecasts on predictions both that this country's gold stocks would be heavily replenished this year and that they would suffer further shrinkage. In the final analysis presumably the central banking authorities will have something to say regarding shifts in gold stocks. Their views on gold will change with conditions but at present at least the European banks show no disposition to lose metal to us.

Auto Outlook for 1929.

"Attention has been concentrated in the last week on the automobile show at New York, where a greater interest than ever seems to have been manifest in motor cars. Executives of the leading companies might be expected to speak optimistically, but this year they are not content to make their usual cheerful forecasts. With one mind the industry now expresses the opinion that 1929 will surpass all previous records by a good margin. Ford's return to production and a growing demand for cars from abroad are two potent elements in the situation that give basis for these roseate forecasts. That competition will be sharp in the new year, and reduce the profits of companies that cannot meet it, is plain enough, but sales volume is sought through model and color changes. If growth in the motor industry this year meets expectations it will stimulate growth in the numerous industries related directly or indirectly to it.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET REVIEW

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The steel market is featured largely at this time by the maintenance of a good rate of production. For the year 1928 the ingot output was the largest on record. Automobile and part makers, steel furniture manufacturers and agricultural implement makers are taking considerably heavier steel deliveries. Rail buying, however, has not been active. Prices generally were well maintained with the leader evidently the firmness of steel scrap. Pig iron was steady.

Foreign copper consumers have been making steady purchases thus far this month, the total amount taken during the first third being estimated at 25,000 tons. Buying from domestic sources has been moderate, as most consumers are said to be well supplied for the next few months. Producers are reported optimistic over the prospect for high activity in the automotive industry, building operations and electrical lines are said to be expecting a record consumption this year. Electrolytic continues steady at 16¾ cents delivered in the Connecticut Valley.

Tin trading subsided sharply toward the end of the week and prices reacted fractionally from the early high.

Lead was generally firm, demand was moderate and confined principally to carloads for January shipment.

Zinc was dull and prices were said to have been shaded slightly. Recent consuming purchases were estimated to have covered nearby requirements.

Antimony was without important change either for spot or future shipment.

STOCK PRICES ARE OFF FRACTIONS TO NEARLY 9 POINTS

Disposition to Take Profits Pending a Clearing of the Credit Atmosphere, Shown in Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—There was a widespread disposition to take profits, pending a clearing of the credit atmosphere, on the stock market today, and the majority of issues closed from fractions to nearly 9 points lower.

There were no news developments of a character to precipitate selling, but bulls appeared to become discouraged with the persistent heaviness of the market, and withdrew their support. The further stiffening of call money yesterday after increasing easiness earlier in the week tended to cast a gloom in speculative circles.

The pleasing industrial developments of the month so far seem to have been largely discounted marketwise last month. This is particularly evident in the case of the unexpectedly large increase in U. S. Steel's unfilled orders. While the issue forged ahead for a day after the announcement, it easily turned heavy today and closed about 2 points off. Trade and industrial reviews this week adopted a conservative tone, describing present conditions as fair.

Loan Cut Negligible.

There appears an increasingly earnest desire in banking circles to see a substantial reduction in broker's loans. This week's reduction was almost negligible, and an increase next week, which is regarded as probable if even a moderate bidding up movement develops early in the week, would be regarded as an untoward development, particularly as there is still talk of an increase in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate.

An American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported a moderate gain in copper stocks during December, but stocks are still comparatively low, and higher prices are predicted. Scrap steel prices were advanced at Cincinnati, and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe announced another large equipment order.

Wright Is Feature.

Wright Aero was the outstanding performer of the day's short session, selling off 3 points at one time, up a maximum of 13, and closing with a gain of 10. Otis Elevator mounted more than 3 to a new peak.

Pullman went ahead about 4 points in buying influenced by the impression that the regular $1 quarterly dividend on the old stock was on the new stock, which pays but $1 quarterly. American Sugar mounted more than 3 points on rumor as to what 1928 earnings will run to, and Borden's improved on report of a stock split-up being planned.

Some of the utilities encountered profit taking on their recent advances, but General Gas & Electric "B" moved up nearly 6 points. Most of the coppers were heavy, although Anaconda improved. Automotive shares generally sagged. Studebaker, however, was well supported. Motor Products lost nearly 8 points. Adams Express 9, and Keith-Albee-Orpheum preferred 7.

Steel Is Heavy.

With U. S. Steel, the steel group was largely heavy, Bethlehem, Crucible and Ludlum losing part of yesterday's gain. Vanadium, however, stepped up nearly 2 points. Merchandising shares were heavy, Macy & Co. losing more than 3 points. Radio fluctuated over a point range and closed down more than 3.

Foreign exchanges were steady with the demand rate for sterling down to $4.84 9-16. This revived talk of resumption of the gold movement from London to New York, with the movement from London to Berlin apparently checked with the lowering of the Reichsbanks rediscount rate.

RUBBER TRADE CONTINUES ACTIVE ON EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Trading continued in record volume on the New York Rubber Exchange today, a new high mark of 3790 long tons of crude rubber, valued at more than $2,000,000, changing hands in the first hour. Total sales for the session were 5637½ long tons, a new record.

Prices opened as much as 100 points a pound higher, but profit taking at the close caused declines of about ⅛ to ¼ cent a pound. All seven active deliveries crossed the 21 cents a pound level, however, and December closed at 22.20 cents a pound the highest in months.

Buying represented a continuation of yesterday's wave of speculation by American dealer and commission houses and Far Eastern accounts based on expectations of increased consumption during 1929 in this country.

HIGHER TARIFF ON PLATE GLASS URGED

House Committee Ends Hearings in Earthenware and Glassware Schedules.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — By working overtime, the House Ways and Means Committee considering tariff revision today concluded hearings on the earthenware and glassware schedules and Monday will begin taking testimony on the important metal items, on which more than 100 witnesses have asked to be heard.

More than a score of witnesses paraded before the committee today seeking readjustments, increases and decreases in rates on all kinds of plate and window glass. As in the hearings on the first schedule, importers and manufacturers were found in disagreement. A proposal by J. W. Price of the Benjamin Schottland Vitria Co., Inc., New York, importers of Belgian and Jugo-Slavian glass, for a reduction of approximately 50 per cent in existing duties on various sizes of window glass was followed by a concerted effort on the part of the manufacturers to have the tariffs increased.

H. B. Higgins, of the Pittsburg Plate Glass Co., requested increases on various sizes of plate glass and a definite place in the law for a new laminated glass used for windshields with a rate of 20 cents a pound and 25 per cent ad valorem.

Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee, who cross-examines nearly every witness seeking increases, developed from this witness that his company paid over $22,000,000 in stock dividends in the last 10 years. He then said he could not understand why a company making profits permitting such dividend payments should seek additional tariff protection and asked Higgins to submit to the committee the amount of taxes paid by the stockholders in that period and the total in tax refunds and credits allowed by the Government.

The witness contended that efficiency, not the tariff, had contributed to his company's profits.

Jack Sharkey Signs Contract for Stribling Bout, Feb. 27

ICKARD'S PLANS FOR FIGHT TO BE CARRIED OUT

y the Associated Press.

ACK SHARKEY

The terms provided that Sharkey would be paid $25,000 on Feb. 17, and the remaining $75,000 on the morning of Feb. 27. The contract certified that the referee would be an official acceptable to both Sharkey and Stribling and that his identity would be disclosed by Jack psey at least seven days be- the bout. Other concessions n Sharkey were all traveling hotel expenses for himself and Sharkey, as well as Mr. and . Buckley.

Buckley said he and Sharkey ld arrive in Florida on Feb. 1 would strike their camp at mi, where the Boston fighter nned to train publicly, thereby lecting about $50,000 more, he ured.

Sharkey was not present during negotiations, which were atded by Buckley, his attorney, ey, Jack Dempsey, their attor- Sheldon Fanrbanks, general ager of the Garden, Eddie k, Boston Garden boxing pro- er, and Daniel J. Carroll, man- of Jimmy Maloney, another ton heavyweight.

Carroll was called into the meet- during an early stage when ey and Dempsey were trying to ain Sharkey's services for a figure. ley was adamant and when psey and ey appeared balk at his , he suggest- that they call roll into the ference and ain his con- to match my Maloney inst Stribling their Miami bout. Dempsey and ey refused to consider the sug- ion seriously and finally agreed Buckley's terms for Sharkey.

YOUNG STRIBLING

Both Dempsey and Carey said Stribling already had accept- their terms, 20 per cent of the less the taxes. Both predict- he receipts would exceed $500,-

Dempsey returned to New York in time to board a train for mi Beach, where the former weight champion of the world make arrangements for the arkey, Dempsey said, was for two bouts under the 's promotion. Stribling, he rstood, signed under similar tions. Dempsey said he be- d Tom Heeney and Paulino dun would battle under a like ement and that the winners of two bouts would meet in a elimination match some time June. It was for this latter that the Garden offered each principals a second fight.

Flints Meet Congress.

o of the leading bowling s of the city, the Flints of the City League and the Con- Alley Five, will meet in a 3- match at the Congress at p. m. today.

Wray's Column

Taxing Sports.

THE Board of Aldermen will soon vote on a bill taxing wrestling shows 5 per cent of their gross receipts, thus putting the mat game on an equality with boxing, so far as this city is concerned.

Wrestling, however, will still have the advantage, if the bill becomes a law, inasmuch as they have "three-timed" ring promotion. Boxing clubs pay 5 per cent (or perhaps more) to Legion posts for the privilege of using their names.

The last is because the State law has created a monopoly of boxing promotion in favor of patriotic and charitable organizations.

While we may indorse the opinion that wrestling should be taxed quite as much as boxing, it also seems unfair to both that other professional sports promotions get away with ANNUAL charges of $150. This is true of major league baseball and hockey.

On an Even Basis.

IF the Aldermen desire to be fair, they should wipe out ALL taxes on gate receipts both for wrestling and boxing, and assess each promoter a flat rate of say $150 a year, as is done with other sports promotions.

In good years boxing shows at the Coliseum have totaled between $75,000 and $100,000, which means that the city tax alone amounted to from $3750 to $5000. Contrast this with $150 a year for hockey and baseball!

A boxing promoter would have to give up $15,000 of a $100,000 total receipts to satisfy the three separate attacks of 5 per cent on his "gate."

Certainly this is not an even break, and is not deserved by a sport that has always been given the worst of it.

The European Menace.

IT seems only a question of time until Europe sends over a man who will take back the world's heavyweight ring championship. Once despised as title factors, European ring gladiators today present a fairly formidable front.

While it is improbable at this time that either Paulino of Spain, Con O'Kelly of Ireland, or Max Schmelling of Germany, the outstanding European heavies, will this year take home the crown, a day of reckoning is coming for our big boys.

Tremendous activity in boxing has been created in Europe by the golden prospects held out in America. Literally hundreds of men are reported to be developing in Europe; and when many nations become greatly interested in anything, it is only a question

GENE SARAZEN AGAIN VICTOR IN MIAMI TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI Beach, Fla., Jan. 12.—Gene Sarazen sank a 30-foot putt for an eagle three on the seventy-second hole at the La Gorce course here this afternoon to retain his title in the Miami Beach open championship. Sarazen finished with a 286 total.

George Christ, Davenport, Fla., professional, who had forged ahead of Sarazen on the 16th hole of the final round, dropped to second place when he required five strokes on the last hole. His total was 287, one above the champion's.

Johnny Farrell, national open champion, finished in third position with a score of 292, while George Voigt, New York amateur, and Willie Klein, Miami Beach professional, were tied for fourth place with totals of 293. Harry Hampton, Key West professional, was sixth with 294.

KLEM REVERSES FIRST DECISION; SIGNS CONTRACT FOR 1929 SEASON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—William J. Klem, a National League umpire for 22 years, today signed a contract for his twenty-third season, reconsidering a previously announced decision to retire.

The veteran arbiter said last November at his home in Miami, Fla., that he had umpired his last game and later declared that he was firm in his stand. In conference with President John A. Heydler today, Klem declared that he had not been dissatisfied because of failure to officiate in the world series, but had become tired of his arduous and thankless task through the years.

He felt deeply criticism leveled at him because of a decision in a game between the Cubs and Giants at the Polo Grounds last season when he called Andy Reese out at the plate when the Giant infielder was carrying the winning run home. Klem claimed at the time and insists now that his decision was absolutely correct and "could not have been otherwise."

"The game can ill afford to lose an umpire of Klem's standing, experience, integrity and ability," said the National League president. "I am glad to announce that he will continue with the league. He is too young a man to leave his life work. The league, the players, the fans and the writers all admire Klem for his utterly fearless work and his unique and colorful demeanor on the diamond."

Missouri Beats Nebraska, 30-25

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 12.—In a poor exhibition of basketball here tonight, the University of Missouri quintet defeated the University of Nebraska, 30 to 25. The Tigers led at nearly all stages and stood off a Nebraska rally toward the end by stalling. The Cornhuskers floor work was poor and their bad passes resulted in Missouri getting six setup baskets.

The game was marred by roughness, and Munn, Nebraska's six and a half foot center, was ejected from the game with four personal fouls. The half ended 18 to 12 for Missouri.

ARTHUR EILERS TO HEAD CENTRAL STATES BODY

QUINCY, Ill., Jan. 12.—Arthur Eilers, president of the Municipal Rowing Association of St. Louis and manager of athletics at Washington University, tonight was elected president of the Central States Amateur Rowing Association. Choice of the place for holding the 1929 regatta was left to a committee of three which will report at a meeting in St. Louis Feb. 16.

Sonnenberg, New Mat Champion, Could Be Thrown By Middleweights, Says Former Michigan U. Coach

Man Who Worked Out With Lewis' Conqueror Calls His "Flying Tackle" a Joke.

Although it is a foregone conclusion that his apearence here will be in the nature of an exhibition rather than a match, the showing of Gus Sonnenberg, newly crowned heavyweight wrestling champion, here on Jan. 24, is certain to arouse curiosity among local fans. Promoter Tom Packs has promised to announce Sonnenberg's opponent within a day or two, but it is highly improbable that the interests controlling the new champion will permit him to enter the ring with any but a "friendly" foe.

Sonnenberg's victory over Ed "Strangler" Lewis at Boston recently occasioned some surprise, but not the astonishment that followed the similar conquest of KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12.—Burt McLeod, with his unassisted goal in an overtime period, gave Kansas City's Pla-Mors a 2 to 1 victory tonight over the St. Louis Pucksters.

Both teams played at top form and a 1 to 1 tie sent them into the extra period. With only two minutes left, McLeod started his drive from near center and crashed his way through to find the net.

The first period began fast, with Kansas City doing the greater amount of attacking. Campbell narrowly missed a goal on McCormick's pass and again when Headly hooked Mitchell, stopping what seemed to be a sure goal.

Breen scored for St. Louis with a shot from beyond the blue line, which bounced of Goalie Byrne's stick into the goal. It was a fine shot. The period closed with St. Louis holding its one-point lead, 1 to 0.

McCormick Ties Score.

To open the second period, Joe McCormick did a "solo" that narrowly missed knotting the count. But after three and one-half minutes of the period, McCormick tied the count at one apiece on Dutkowski's pass.

After Kansas City had tied the score the game became furiously fought. The locals forced the play around the Flyer net, giving Goalie Anderson a good night's workout.

The third period also began fast, with Kansas City out to win and St. Louis playing for a tie. Although there were many close shots, no scoring was done, the score being one and one when the overtime began.

The first half of the overtime was scoreless. There being few shots from either sextet. Both were playing for a tie. With but 3 minutes of play left, McLeod scored the goal for the Kansas City win.

Five thousand, a record crowd for Kansas City, attended.

Summary—Score at end of half: Beaumont, 12; Central, 7. Time of Periods: 8 minutes. Officials—Referee: Kamp; Umpire: Smith.

By Harold Tuthill.

Pandemonium broke loose last night when Capt. Bailey sank a field goal from the middle of the Cleveland court, to give Roosevelt a two-point victory over Soldan. The score was 18 to 16. Beaumont opened its league season by defeating Central, 23 to 15, in the other High School League contest on the Beaumont floor. The largest crowd turned out at Cleveland, where about 1200 spectators saw the game.

The score in the Roosevelt-Soldan struggle was tied at six different times during the game. Levy started the scoring for Soldan with a free throw when he was fouled by Dorna, Roosevelt guard. Levy fouled Bailey and the successful free throw knotted the count. Gelber sank a free throw, which represented Soldan's lead at the end of the first period.

While Levy and Gelber were counting from the floor for Soldan, Bailey tossed in his second free throw, making the score 6 to 2, in Soldan's favor. Time was taken while Frazier was assisted off the floor with a twisted knee.

When play was resumed, Kessler scored twice, Bailey, Doran and Levy once, from the field, to make the count at the half 10 to 8 with Roosevelt leading.

Neither side secured a large lead in the second half, the largest margin being held by Soldan in the third quarter, when field goals by Hellmich and Levy, coupled with a free throw by Hellmich, made the score 15 to 11.

Forced to Try Long Shot.

When Vogel and Kessler counted from the field and Kessler made one of his two free throws count, the Rough Riders drew ahead by a single point which was matched by Hellmich's free throw to tie the score at 16-all with less than two minutes to play.

At this point Bailey dribbled the ball to the middle of the play trying to find a break in the Soldan offense. When he found no teammate open he lifted the ball from the side of the center ring and sank the winning basket.

The Rough Riders hung tenaciously to that slim margin while Soldan tried in vain to sink a short shot under Roosevelt's basket. The inability of Soldan to score "setups" throughout the game proved to be its undoing, as most of Roosevelt's successful throws were from the middle of the floor.

Had Soldan's eyes been attuned to the location of Roosevelt's basket there would be a different tale to tell, but the quick guarding of Doran and Bailey prevented many Soldan shots from finding their mark.

Two Share First Place.

Beaumont shares first place with Roosevelt, although the North Enders have scored one less victory than has Roosevelt. Beaumont assumed its position by virtue of its taking the lead against Central last night and never relinquishing it.

With Capt. Weidner, tall Beaumont center and captain, out of the game, Earl Brown was moved from forward to center and proved to be a capable substitute. Brown and Holtman, Beaumont running guard, each counted three times from the floor.

Sibley and Bassman, stellar Central forwards, were unable to evade the Beaumont defense for more than seven points, which is one reason that Beaumont won. Beaumont led at the end of the first quarter, 6 to 2, and again at the end of the third period, 16 to 9.

The standings:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Roosevelt	2	0	1.000
Beaumont	1	0	1.000
Soldan	1	1	.500
Cleveland	0	1	.000
Central	0	2	.000

SOLACE, DESPITE BAD RIDE, WINS DADE HANDICAP

By the Associated Press.

FAIRGROUNDS, New Orleans, Jan. 12.—C. P. Knebelkamp's McGonigle scored his fourth straight victory of the local season when he landed the purse in the Roosevelt Hotel Trophy, a mile gallop for 3-year-olds here today. He carried 112 pounds, conceded weight to his field and won in a drive.

Lillian T probably ran the best. The filly was practically left at the barrier but closed a big gap and was running fastest of all at the end. Upset Lad cut out the pace to the stretch, where he gave way and McGonigle, closing fast, won by half a length. Lillian T took the place by four lengths from Upset Lad.

The Seagram Stable's Solace stamped himself one of the best horses at the track when he led home a good field in the A. B. Dade Memorial Handicap, a mile gallop. He carried 118 pounds and was subjected to a miserable ride by being kept down in the deep going for almost six furlongs. He finally got an opening in the stretch turn and then came to the outside of Dolan. He drew away to win by three lengths. Dolan took the place by six lengths from Duelist.

Blandris in the silks of Mrs. D. L. Keiffer was an easy winner of the first race, paying $24.66 for $2. She was ridden by H. Dellow and at no part of the six-furlong journey was the result ever in doubt. Blandris rushed right to the lead and won by three lengths from Lansquenet, which in turn took the place by a length from Bobby Basil.

F. P. Letellier's Border Chief, showing improvement, won the second event over a mile and one-quarter gallop from Vole, with Old Kid third. Fannie May cut out a very stiff pace for more than seven furlongs, and then ran out. Vole and Old Kid dashed to the front, while Zucchini moved up with Border Chief. In a hard drive Border Chief won by a length from Vole.

WAVERLYS PLAY SLACKS IN E. ST. LOUIS LEAGUE

Second place will be at stake when the Waverlys meet the Slacks in the second game of the East St. Louis Municipal Soccer League's double-header at Jones Park this afternoon. In the first game the league-leading Edgemont Athletic Club should easily defeat the Madison Kennel Club, as the latter has yet to win or tie a game all season, having lost 11 in a row.

Efforts to get a definite decision on last Sunday's game in which Edgemont defeated the Slacks, 1 to 0, after two players—Mac Smith, Edgemont, and "Whitey" Day, Slacks—had been ordered from the field for fighting, but were later allowed to continue. The Waverlys claim a replay should be necessary, as the players were ineligible for further play in the game. The absence from the city of Emmett P. Griffin, chairman of the Central Executive Committee of the Municipal Athletic Association, makes it impossible to get a verdict until tomorrow or Tuesday.

Futurity Winner Second Choice to Win 1929 Derby

ONE of the surprises of the advance wagering on the Kentucky Derby of 1929, developed yesterday when it was disclosed that High Strung, leading money winner among the 2-year-olds of 1928, and winers of two Futurities, was made equal second choice with three other candidates to Blue Larkspur, the favorite.

Tom Kearney, who annually starts the guessing on this event, has figured Blue Larkspur first choice at 8 to 1, despite the fact that he was beaten by High Strung and others late last season.

Roguish Eye, Twink, Clyde Van Dusen are figured second choices at 10 to 1, while the following are 20 to 1: Jack High, Dr. Freeland, Neddie, Beacon Hill, Dial, Ervast, Sun Shadow and Current.

Entries will not close until Feb. 6.

Opening Saturday, May 11, the spring race meeting will continue through Saturday, June 1 Besides the Derby, for 3-year-olds at one mile and a quarter, a number of other important stakes will be decided during the meeting. These are:

Clark Handicap, 3-year olds and upward, $10,000 added, one mile and a sixteenth:

Debutante Stakes, 2-year-old fillies, $5000 added, five furlongs:

Grainger Memorial Handicap, 3-year-olds and upward, $10,000 added, one mile and a quarter.

Bashford Manor Stakes, 2-year-old colts and geldings, $5000 added, five furlongs:

Kentucky Oaks, 3-year-olds fillies, $10,000 added, one mile and a furlong.

The Kentucky Derby and other stakes to be run during the meeting will close to entries Wednesday, Feb. 6.

The Kentucky Derby this year, the fifty-fourth running of this turf classic, appears to be one of the most open races in its history.

Money winning laurels among these Derby aspirants fall to High Strung, owned by Marshall Field, with more than $100,000 to his credit.

Other big money winners in the list include: Jack High, in the stable of G. D. Widener, winner of the Hopeful Stakes, worth $54,000, and H. P. Gardner's Clyde Van Dusen, victor in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, valued at nearly $33,000 net.

Others, less fortunate in the matter of single winnings, yet looming prominently as Derby aspirants, are: J. J. Coughlin's Roguish Eye, E. R. Bradley's Blue Larkspur, Gifford A. Cochran's Healy, Oak Ridge Stable's Chestnut Oak, Greentree Stable's Justinian, Harry Payne Whitney's Zoom, Audley Farm's Soul of Honor, Walter J. Salmon's Dr. Freeland, Loma Stable's Twink, E. B. McLean's Neddie, R. S. Clark's Current and Three D Stock Farm's Double Heart.

Clayton Defeats Webster, 17 to 16

Making good on a free throw with but 15 seconds of the game remaining to be played, Capt. Sanders gave the Clayton team a victory over Webster at Clayton last night by a margin of one point, 17 to 16.

The game was an even battle all the way. Both teams had trouble finding their scoring eyes at the start, but once they began to hit the loop, scores came with regularity. First one team would take the lead, then the other. The score at the end of the half was: Clayton 10, Webster 9.

In the second half the score was tied nearly all the way until right at the close of the contest Sanders got his opportunity and came through.

Hockey game, probably between Winter Garden team and Kauffmans.

Champions and record-holders of Detroit, Chicago and Minneapolis are down to compete with St. Louis stars this afternoon in the fourth annual St. Louis Silver Skates Carnival on Grand Basin, Forest Park. With cold weather, it is certain that the event, twice postponed, will be decided. The carnival is under the auspices of the Missouri Skating Association.

While the open events, in which the visiting skaters will compete, will without a doubt prove the features the Missouri title races have brought out fine fields and should provide plenty of competition.

Joseph Forshaw received the entries of five Chicago skaters for the open events last night. The men coming here are Cornie, Ewartz, Wallace, Donald and Carlson.

A hockey game between the Winter Gardens and Kaufmanns, members of the Commercial Ice Hockey League, has been arranged and will begin about 3 o'clock.

Chief among the outside contestants will be Percy Johnston of Detroit, who won the one-mile and two-mile titles in the meet here a year ago. Johnston is the present Canadian champion and holds world records for the three mile and three-quarter mile distances. He won the Detroit Silver Skates in 1928 and also holds the Detroit indoor championship.

His main competition probably will come from other Detroit skaters in the persons of Lloyd Guenther, Fred Wettelaufer and Arthur Marshall. Melvin Johnson of Minneapolis is another outstanding skater, as is Don Loney. Gordon Heughens will represent Peoria, Ill., in the championships.

However, competition will be confined not only to the men's events, but also to the women. In these races there will be Loretta Nietzel, who holds two world records; as well as Fay Wettelaufer and Rose Marie Brady, both of who have won the Detroit Gold Skates.

St. Louis' leading stars will strive for honors in the State championship races. Among the better known are Adolph Furman, Bob Farrell, Harry Furman and Ralph Prinz. One of the feature races is expected to come in the 220-yard straightaway. St. Louis is the only city in the country able to have a straight course of this distance. With favorable weather and ice conditions, officials are confident that several new records will be established.

Instructions to Skaters.

Contestants are asked to report to the clerk of the course, Ivrin Biel, at 1 o'clock to obtain numbers. Skaters are asked to remain off the ice until they are called and after a race, if they finish, in the money, they must report to the judges. Spectators will be kept off the ice. Three marshals, Sam Kauffman, Ted Young and Oscar Blankenmeister, will aid a corps of local police.

Officials in charge of the competition will be: Julian T. Fitzgerald and G. E. Schmitt, Illinois Skating Association; R. C. Loughran, Michigan Skating Association, and Joe Forshaw, Missouri Association. Harry Riddick will act as starter with J. C. O'Brien, Clarence Henry, Earl Reflow, R. J. Leacock Jr., and F. D. McDonald Jr., timers. Judges at the finish will be: R. M. Gillespie, Maj. M. J. Pickering, Harry Lang, Kurt Moll, Joe Hercules, Hans Wulff, M. A. Hellman, H. W. Ewing, Oscar Schroeter, John Lionberger, Gwynne Evans and John Kelly.

European Soccer Players Learn to Trap and Pass In Gymnasium Practice

Oscar Mossmann, the German-bred referee who is officiating in the St. Louis Soccer League, tells in this series of articles how Central European clubs develop soccer technique for which they have become famous.

No. 3—Method of Training. (Second Night.)

THE second evening's training is almost entirely given to ball control. Preceding each of the various maneuvers, the coach demonstrates to the players what he expects them to accomplish with the ball.

He starts by forming the players in two lines, facing each other, the lines about 50 feet apart, and the players of each line six or eight feet apart. A player in one line throws the ball at the feet of the player opposite. The latter traps the ball, with his right or his left foot as the coach directs, and passes the ball back to the thrower who then throws the ball at his mate, knee high, and the receiving player again traps it. Then the ball is thrown waist high, and again it is trapped ;and then chest high and last, head high. In each case, the receiving player must bring the ball under control, without permitting it to bounce away. The order is then reversed and the thrower becomes the receiver.

Special paragraphs will appear later in this series explaining just how the ball is trapped when the player receives it as described.

The next move is to toss the ball, high, so that the receiver must run three or four steps in one direction or another to trap it. Always, he must kill the flight of the ball, bringing it down dead at his feet.

Next, the players form a circle, with the coach ino the center. He tosses the ball at the feet of a player, who traps it with his right foot and passes immediately with his left foot to his neighbor on the right. The latter, in turn, traps with his right and passes with his left, and the ball is sent around the circle. Suddenly, the coach orders "Reverse" and the ball must be sent in the opposite direction, each man trapping with his left foot and passing with his right. The ball is propelled with the inside of the foot and it must be sent along the floor, straight to the foot of the next player and all very quickly. This practice is designed to develop a very useful trick of receiving the ball and sending a pass away with almost one motion. It is one of the basic moves of the game.

Every soccer player should be "two footed." All exercises for kicking and passing are given first for one foot and then for the other so that the player can do his work equally well with one or the other.

Next—Trapping the Ball.

Maximum of Batting Practice Is Cards' Spring Training Plan

By J. Roy Stockton

If batting practice has anything to do with it, the Cardinals ought to be demons with the wollow next season, for at their spring training camp at Avon Park they will get more swings per man per hour than have ever been possible at previous St. Louis National League camps.

"We will have the smallest crowd in our training camp history," Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager, pointed out yesterday, "and the result will be that no time will be wasted on recruits. At most we will have no more than 27 active players. Ten of those will be pitchers, leaving 17 regular batters. Our batting cages will keep the 17 men pretty busy during batting practice sessions and there will be no chance to blame lack of drill if any of the players fail to develop their best batting eyes after a few days in camp."

Special Practice Pitchers.

Rickey announced that he was preparing a list of minor league pitchers who would be detailed to Camp Cardinal to pitch to the National League champions in batting practice. Last year there were about 25 hurlers in camp, including those on the Cardinal roster. This season there will be at least 10 minor league hurlers. Rickey said he had seven on his list already. The pitchers will be selected from the staffs of Houston and Rochester. Then there will be a few youngsters whose homes are near Florida, who will report to Manager Southworth and make batting practice pitching a chance to show their stuff.

Thus the Cardinal farm system has given the team another advantage over the major league club which has no such subsidiary organizations. In other big league camps the pitching in practice is done by the recruits and by the regular pitchers. The youngsters, trying to make good, frequently throw away their arms. The veterans also are in danger of working too soon and may be injured in the batting practice work.

But the Cardinals are so well equipped that the regular hurlers do not have to worry about throwing in the early days of training. They can tackle the task of conditioning their bodies without worrying about pitching, even in the early exhibition games.

Most of the big league clubs dispense with batting cages, because their pitchers have all they can do in taking care of one squad of hitters. But the Cardinals can install as many cages as their playing field permits and if they need more men to do the throwing they can send a call to Rochester, Syracuse, Fort Smith and Danville and pitchers by the score can be obtained.

Eight or Nine or Ten?

Rickey was asked if the Cardinals would try out John Heydler's proposal for a 10-man team, with the extra player doing the batting for the pitcher.

"No, we are opposed to the 10-man idea," Rickey declared. "We are for an eight-man team and if we find other teams inclined to try out that plan, we will be pleased to test it. Mr. Breadon and I believe baseball would be helped by permitting the pitcher to pass his turn at bat, at the option of his manager. Then, except in cases where the manager deemed it advisable to permit the hurler to bat, there would be only eight batters in the lineup.

"As compared to the 10-man plan, as suggested by President Heydler, I believe the eight-man team alternative would result in a saving to each team in the league of at least $10,000 a year. A rule for a 10-man team would result in wholesale signing of substitutes, players who can hit and nothing else. On the other hand, with an eight-man batting order, the teams would not need so many pinch hitters and therefore not so many substitutes would appear in the game."

LOCAL HANDBALL TEAM DEFEATS MEMPHIS PAIR

The St. Louis handball team of Bob Larmore and I. N. Kessler won their inter-city match at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon and evening, defeating Sam Atcheson and Sam Johnston of Memphis in three of four singles matches and breaking even in the doubles.

In the afternoon Larmore defeated Johnson, 21-17 and 21-10, and in the evening beat the same man, 21-10 and 21-14. Kessler won from Atcheson, 21-19, 21-19, in the afternoon but was defeated in the evening singles, 21-10, 21-14.

The Memphis pair won the afternoon doubles, 3-21, 21-19, 21-19, but Larmore and Kessler triumphed in the evening, 21-12 and 21-17.

Concordia League Schedule.

The schedule of games for this afternoon in the Concordia Lutheran Basketball Association, Bethany Hall, Clay and Natural Bridge, follows: 1:30 p. m., Immanuel vs. St. Andrews; 2:30 p. m., St. Paul vs. Marcus; 3:30 p. m., Bethany vs. Zion.

PETERSON PIN CLASSIC DRAWS BIG ENTRY LIST

Bowler Rolls A Perfect Game Of 320 Pins

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 12.

MOST bowlers are satisfied with a perfect 300 but not Dr. Harold S. Smith of Iowa City. After losing two games with 169 and 158 scores last night, Dr. Smith accepted a proffered handicap of 20 pins. He then scored 12 straight strikes which with the handicap gave him a superior perfect count of 320.

Freddy Krems, one of the leading bowlers of St. Louis, will have a task cut out for him next Saturday and Sunday, when he rolls in the fifth annua Peterson individual classic. Krems will be striving for his fourth successive victory in a tournament of this kind. He's won three, something unheard of in pin circles, and he's already an entrant in the Peterson event.

Krems started on his winning ways in the eight-game competition last season when he won the Peterson classic. He followed with victory in the Wellston classic and only last week was the victor in a competition on the Century Recreation drives. In his victories he has averaged something like 224 for the 24 games. Incidentally, he will be defending honors won a year ago in the Peterson tournament.

He is one of the best pin topplers in the city this season, but he will find plenty of competition. With the tournament still a week away, the 10 squads of 16 bowlers each are practically filled. There's not an opening on the five Sunday night squads, while few vacancies remain for Saturday. There is a possibility that those in charge of the competition will be forced to put on extra squads to take care of the tenpinners who wish to compete.

It will be the first local tournament in which bowling alley owners and employes are barred. The entry fee is $3 with bowling $2 extra.

Plenty of Tournaments.

Following this classic there will be plenty of tournament competition for St. Louis bowlers. There will be the Central Illinois meet at Springfield, Ill., starting Jan. 26. Following this will be the city scratch opening, Feb. 15, then the annual American Bowling Congress at Chicago, opening March 2. And then there also will be the city class championship to follow late in the year. Looks like a big year in real competition for the alley knights of this city.

Too little tournament competition has been the chief cause for failure of St. Louisans in major tournaments heretofore. This should not be the case now.

Cleveland Downs Principia, 22-19

Cleveland High School's basketball team defeated the Principia Junior College team at Principia last night 22 to 19.

At the end of the half Cleveland led 14 to 10 and at the end of the third quarter was ahead 20 to 13. In the fourth quarter Cleveland played defensive basketball, occupying about six of the eight minutes in passing the ball about in their own territory.

But Principia broke through and ran its score up to 19, forcing Cleveland to go to work. The high school team got another field goal and clinched the game.

CONCORDIA FIVE SCORES FIRST VICTORY OF YEAR

By GLEN McDONALD.

The Concordia Seminary basketball team registered its first victory of the season last night when it defeated the Missouri School of Mines in a game played at the St. Louis University gym. The final score was 32 to 18.

Coach Simpson of Concordia changed his lineup and started only one regular, Dobblestein, at running guard. Dau was moved from forward to center and two second string men, Rupprecht and Chuvala, started at the forwards.

Concordia jumped to an early lead and the Miners were at least 10 points behind throughout most of the contest. Captain Tamm of Rolla was hurt early in the first half and after he was carried from the floor the Miners' defense collapsed.

ARMOUR LEADS BY 6 STROKES IN $10,000 TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

WEST LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—Tommy Armour, who fought under the colors of a Scottish regiment during the strife of some 10 years ago, tonight had so decisively "licked" the well-bunkered course of the Riviera Country Club that little doubt remained as to who would be the next Los Angeles open golf champion.

With superb wood shooting, and uncanny iron work, Armour today lengthened his lead over the field of six score professionals and amateurs in the tournament to six strokes. His par crushing 68 for yesterday's 18-hole round, was relegated to the background today when the Washington profesional clubbed his way past yawning sand traps, and over other hazards of the course to a magnificent 67, four strokes under perfect figures.

His amazingly low aggregate of 135 was so far ahead of the field that it was considered doubtful that he would he headed in the final 36-hole drive tomorrow.

A 21-year-old came in for a share of the day's honors when Bob Stupple, registered from the Exmoor Country Club of Chicago, carved another par breaking trail over the difficult Riviera course. Stupple was two strokes under perfect figures with a 69, which with his 72 of yesterday gave him an aggregate of 141, and second place at the end of 36 holes.

The defending titlist, MacDonald Smith, seasoned Scot from the links of Carnoustie, was forced to step aside for the youthful Chicagoan, but stood tonight in third place with 142. Smith, located at the Lakeville Country Club, Great Neck, Long Island, played his usual deliberate, calculating game.

Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., shot 146 and Benny Richter, St. Louis southpaw, barely qualified for the final 36-hole drive with 159. Walter Hagen had 151 and was described as "being all over the course."

Strangler Lewis Lost to a Man Who Has Wrestled Less Than Year

BOSTON.

GUS SONNENBERG, the new heavyweight wrestling champion, has been wrestling as a professional less than a year. His first bout was against Ivan Ludlow in Providence, R. I., one year ago this month and since then he forged steadily onward with only a single defeat to mar his record in 66 matches.

That one black mark was the result of a loss to "Strangler" Lewis last June in the Boston arena, when he dived through the ropes to land head first on the concrete floor, after missing out on a "flying tackle."

On that occasion he was injured so badly that he was forced to default.

It is Sonnenberg's proud boast that never yet has an adversary succeeded in pinning his shoulders to the mat. He is held to be one of the fastest and most powerful wrestlers operating in the sport today. Most of his bouts during his one year on the mat have been in New England.

The flying tackle he seems to have discarded from his repertoire, because of the danger involved in missing connections with his opponent. It is a typical football leap through the air with the idea foremost of having his head come in violent contact with his foe's stomach. In this section the referees apparently have accepted his butting tactics as within the wrestling code because none has disqualified him for its use.

Press comment in Boston does not question the legitimacy of the match in which he won the title, although Lewis has been criticised rather caustically for his failure to make a more determined stand of it when he obviously was in distress from the successive butts aimed at his midriff by Sonnenberg. As is generally known, Lewis was disqualified for stalling outside the ropes after having been butted out of the ring.

Middleweights Could Pin Sonnenberg, Says Coach

Wayne "Big" Munn at Kansas City over the same Lewis four years ago. Billy Sandow, who managed Lewis at the time the "Strangler" lost his world's title to Munn, was also the champion's manager when he lost to Sonnenberg. Munn was later exposed as a joke so far as knowledge of wrestling skill is concerned.

Members of the wrestling fraternity are as close mouthed as the Mafia. Even members of the clique which opposes Sandow hesitate to brand the bout as a fake. "Sonnenberg will not be champion long," is the most extravagant denunciation that can be shaken out of a wrestler.

That the victory of Sonnenberg is somewhat "incongruous," is the opinion of Clifford Thorne, former wrestling coach at University of Michigan, who came into intimate contact with Sonnenberg a couple of years ago.

In an interview published in the Detroit News, Thorne points out many reasons why the bout must arouse suspicion in the mind of one who understands wrestling.

Thorne, who wrestled Frank Gotch three times in handicap matches, bases his doubts on 15 years' experience as a professional wrestler and on certain personal observations of and experiences with Sonnenberg, who has done much of his training with him on the Belle Isle bathing beach where Thorne was chief life-guard and Sonnenberg a guard under his direction.

Sonnenberg depends upon the flying tackle in wrestling and Thorne explains why this flying tackle, which Sonnenberg used to beat Lewis, can not be employed successfully in a wrestling match.

Must Have Forgott—.

"Where was Lewis' stiff-arm stuff, the side-stepping, the low crouch and the numerous other methods that will easily block this football tackle?" Thorne is quoted as asking.

"The first thing a wrestler is taught is to avoid low tackling. In avoiding it the expert wrestler gains the advantage of the upper position. A third-class wrestler can easily avoid the flying tackle.

"Lewis is a big man but fast. He should easily beat Sonnenberg. From all accounts of the match he forgot all the fundamentals of his sport, and must have stood up like a tackling dummy and let Sonnenberg hit him wide open.

Not a Wrestler.

"If Sonnenberg is a wrestler then I don't know anything about wrestling.

"I will guarantee you that I can produce a dozen welter and middleweight wrestlers in Detroit who can throw Sonnenberg. Why, two years ago a Belle Isle bathing beach guard, who weighed only 160 pounds, threw Sonnenberg twice in 10 minutes on the beach in the presence of 50 witnesses.

"I am 43 years old and have not engaged in a wrestling match in several years, but I am still good enough to beat Sonnenberg. He isn't fast enough on his feet. In, fact, his feet are often in the way and it would be an easy matter for even a fair wrestler to throw him.

He Bars Holds.

"I have often pulled and tugged with Sonnenberg. He would 'pull necks' with me any time, but he always warned against the application of holds and if I tried to get one on him he would pull back and refuse to continue.

"Several members of the Providence football team on which Sonnenberg played in the line last season returned to Detroit last month and described some of the matches in which Sonnenberg engaged and which seemed to have amused them highly, even though they were not conversant with the technique of wrestling.

"They told me of one match in which a powerful opponent put a hammerlock on Sonnenberg. That is a hold where the arm of the victim is twisted up his back behind the shoulder blades. Sonnenberg eluded this hold by slowly and impressively forcing his arm down until he finally brought it out in front of him. A hammerlock can't be broken that way; even a boy can keep a man doing it in that manner.

Laugh at Tackle.

"These teammates made particular fun of the flying tackle, with which Sonnenberg had never been able to hurt anybody in foot ball although he has tackled men who weigh 100 pounds less than some of his opponents on the mat whom he drives to apparent agony. Now, in football the ball-carrier is going at high speed. It is difficult for him to shift because of his momentum. He is often hit from behind or from the side by a flying tackle. He frequently is hit without seeing the tackler and with no knowledge of being in danger of being tackled. And still I have heard of few men being knocked out by the impact of the tackle. In view of this it seems ridiculous to believe that a man can be hurt by a flying tackle on the mat. He is stationary and the tackler is coming directly at him from a distance of 15 or 20 feet. Being set for the tackle and seeing the approaching tackler it is the simplest matter in the world for him to side-step the tackle or, if he doesn't want to sidestep the tackle, he has the tackler at his mercy. If he wants to be dirty about it he can easily crack the fellow's forehead by a slight shift of either knee.

"All in all I think you can put down the Sonnenberg flying tackle as the strangest success ever scored in a sport that is packed with strange and even queer phenomena."

Paul Bowser, of Boston, who is acting as Sonnenberg's manager, wired Packs' last night suggesting three men as possible opponents.

"I never heard of two of them," said Packs, "the other was Pat Maguire. I telephoned Promoter Charley Rentrop at Memphis asking for some information about Maguire. 'Yes, he wrestled here. I can beat him myself.' Rentrop answered. If that's the kind of opponents Bowser is going to pick out for the new champion I can't use him in St. Louis. I wired him to that effect and expect a reply tomorrow I'm sure they will agree to another man."

Mrs. Bostleman Wins Tourney

Mrs. P. Bostleman, shooting a scratch total of 789 for four games, won the individual handicap bowling tournament at the Congress alleys last night. She received a handicap of 88 pins, which enabled her to win over Mrs. Myrtle Schulte, who also had a scratch total of 789 but received only 73 pins handicap. The handicap totals were 877, as compared with 859. Mrs. H. Peters was third.

CHICAGO GIRLS WIN, 17-15, FROM BACHELOR FIVE

Scoring a basket and a free throw in an extra period, after the game had ended at 14-14, the girls' basketball team of the Jewish People's Institute of Chicago defeated the Bachelors, last year St. Louis Municipal champions, 17 to 15, last night at the Armory before about 750 spectators.

Leah Nolan of the Bachelors shot a basket just as the extra period closed that would have tied the score, but she was called for taking too many steps and the basket was not allowed. Rae Levin of the Chicago team was high scorer with seven points.

In a preliminary game, Crystal City girls trounced the Concordias of the Turner League, 34 to 15. Marie Madison of Crystal City was the outstanding player, scoring 18 points.

The Jewish People's Institute team will meet the Schenbergs this afternoon at the Armory in a game starting at 2:30 o'clock.

St. Louis U High Five Wins From Western 24 to 17

ALTON, Ill., Jan. 12.—Showing superior basket shooting ability St. Louis U. High School defeated the Western M. A. basketball team here today in the first contest of the St. Louis Preparatory League season, 24 to 17. St. Louis staged a rally in the fourth quarter and took a lead the Cadets could not overcome.

For three periods the team battled on even terms. St. Louis was in front at the half 13 to 11, and at the end of the third period was leading 16 to 15, but in the final period the Junior Billiken rolled up eight points while the cadets could count but two, both on free throws.

Cullen and Connors were the stars for St. Louis with three field goals and three free throws each for nine points.

Hesley and Bruno featured Western's offensive play, the former scoring six points and the latter five. Western used eight men in an effort to find a winning combination, but the St. Louis defense stopped most of the rushes at the basket.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team journeyed to Dupo, Ill., last night and scored an easy victory, 73 to 13. Concoran and Moffat being the high scorers. The Y. M. C. A. swimming team defeated Cleveland High School in a dual meet, 44 to 15. Ernest was high with 10½ points.

BIG THING IN PITCHING IS KEEPING BATTER OFF BALANCE, SAYS RUTH

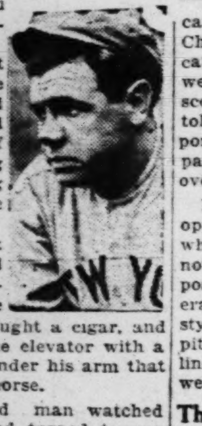
CHAPTER IV

ONE day in the summer of 1927 I happened to be standing by the news stand in the hotel lobby in Detroit when Urban Shocker came along.

He stopped to kid with me a bit, then turned to the attendant.

"Got any Chicago papers? he asked.

The attendant handed him two papers.



"That all you got?" Shock persisted.

The attendant pulled out three or four more and finally furnished a complete set of all the morning and evening sheets for the day.

Shocker took them, then asked for Cleveland papers as well. He got these, too, bought a cigar, and walked toward the elevator with a stack of papers under his arm that would choke a horse.

The news stand man watched him curiously, and turned to me when Shocker finally had disappeared.

"There's a funny guy," he commented. "Every day that egg is in town he comes over and buys newspapers from other towns. And he doesn't want just one—he wants 'em all. Wonder what he does with 'em?"

"Maybe he's saving them to paper his garage," I suggested, and the news stand man laughed and forgot.

Student of Box Score.

AS a matter of fact, I knew all the time what Shock had wanted of the papers. So did the other fellows on the club. Fellows who travel around together on a ball club year after year get to understand each other pretty well. You know each other's little peculiarities, too, and after awhile you learn to know just about what a chap thinks or does or believes. As long as Shocker was with the Yankees he was known as a "newspaper hound."

For Shocker wanted those newspapers for a definite reason. He bought them for a purpose, and this is it.

Every one of those papers had sports pages which Shock studied carefully. In Detroit he bought Chicago and Cleveland papers because these were the towns where we were to play next, and the box scores of the teams in those towns told him a story. Day after day he pored over the box scores and newspaper accounts like a school kid over a lesson.

He noticed which men on the opposing lineup were hitting and which ones were in a slump. He noted how they went against opposing pitchers—and being a veteran and well acquainted with the styles and types of the various pitchers, he could get a pretty good line on what sort of pitching they were hitting.

The Result of Study.

HERE'S the way he worked:

Suppose we're playing Cleveland in a day or two. Now everyone knows that ordinarily George Burns and Joey Sewell are dangerous hitters, and that Rube Lutzke and some of the other boys were not so hot with the stick. But Shocker, studying the box scores day after day, came around the clubhouse with a different report.

"Well," he'd say, "I notice that Burns went hitless against Zachary the other day. Up three times for a horse-collar. Guess George is having a tough time with slow balls these days." (Zachary, we all know, is a slow ball pitcher). "Quinn beat him, too, a week ago. Maybe we better try George out on slow ones this trip."

Or perhaps he'd call attention to the fact that Lutzke, normally a weak hitter, was having a spurt and was getting a lot of basehits. Perhaps he'd come up with information that Luke Sewell (usually a corking thrower) had been a bit wild on his throws to second base for a few days or it might be some other trick information that he gleaned from the box scores.

But it's all mighty valuable in the daily business of winning ball games.

Finding Opposing Batter's Weak Spot And Pitching to It Brings Success

THE point, of course, is that to become a good pitcher a man must make a close study of opposing batsmen—and Shocker was one of the closest students in the game. Pitching, after all, is about one-third arm work and two-thirds head work and the fellows who stick around longest are the pitchers who let their head take over the burden as much as possible.

Year after year you see pitchers like Alex and Jess Haines and George Uhle and Dutch Ruether and Shocker out there winning ball games. You don't think they still have the fast breaking curve and the hop on their fast one that they once had, do you? No sir! They're getting by on knowledge, making their experience and their observation pay dividends.

Good pitchers realize that every hitter who steps up there at the plate has a "groove." That's a particular spot where he likes to see the ball come. And the pitcher who pitches down the groove—"down his alley," the boys say sometimes—is inviting trouble.

But every batter up there at the plate, no matter who he may be, has a weakness, too. It may be a fast ball inside or a curve ball low and outside. It may be any one of a dozen different things, but the point is that somewhere there's a weak spot, and the good pitcher is always looking for it.

Pennock's Pitching.

HERB PENNOCK is another smart pitcher and one day, riding along on the train, I heard him explain his pitching theory to a lot of young fellows. It was short and simple, but it was 100 per cent correct.

"Get that first one over the plate," Herb advised. "Then, after that, make the hitter swing at his weakness and your own strength!"

What Herb meant was simply this. Every pitcher has one particular ball that he can pitch a little better than anything else in his assortment. Herb's best ball, for instance, is an overhand curve that swishes up to the plate and breaks down and out. Hoyt's best pitch, on the other hand, is a fast ball. If you know anything about fast ball you know that they hop as they reach the batter. Hoyt's fast one is a little different. It doesn't hop, it jumps—that is it rises, and as a result is particularly effective.

Now, the point is this. You watch Hoyt and Herb when they're pitching and get a batter in the hole where he has to hit. Suppose he has two strikes and one ball, for instance; or a three and two count. Or suppose the hit and run is on and the pitcher knows that the batter is going to hit the next one. Right there you'll see Herb coming in with that overhand curve or Waite with his fast one. In other words as long as the hitter is going to swing, and they know it, they'll see to it that he's swinging at the best they have and not at a cripple. That's good pitching judgment.

And by reason of good control they send that "best bet" zipping along the batter's weakness—inside, outside, high or low as the case may be.

Hornsby Hits 'em All.

OF COURSE there are a few hitters like Cobb and Hornsby who have no real weakness. They hit anything, anywhere. One of the best laughs ever enjoyed in baseball was brought about by the young pitcher who walked into the clubhouse one day and announced very seriously that he had been studying the situation and at last had discovered Ty Cobb's weakness.

"Boy, if you have you're a wonder," one of the veterans said. "What do you think it is?"

"Well," the rookie replied, "so near as I can figure it out he has only one real weakness—that's a base on balls!"

When a pitcher faces a hitter of that type, there's only one thing to do. Give him the best you've got, and don't make them too good. If you can make him hit at a bad ball, the chances are he won't hit it squarely. And if he refuses to hit and gets a base on balls it's well to remember Whitey Witt's old wise crack and laugh it off.

Whitey walked over to an opposing pitcher one day after I had walked four times in a row:

"That's the way to pitch," he agreed. "Better four balls for one base than one ball for four bases anytime!"

Smart Pitching.

THE smart pitcher is always trying to make the hitter swing at a bad ball. Fellows like Pennock and Alex can play those corners to the width of a gnat's eyebrow. In all the innings Alex pitched against the Yankees in the 1926 world series I don't believe he threw two balls "down the middle." And when he did the batter was so surprised that he couldn't swing.

And don't think that those corner pitchers don't get on a hitter's nerves after a while. They do. I guess Ive looked over as many bad ones as any man in the business in my day and I know. There's nothing more annoying in the world than to step up there at the plate and watch a pitch come floating up big as a balloon but too close or too far out to hit. You can see that it's going to cut the corner, but you know that if you swing the chances are 75 out of 100 that you'll foul it off, or pop it up or roll one to the infield.

And if you let it go you know durn well it will be called a strike. After watching pitching of that sort through seven or eight innings you reach the state where you'll swing at anything—which, of course, is just what the pitcher wants you to do.

Over-Use of One Delivery Helps Hitters To Learn What a New Pitcher Has

ONE of the hardest things for the inexperienced pitcher to learn is when to take things easy and when to bear down. The greatest success of such pitchers as Matty and Three-Finger Brown was their ability to judge pace — to take things easy when they had a chance, and then have plenty left to bear down when they had to.

You know one strikeout with the bases full and two down is just as valuable as three strikeouts in a row with nobody on and a lot easier. Fans and pitchers new to the game are apt to judge pitching effectiveness by the number of strikeouts and the scarcity of hits in the box score. But the smart pitcher doesn't pay any attention to these things. He takes the slant that it's runs which win ball games and his idea is to keep the hits from coming in the pinches. In my experience I've seen pitchers touched for 10 or 12 hits and still pitch shutouts. And I saw little Emil Levsen of Cleveland hold the Yankees to two hits, and lose his game 2 to 0. Of course the fans think the 12-hit pitcher is lucky, while they moan about Levsen's bad luck.

But the facts of the matter are that one pitcher had something when he needed it, and the other fellow failed after some great pitching, simply because he didn't have the strength left to pull out of a pinch. And after you see things like that happen a dozen times a season you come to the conclusion that good pitching is pitching that prevents runs, regardless of base hits.

Save the "Best Bet."

ANOTHER common fault with young pitchers is that they overwork a certain delivery. Perhaps they have a curve ball that's particularly good, or a fast one. The tendency is to keep using that pitch all the time. And take it from me, if you keep using the same thing long enough the hitters will get wise, no matter how deceptive the delivery may be.

Waite Hoyt has a theory that he advances in all the Yankee confabs. "Let 'em see that good one once in a while just so they will know you have it, then put it back in the case until you need it," is Waite's idea.

Hoyt, as I said before, is a fast ball pitcher. Yet I've seen him go through a whole game and pitch only eight or 10 fast ones in the entire nine innings.

He simply uses that fast one for bait. He shows it to the hitter now and then to let him know that the fast one is still there, then he goes ahead with his curve and half-speed stuff. The hitter gets set for a fast one that never comes, and pops out on half-speeders that catch him off balance. Of course, Waite has to use the fast one every now and then to keep them guessing, but it's the other stuff that really does the business.

After all, successful pitching is pretty much a matter of keeping the hitter off balance. As long as the man at the plate can't get set, he'll never tear the cover off a ball or break any fences in the outfield. That's the reason a slow ball is so effective. There's nothing about a slow ball to fool any one. Most of them don't curve, and a lot of them don't even wobble. But they do throw a hitter off stride.

Bush's Change of Pace.

WHEN Joe Bush was in form, he was one of the great change-of-pace pitchers. Joe threw with four distinct speeds. He had a fast one, a half-speeder, and a couple of varieties of slow pitches. And all thrown with the same motion.

When you'd get set for his fast one he'd cross you up with a slow one; or if you were looking for the slow one the chances are the half-speeder or fast ball would be on you before you could get your bat around. I've seen a lot of curves and a lot of fast ones; I've looked over a lot of trick deliveries of one sort and another and I've hit against pitchers who were supposed to have a lot of stuff.

But after all those years I've about decided that control and a change of pace are the biggest assets a pitcher can have, and curve balls be durned! And I do know this. A curve ball may bother an ordinary hitter, but if a man is a really good hitter it's the old change of pace that causes him more trouble than all the freak deliveries in the world.

The whole secret of a successful change of pace is motion. Good pitchers throw their fast ones and their slow ones with absolutely the same motion. They have to—for hitters and coaches are constantly on the lookout for some little move that will betray the pitch before it comes.

Of all the pitchers in the leagues I don't know one who has a smoother, easier motion than Sam Jones, now with the Washington Senators.

Sam is what we used to call "a motion picture pitcher." His delivery is smooth, easy and graceful and he doesn't vary a bit in anything he throws.

Quinn, the Bluffer.

OLD JACK QUINN of the Athletics is another man who has a delivery that's a pippin. Jack isn't so easy to watch as Sam. He pitches with more jerk and more effort. But as a bluffer he is in a class by himself.

Jack is one of the few remaining spit-ball pitchers. And he bluffs that spitter on every pitch. Yet he doesn't actually throw it once in six times. Simply goes through the motions and then crosses up the hitter with something entirely different.

But to consider the whole thing briefly. After you've learned control you've taken the first step toward pitching.

Now all you've got to do is develop a curve ball, a fast one, and a change of pace.

Learn to mix them up to keep the hitter off balance.

Perfect a motion that's smooth and easy and deceptive.

Study batters, until you know their hitting style, their little peculiarities and their weakness and strength.

Then, after all that, you're ready to start in on the business of pitching.

How Basketball Guard Can Block Two Offensive Men

Herewith is the thirty-first of a series of instructive articles on basketball, written for the Post-Dispatch by C. O. Benson, assistant coach of Washington University. Others will follow.

By C. O. BENSON,

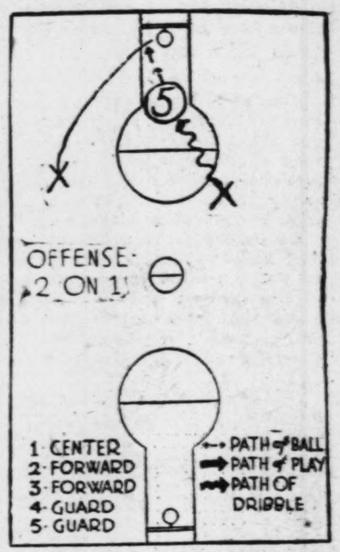
31—TWO MEN ON ONE GUARD.

MANY times during the season two offensive men, one of whom has the ball will be found advancing on one defensive man. The whole responsibility of the defense rests on this one guard. Therefore he has two objectives, first, to prevent an easy attempt to score and second, to retard the offensive men until one of his teammates gets back to help him.

Usually one of the two offensive men will be dribbling. The guard should advance toward him trying to cause him to pick up the dribble and still be ready to go back and guard the other man. As soon as the offensive man picks up the dribble the guard should retreat toward his opponent's basket to prevent a pass to the other offensive man. If the man with the ball hesitates in shooting some other defensive man will have come to the guard's assistance.



If your team is on offense have the men advance down the floor quickly. The man with the ball should drive straight for the guard and force the issue with him. When he is on top of the guard he should pass to his teammate who is under the basket. The success depends on going down the floor full speed when on offense and when on defense to get the offense to slow up their drive.

Next—Offensive Play.

TULSA POINTER WINS ALL-AGE FIELD EVENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 12.—Jake Moran, white and liver colored pointer, owned by C. S. Jones, of Tulsa, handled by "Pete" Dixon, of Big Cabin, Ok., won the all-age stake of the All-American Bird Dog Trials, which closed here today.

Second place was won by the pointer, Eagle Ferris, owned by Dr. H. E. Longsdorf, of Mt. Holly, N. Y., handled by Ed Farrior, of Union Springs, Ala., and third was awarded to the setter Arbu Betty, owned by R. T. Herndon of Detroit, Mich., handled by J. M. Avent, of Hickory Valley, Tenn.

The stake had 41 starters and was one of the outstanding events of the season. Jake Moran, the winner, came as a surprise, but he won his laurels by clean cut, decisive work on game and an exhibition of endurance that surpassed all the other competitors. He found two bevies of birds in the second series and one in the first, without the slightest semblance of a mistake.

A hard-fought basketball game that is not likely to result in a decisive victory in either direction is in prospect tomorrow night when the teams of Washington and St. Louis University will meet on the latter's court in the first contest of the annual city collegiate championship series.

Both teams have creditable records for the season, but comparative scores make St. Louis a slight favorite. Both the bears and Billikens have played Drake, Grinnell and the Kansas Aggies. The Billikens defeated all three, but the Bears were nosed out 30 to 29 by the Aggies, after holding a seven-point lead at the half. The Billikens won from the same team by a 39-22 score.

The Bears, however, are rid of the overconfidence that helped the Aggies to win. A week of hard practice has improved the squad a great deal and especially good work by Theis Lohrding has put the veteran forward back in Don White's starting lineup. Lohrding is not as accurate a shot as Constance, who replaced him, but his clever floor work will make him valuable in covering Ham Strong, the Billiken captain and high point scorer. The rest of the Bear lineup will remain the same as it has been in the last three games with Ed Meyer at the other forward, Joe Hohn at center and Duncan and Capt. Kurz at the guards. Meier, former Roosevelt High School star, will share the center position with Hohn.

Much Depends on Center.

St. Louis University's chances of victory will depend to a considerable extent upon the sort of game that Lyle Drury plays at the center position. The work of the Billiken pivot man in practice has been vastly improved and Coach Mike Nyikos is confident that Drury will be at his best.

No changes in the lineup have been announced by Nyikos. Les Hunt, who missed the last game because of illness, is in fine shape, and Jack Joyce will open at the other guard. Ollie Anderson, who plays a fine game at either guard or forward, will be available for replacements. Strong and Oldfield, the most effective scoring combination at St. Louis U. since the Bradburn brothers left, will play the entire game at the forwards if possible. Strong has scored 72 points in seven games, and Oldfield returned to his best form against the Kansas Aggies to take the high point honors with a total of 19.

Sansone to Box Gill at Coliseum

Mike Sansone, local bantamweight and former Western District amateur champion, has been paired with Mickey Gill of Vancouver, B. C., for a 10-round preliminary on the New Coliseum boxing card featuring Joey Rivers and Benny Bass, featherweight title aspirants, next Friday night.

Negotiations for the bantam attraction were closed by Matchmaker Jack Tippett last night. Gill, who is in training at Hot Springs, will report here Monday to finish his conditioning.

The Vancouver bantam has been fighting professionally for four years and during that time he has chalked up 37 victories. He won amateur honors in Canada before he entered the professional game. In his first year as a professional he fought Jimmy McLarnin three times, winning one bout, losing another and gaining a draw decision in the third.

Prospects of booking Eddie Anderson and Henry Lenard for a 10-rounder were abandoned when Matchmaker Tippett learned that Anderson has accepted an engagement with Lou Terry at Indianapolis next Tuesday night.

Tippett is negotiating with Denver Kid of Kansas City, and Billy Knowles of Peoria, with a view to matching one of these punchers with Joe Ghnouly, the South Side ringster.

WILLIAM MULDOON, Real "Iron Man"

Life Story of the 83-Year-Old Athlete and Trainer

'Hands Off' Policy Followed by Muldoon in Sullivan - Corbett Bout, Which Saw Heavyweight Title Change Hands.

By Ed Van Every,

XXVI.

AS the hour of defeat approached for John L. Sullivan, Muldoon stayed in the background, though he was very much concerned in the incidents that led to the crowning of the new champion. It has already been related how he had been instrumental in making Jim Corbett an outstanding challenger at the expense of Jake Kilrain. On Feb. 16, 1892, two years after the day of the Corbett-Kilrain contest at New Orleans, which had first brought Gentleman Jim into nationwide prominence, Muldoon took quite a hand with William A. Brady in adding to the Corbett prestige through the agency of a rather spectacular appearance in Madison Square Garden, though boxing was then under a legal ban in the State of New York.

Some weeks previous Charley Mitchell had come to this country for the avowed purpose of challenging Sullivan, with whom he had boxed a draw. Upon his arrival there was much talk of a match between Mitchell and Corbett, but while Corbett made an appearance, it was not against Mitchell.

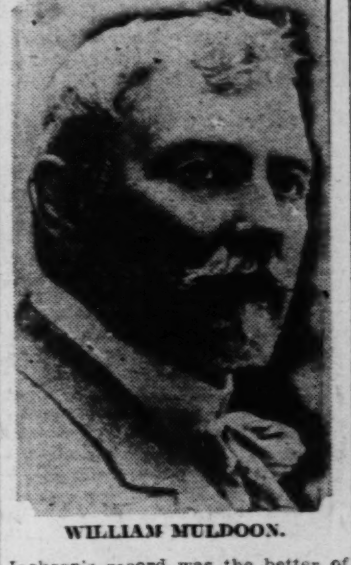
Though the Corbett-Mitchell match scheduled for New York fell through, it had much to do with paving the way for the historic bout between Corbett and Sullivan.

Whether Mitchell was to blame for the Garden match falling through, the fact remains that Corbett adherents succeeded in making it seem as though the Briton had sidestepped the issue, and thereupon Pompadour Jim got himself much valuable publicity by agreeing to take on three men in one night in the place of Mitchell. Two of his opponents went only one round, and the other, who was best of the trio, was fat and out of condition, and Muldoon, the master of ceremonies, awarded the decision to Corbett at the end of the three rounds.

Signed to Meet Sullivan.

VERY soon after the articles of agreement for the Sullivan-Corbett match were entered into in the offices of The World.

Corbett was lucky, to say the least, in getting the preference. He could not be prevailed on to box Peter Jackson a second time, and when the Negro heavyweight followed up the draw with Corbett by knocking out Kilrain's conqueror, Slavin, it must be said that Jackson's record was the better of the two at the time. Corbett, following the Jackson bout, had merely taken part in a few short exhibition engagements, one of them a joke affair with Sullivan of four two-minute rounds which were sparred in evening dress.



WILLIAM MULDOON.

"As for that 61-round contest at San Francisco," says Muldoon, "that was just four wasted hours so far as proving the better man. Jackson went into that match under a severe handicap. About five weeks before the date of the match he was thrown from a buggy, and in addition to being badly cut and bruised he suffered an injury to his ankle and shin of such severity it looked, on my reaching San Francisco as though the match would have to be postponed. A shin wound takes extremely long to heal. Jackson came into the ring with his right leg strapped up in about three yards of bandage. It did not take many rounds before proper blood circulation and freedom of movement had been interfered with and the leg was stiffened. The right leg is the pivot for the boxer's driving power, so the Negro was in a bad way and he fairly hobbled after Corbett; yet Jackson was invariably the aggressor. At the finish Jackson's leg was all but bursting through the bandage from the swelling, and it was a most unpleasant sight; it is almost unbelievable that he could keep going for 61 rounds under the conditions. Every one is entitled to his opinion, and Jim's admirers acclaimed their man as the real victor; my opinion is that the affair would not have gone 61 rounds had Jackson had proper use of his underpinning.

The Speed of Corbett.

"CORBETT was certainly a remarkable athlete at that time. Two incidents reflecting his speed and his self-possession impressed me greatly. In one of the early rounds Jim, who was very much on the retreat, was trapped in a corner and it looked as though Peter had him. But as the Negro moved in and let loose with a punch, Jim jumped past Jackson and was away toward the center of the ring with a taunting, hysterical laugh.

"During another round some one opened a bottle of pop and the cork flew into the ring. Corbett calmly signalled for Peter to cease hostilities and then Jim proceeded nonchalantly to kick the bit of cork out of the ring. There is no doubt that the Negro was impressed by this exhibition of self-possession. Possibly Jackson was the worse punished of the two but he was very much the aggressor in the main. Each was as strong as the other at the finish, which is not saying much. Four hours of jumping about and exchanging blows would fatigue any one. Both were willing to continue, but both were naturally cautious. The affair had grown boresome for a good part of the way, particularly in the final rounds. Still, it was to have been a finish affair and there was much kicking and commenting at the end of the sixty-first round when Hiram Cook, the referee, put a stop to the match and called it a draw."

Within a few months after this contest the affairs of Sullivan took a turn that paved the way for his return to the ring. His play, "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands," had done so well on the road for a time that there was much talk of a new stage venture for John L. Among the Muldoon clippings I find one that, while interesting, would seem to have no other significance than that it appealed to Muldoon's sense of humor. The clipping read as follows:

"Sullivan, advises Jack Barnitt, is preparing a new play for tryout during his trip to Australia. It will bear the title of "61 to '65," and will be, according to Barnitt, something on the order of 'Held by the Enemy,' only greatly superior."

This starring venture did not materialize during the disastrous trip to Australia. Sullivan appeared only in "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands," and it fell very flat during the trip abroad. When John L. returned to this country he was broke, and when heavyweight champions get that way they are always interested in that particular line of endeavor.

Muldoon Sportsmanship.

WHEN the match was closed between Sullivan and Corbett there was much discussion as to who would be selected to take charge of the training of the champion. Muldoon, in view of what he had accomplished in this respect three years previous, would have been an ideal choice. But such a choice was out of question now in view of the bitter feeling that had since developed between the two.

There was even some discussion that Muldoon might lend a hand in the conditioning of the challenger, but the wrestler quickly put a damper on such talk. He said that he would do nothing to hurt the chances of the champion and that he would positively interest himself in no way in this championship match other than to see that the better man should be the winner. In view of the ungrateful treatment he had been handed by the champion it was agreed by the sporting fraternity that Muldoon was acting with commendable sportsmanship.

Muldoon did predict to close friends that Sullivan was due to suffer defeat; but that properly trained he would successfully defend his laurels. But he made it plain that his opinion conveyed no criticism of the manner in which he was being handled by Phil Casey. The latter deserved credit for the way he was going about getting Sullivan into shape under the conditions, but he should have been permitted to take the champion in hand earlier. In his statement for The World, and under his own signature, Muldoon had this to say:

"Sullivan could not have been in shape when he met Corbett or he would have made a better showing. John L., in condition, can always have an equal chance against any pugilist living. . . . It is absurd to say that a pugilist at 34 is too old to do himself justice in the ring."

Never was the sports world so stunned over the defeat of a champion as was the case on the night that saw Sullivan surrender his title of Corbett. Even the furore created on the occasion when Jack Dempsey bowed in defeat to Gene Tunney was mild in comparison. The story handed down of the Irishman who tossed away the morning paper the day after the battle with its account of the downfall of John L. and said he wouldn't believe it until he saw it in the Police Gazette (which would not be out for several days) is hardly an exaggeration.

"The truth came hardest of all to Sullivan," recalls Muldoon. "For there never was a prouder champion. It was like a nightmare to John, and the bitterest moment of all for him came 10 days later, the night of Sept. 17 they gave him a fine testimonial benefit in Madison Square Garden and where he was called on to go through a sparring exhibition with his conqueror.

"Then for the first time since he had won the title Sullivan stood by while another man was being introduced as 'Champion of the World.'"

SCHULZE ELEVEN CAN TAKE LEAD FROM ANGELICAS

Through the action of the Executive Committee, which awarded two protests against the Shreve Club last week, the race for the pennant in Fairground Group 2 of the Municipal Soccer League has grown tighter. On the outcome of today's game between the Angelicas and Schulzes hangs the tale. The Angelicas are leading by one point and therefore will be displaced as leaders if the Schulze team wins.

Manager Andy Fredrick has signed Harry Snyder, halfback, and will give Bonnie Hartigan another chance today. Hartigan was operated on for appendicitis just after the first game of the season. He played about 30 minutes of one game recently without ill effects.

SHELBINA GIRLS WIN, AND BOYS LOSE IN BASKET TWIN BILL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SHELBINA, Mo., Jan. 12.—The Shelbina girls defeated the Macon High girls, 23 to 14, to continue their unbroken string of victories, but the Shelbina boys suffered their first defeat at the hands of Macon boys, 24 to 20. Shelbina girls should rank among the favorites at the State tournament in February.

M'DONNELL AT CENTER FORWARD FOR MADISONS

A new center forward will be introduced at Sportsman's Park this afternoon when Emmett McDonnell, a husky youngster who has been starring at Sherman Park, joins the Madisons. McDonnell has shown steady improvement since his junior days when he played for the Killarney team. He later played center forward for the Palermos and this season joined the Young Men's Hebrew Association team. Phil Kavanaugh, who coaches the Y. M. H. A. team rates McDonnell as one of the best youngsters in the city.

McDonnell's chance to join the Madisons came when Manager Jim Burke failed in his effort to find a substitute for Eddie Flavin who has been out with a leg injury for four weeks. Flavin's condition has shown improvement in the last three or four days.

Eddie Hanson, absent from the Madison lineup for three weeks because of illness, will probably play one-half of today's game against the Ben Millers.

Manager Marre of the Tablers and Tate Brady of the Wellstons yesterday completed a deal whereby Fullback Jim Nolan goes to the Tablers for Phelan. Nolan is eligible for cup play and will be used by the Tablers in their match with the Bricklayers at Chicago Feb. 3. He will not play today since he wants to give his injured knee more rest. John Wiesler of the Russells will play center halfback for the Tablers.

The first game on today's program, between the Ben Millers and Madisons, will start at 2 o'clock, and the second, between the Wellstons and Tablers, at 2:30. Oscar Mossmann will referee.

EVANGELICAL ATHLETIC BODY WANTS MEMBERS

The Evangelical Athletic Association will hold its annual meeting at St. Matthew's Evangelical Sunday School Hall, 3457 South Jefferson avenue, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Any Evangelical church interested in athletics and not already affiliated with an organization is invited to send representatives.

Drama Aplenty for Theatergoers

Theatre Guild Brings Four Plays to the American and the Shubert Has "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

THEATER goers will not be able to complain about any lack of drama in St. Louis this week. Starting tonight "The Trial of Mary Dugan," one of the successes of the season, comes to the Shubert Theater while, tomorrow night, the New York Theater Guild begins a week's stay at the American during which time four plays will be presented.

"Ned McCobb's Daughter" to be given Monday and Thursday evenings is the work of Sidney Howard, a young Californian. It is said to be food for the intellectuals, a charming love story, for those who in spite of our so-called practical age, still delight in the emotional surge, and withal a story of intense heart interest. New York critics acclaimed it "a delightful bootlegging dramatic comedy."

In "The Doctor's Dilemma," George Bernard Shaw turns loose his boundless gift of satire against the medical profession. He attacks what he conceives to be the shortcomings of this science, which, according to Shaw, is much less scientific than the doctors would have us believe. At the same time, he picks up the case of the artist, who, he says, it frequently nearer the truth than the man of the laboratories and clinics. The Shaw opus will be the offering on Tuesday and Saturday evenings.

"The Second Man," to be introduced Wednesday evening, and also at the matinee Saturday, is the work of S. N. Behrman, who, with Kenyon Nickolson, composed "Love Is Like That." It is the story of an irresponsible novelist addicted to luxury, torn between his desire for the things a wealthy widow can bring him and his love for a younger woman. He is about to marry the widow when the other falsely says she is to become the mother of his child. The novelist is prepared to accept the consequences when the girl realizes he does not love her, so she turns to another man.

"John Ferguson," announced for matinee Wednesday and to be repeated Friday night, has in it many familiar situations of the stock melodrama, the mortgage on the old farm, the murder to avenge a girl's honor, the false arrest and the last-act solution of the mystery, but the genius of St. John Ervine is said to have lifted the play far above the commonplace by splendid writing.

IN Bayard Veiller's thrilling play, "The Trial of Mary Dugan," which will be presented at the Shubert-Rialto tonight, you will experience all the thrills of a real murder trial without its usual inconvenience. A beautiful young woman is accused of the murder of the man who has surrounded her with every luxury and who has provided her with the money that would allow her younger brother to complete his legal education, and become a member of the bar.

When the trial begins and the evidence points to Mary Dugan as the guilty one, the boy comes to her aid and then learns of the double life that she has been leading. Disagreeing with the manner in which the lawyer for the defense is conducting the case, the youth undertakes the task of freeing her from the charge, when her counsel withdraws and while all the facts are against her and her reputation is torn to shreds he battles on to finally emerge victorious.

The manner in which "The Trial of Mary Dugan" is presented is most unusual. The curtain is not used. The audience assembles before a stage already set and the curtain already up. The scene is a courtroom and before the action of the play takes place the various characters come and go, the District Attorney and the lawyer for the defense arrive, and prepare to give battle, the newspaper men arrive and the court attendants lounge around awaiting the arrival of the Judge, when the court is called to order and the trial begins. The end of each act comes when the court is adjourned, but the curtain does not descend.

GETTING back to the Theater Guild and the four plays at the American Theater it may be said that it is not the practice of the guild to star an individual member of the company and a lead in one play may be a butler in the next. The records of the players to have roles in the productions to be given here are fairly imposing and should insure excellent performances of the four plays.

Elizabeth Risdon is an English actress and came to this country from London to appear in Shaw's "Fanny's First Play." Miss Risdon has appeared in the original Guild production of "The Silver Cord," "Right You Are If You Think You Are," by Luigo Pirandello, and other plays. She has acted with Otis

Municipal Opera to Open Summer Season on June 4

THE 1929 season of Municipal Opera in Forest Park will open on Monday night, June 4, and will continue for 12 weeks, closing Sunday night, Aug. 25. There will be 12 different productions, each having a premier performance on Monday night and a concluding presentation the following Sunday night. While the repertory has not yet been completed, it is expected that six new operas will be produced next summer, the other half of the season being devoted to the revival of the more popular works of previous years. As far as is practical the choice of the repeat works will be governed by the vote of the guarantors of the Forest Park enterprise at a recent meeting.

A group of the Municipal Opera officials departed for New York this morning to pass on principals for next summer and to engage a new musical director and a new general stage director. David E. Russell, manager for the theater association, has been in New York for a week, assembling principals for inspection by the Cast Committee. It is stated in advance that nothing will be left undone and no expense spared to engage the finest cast that has ever appeared on the stage of the Municipal Theater. Several operetta stars of the first rank will be offered a local engagement.

The first step in preparing for the 1929 season was taken last Thursday morning when enrollment of local singers for the association's chorus training school started at the downtown offices. Registration of chorus school applicants will continue until next Saturday. A week from tomorrow night, Manager Russell and the new stage and musical directors will begin examining the chorus school applicants as to dancing and vocal ability. A week later the school will be organized and instruction started in the requirements of the operas that are to be produced at the Municipal Theater.

The school will meet five nights each week until the first of May when general rehearsals of the first opera production are to begin. Each member of the school will be required to attend three nights weekly. One session will be devoted to vocal training, a second to dance instruction and a third to instruction in general stage work. The vocal and dance classes for boys will occupy two nights each week, and a similar period will be allotted to the girls. The fifth night will be used for a general session for all of the prospective choristers who are admitted to the school.

This year's chorus school and all rehearsals for the opera productions will be held at Rubicam Hall, Grand and Potomac avenue, which has been rented by the Municipal Theater Association. Previously, the association used the Jefferson Memorial Building in Forest Park, but this place was given up recently when the Missouri Historical Society found that it needed the west wing for a proper display of the Lindbergh trophies.

Notwithstanding the deficit that resulted at the close of last summer's Municipal Opera season, and in face of constantly mounting production costs, there will be no change in the prices of admission for next summer's performances at the Municipal Theater.

Mr. Veiller Reveals Himself

Bayard Veiller, a former newspaper man and author of the drama, "The Trial of Mary Dugan," which is at the Shubert Theater this week, also wrote "Within the Law" and "The Thirteenth Chair"—three pronounced successes. In the accompanying article Mr. Veiller tells something of his methods.

AS I have had the good fortune to write three plays that have scored what is known in theatrical parlance as knock-outs, a number of people have been good enough to ask me, or to speculate on their own, about my method of doing it. They have been particularly curious since the success of "The Trial of Mary Dugan," because, coming after an interval of 10 years during which I was supposed to be through, it had something of a shock even to my most ardent admirers—if any.

Not out of modesty, which I regard as the most poverty-stricken of all virtues, but because I do not thoroughly understand myself how it all comes about, I readily give credit for my three hits to three strokes of good fortune. To make the explanation even more satisfactory I believe that the reinforcement of this good fortune by three good managers, three good casts and three good directors, clinched the business.

NEVERTHELESS, I have a definite policy which may have contributed something to the triple occurrence. Many playwrights write for posterity or for that vague dream of something or other, which they call art. It is a noble motive, but the trouble with it in writing for the theater, is that one is liable to get out of focus with the time and the public while serving it. I thnk my soul is as virgin of art as a man's soul can be who earns his living by some form of creative or quasi-creative writing. I do not say this in praise of myself nor do I recommend it to those who want a more intense form of happiness. But I do believe that he who aims at a thing is more likely to hit it than he who shoots an arrow into the air. I aim at the box office.

The box office is a definite target, nor is it so gross and unworthy a goal as some people like to believe. It is true that he who hits it, makes money, but he who makes money is a better and happier man than he who doesn't, and certainly a better and more typical American. He is not so likely to rob a bank or vote twice or oppress his family. But in making an audience, and he gives that audience something in return for its money and something well worth the price. The theater is nothing without an audience; it is the playwright's collaborator and completion.

IN thus aiming for the box office, I obviously aim at an audience. And in aiming at an audience, I aim at its needs and desires in the theater. I do not try to give it what might please it in the library or what is good for its soul. I try to give it what would interest and amuse it while looking and listening to actors on the stage. I, therefore, of course, think of myself as part of that audience, sharing its collective mood and intelligence and its collective motive in hiding from the furies in a theater seat.

I find this—that he who writes for such an audience must also write, usually, not for posterity, not for himself, not even for a generation, but for the minute. He must write the easy and relaxed lingo of the moment. He must not write with too many meanings, because a play is like running water passing a given spot, and a playwright cannot bring his stream back that the audience may look into its depths again at a particular place. He must have plot, because it is movement that the audience has come to see and because movement, sudden, quick, surprising movement is what is most lacking in the everyday lives of the everyday people who come to the theater. This is their magic. He must have the suspense to fix them in their seats with, and action to keep them there.

THE action must justify that suspense. His characters need not be real. It is enough that they are credible in their story. The story need not be real. It is enough that it is credible in the willing interest of the audience. It is amazing to find how many plays written with this credo survive in the memory of those who see them. "Within the Law" may not have been art, but it had a certain vitality. And I believe "The Trial of Mary Dugan" will have the same far from dishonorable fate.

As to my methods of writing, I do not make notes. I compose the play in my head, dialogue and all, and then write it down. Then I devote myself strenuously to the more difficult business of getting a production.

The War Is On Between Local Cinemas

Fox and Skouras Preparing to Wage Battle for Customers on Grand Boulevard Starting Early Next Month.

By NIE.

BY the end of this week the workmen are scheduled to be out of the new Fox Theater and the house will be turned over to the showmen of the Fox organization, who are already here from New York for the final preparations for the opening. So far no date has been announced, but it is almost certain to take place before the middle of next month.

Rival local managers are watching for an announcement of the Fox program of stage shows with keen interest. The Missouri, which has been almost completely redecorated and refurnished to meet the competition of the enemy, is firing the first gun in the battle of stage shows which will take place, and the next few months will find Grand boulevard cinema-goers getting more for their money than they ever dreamed of. How good it will all be is something else again, but everybody is going in for mass production on a grand scale and there will be plenty of talent on hand to make worth-while shows.

The Skourases announced yesterday that they had signed Charles Previn to direct the orchestra and stage shows at the Missouri starting next Saturday. Previn, well known locally through his four seasons with the Municipal Opera in Forest Park, has been at the Roxy Theater in New York —a Fox house—and with the Fox Theater in Brooklyn. It was supposed he would come here with the same organization, but somehow he and Spiros Skouras got together in New York and signed a contract which brings him to the Missouri.

In addition, on the same day that Previn takes over the baton, the Missouri will add a chorus of 30 singers to its stage show, retaining the Missouri Rockets as well. With the musicians in the band show and the special acts this combination will about meet the Fox plan of 100 persons on the stage. Leonardi, the present musical director at the Missouri, is to be retained along with Previn.

THERE is a rumor that Don Albert, former musical director at Loew's, who has been conducting orchestras in Paris since leaving here, will come to the Fox, but there is no definite word to that effect. Roxy, who puts on the big stage offerings at the Roxy Theater in New York, will have a hand in the opening show here at least, but the stage productions at the new Fox are to be under the general direction of S. J. Stebbins, a well known New York producer, who has been staging the performances at the new Fox house in Detroit.

As to pictures, both the Fox and the Missouri will shoot the best they have, and they have been saving up a collection of good ones for the occasion. The customers, who pay the freight, will watch the battle for patronage with interest.

CLARA BOW has been selected as the most popular star in motion pictures, according to figures just compiled by the Exhibitor's Herald and World, a trade publication. The figures are based on a survey of 2700 theaters in the United States, with owners and managers balloting for their favorites. Colleen Moore was second in the actress classification and Lon Chaney was adjudged the best-liked masculine star.

Miss Bow received 255 votes, as against Miss Moore's 132, and Chaney was given 171 votes. In the 1927 survey, Miss Moore topped the red-haired Paramount star.

WITH a heritage of 212 years of stage experience behind him, Thomas Jefferson, veteran actor, has been cast in his first talking motion picture role. He is to play a supporting part in "Close Harmony," an all-dialogue production in which Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Nancy Carroll have the leads.

The acting tradition has come to Jefferson through four generations. Thomas Jefferson started it in 1717 when he appeared with David Garrick in London. Since that time all male members of the family have followed in his footsteps.

For 87 years the part of Rip Van Winkle was played by members of this theatrical family. The present Thomas Jefferson's grandfather was the original Rip. He played the part for 17 years. Then Jefferson's father, the late Joseph Jefferson, played the role 45 years. Jefferson himself played it for 25 years.

Jefferson has varied his experience as a stage actor with appearances in motion pictures. His first screen roles were with the old Biograph company under the direction of D. W. Griffith.

Until he was cast in "Close Har-

Harold Bauer, Pianist, Soloist With Symphony On Friday and Saturday

Will Be Heard in Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto—Molinari to Offer Two Numbers New to America.

HAROLD BAUER, who, since its organization more than a decade ago has been president of the Beethoven Association of America is to be soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its concerts at the Odeon Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of this week, and will play Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto.

Bauer is outstanding among the Beethovenians of the United States, as well as being one of the foremost interpretative pianists in the world. Long a favorite in St. Louis he will be doubly welcome in his appearances here in his presentation of the last of Beethoven's five pianoforte concertos.

Strangely enough it was not as a pianist, but as a concert violinist that Harold Bauer started his musical career. His first tour was in Russia. Alexander III, then Czar, died in the course of that tournee and concerts in the larger cities were impossible. Bauer's manager dispensed with the accompanists and they played small towns. To give variety to the program Bauer played the piano. After that he never could escape the pianoforte.

He is now engaged in his twenty-ninth tour of America and last season besides appearing with success in every section of America his foreign excursions included concert tours in eight European countries.

Bauer launched himself in the United States as a concert pianist in Boston, where he played a Brahms concerto with the Boston Symphony orchestra. Those were days when Brahms was thought "difficult" and "high-brow," and the concert from the standpoint of public applause was not a success, but Bauer kept on playing Brahms and was one of the great influences in popularizing the work of that master in the United States.

The program offers also some interesting modern Italian music, two pieces of Riccardo Zandonai, the "Canzone del Torchio" and the "Cavalcate di Romeo" from his opera, "Romeo and Juliet." The former is a symphonic interlude woven of one of the arias in the opera and the music for a dance of young girls which appears in the development of the operatic story. The Cavalcate is a musical picture of Romeo's ride from Mantua where he is in exile for the killing of Tybalt, back to Verona after he hears the false report of Juliet's death. The two works offered this week will be played for the first time in America.

Besides these the program will offer Sibelius' "The Swan of Tuolena," the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music, and the overture from Verdi's first great operatic success, "Nabucco."

In detail the program is:

Concerto in E Flat (Emperor)..Beethoven
  I. Allegro
  II. Andante cantabile
  III. Minuet and trio. Allegretto
  IV. Finale. Allegro molto

Two excerpts from the opera "Romeo and Juliet"......Zandonai

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.

ETHEL BARRYMORE cackles in print over the cleverness of her brother John in fooling the reporters about his recent divorce from just a minute "Michael Strange."

The truth is that Barrymore is no longer the only Great Lover on the stage and screen. A dozen John Gilberts have arisen to confound him and reporters are not sitting about on his Hollywood lawn with poised pencils to chronicle the latest affairs of his private life.

Stage and screen stars are usually the last to realize that the public is fickle and has many moods. The matinee idol of yesterday doesn't turn a single head today. Mr. Barrymore may still flutter a few hearts, but newer and younger Romeos must also have their day. And Miss Barrymore may, if her recent brief stay on Broadway has not enlightened her, soon learn for herself how fleeting fame is.

It seems the roar about the follies of the younger generation is dimming. Older folk have found the youngsters were not so bad after all. Manners had changed a little and this furnished an idea that youth was skidding to Hades in a hand basket. It is true young girls get together and shake up a few cocktails and that now and then a high school boy puts a handkerchief over his face and holds up a filling station, but there is not a day that some newspaper does not show youth in a new light—something indeed which gives us a little catch in our throat and makes us proud. Lindbergh and Amelia Earhart gave all the grouches a jolt. Some of us old billy goats need to learn chiefly to let youth alone. It will come out all right. It always has.

I never knew but one writing man who carried a pencil and pad as all good writing men should. This one had a most elegant gold pencil and a leather backed book with his name embossed in gold, but somehow I never saw anything he ever wrote in print. I'd be willing to wager nearly all of the great ideas for literature were first scratched down on the backs of old envelopes.

Maybe psychologists could explain a trick of faulty memory. I rarely jot down memoranda, but if I search my mind for a fugitive impression it comes to me instantly if I can lie down and close my eyes. Consequently I spend most of my working day flopping around on a lounge. And even then it doesn't add up much.

I think the most distracting things to writers is a telephone call. To break in on his thoughts with a conversation on some topic entirely different generally spoils the day for those engaged in really serious work. So much so that many novelists have studios away from their homes and without telephone connection.

A Broadway actor was recently an entertainer at Buckingham Palace. He was asked how his stuff got over. "Great," he replied. "The Queen laughed so hard her hat fell off."

They were discussing the worst fights in their lives. One man awakened to find a lion sniffling at his face. Another caught his foot in a railroad frog as a fast express rounded a curve. A third was lurched over the rail of an ocean liner. And the fourth—whose scare seemed the most hair raising of all—was walking along a dark country road when, in passing a lonely grave yard, saw something white slowly rise and come toward him. He stood completely paralyzed otherwise he would have always believed in ghosts. A big sheet of white paper, carried by a vagrant breeze, swirled down at his feet.

There is a young lady in New York with prematurely snow white hair. While crossing a deserted field one night a bat flew in her hair. She was unconscious for a week.

Short shavings: Sinclair Lewis and his bride are living in the Greenwich Village area. . . . Mayor Walker continues to arrive late at all social engagements. . . . There is a well-known gentleman in New York by the name of Oswald Herring. . . . And in Brooklyn is a lady named Lotta Tripe. . . . Ganna Walska has employed a high-powered press agent to exploit her perfumes in America. . . . The orange drink stands keep open all winter selling hot drinks. . . . Al Smith is said to be ready to write his autobiography for $300,000. . . . Who wouldn't? . . . Norman Anthony who made Judge "click" after an army of editorial tinkerers had tried has been made editor of Life. . . . Robert E. Sherwood has resigned. . . . Robert Benchley has not decided. . . . Charles Dana Gibson remains in the saddle. . . . Edna Ferber, Eve La Gallienne, Willa Cather, Kathleen Norris and Mary Garden give their right ages in the current "Who's Who."

Smart hotels are now known by their aristocratic dogs. There has been a complete face about in the matter of permitting canines in the big inns. Ten years ago they were barred. Today well bred and well behaved dogs are permitted in the Ritz, Plaza, Ritz Tower, Savoy Plaza, Sherry Netherland, St. Regis and a half dozen others of the smartest. Hotel men found they were deprived of enormous revenue by the ban. Scores of rich families left hotels for private apartments. Rich Europeans, who are used to taking dogs everywhere, went to boarding houses and finally the hotels realized their blunder. They also found that dog lovers were secretly banded together to ignore dining rooms of hotels where dogs were barred.

"Pop" Concerts To Be Resumed This Afternoon

Molinari Begins His Series of Sunday Programs With Haydn's Symphony as a Feature.

HAYDN'S D Major Symphony (B and H No. 2), Moussorgsky's "A Night on Bald Mountain," the Strauss tone-poem "Death and Transfiguration," and Berlioz' "Rakoczy March" are to make up the symphony program which Bernardino Molinari directs at the Odeon at 3:15 p. m. today to initiate the series of Sunday Popular Concerts which he will conduct here this season.

Haydn composed his D Major symphony for his memorable visit to London in 1794-95. It was first produced at the Salomon concerts at the King's Theater on May 4, 1795, and was announced as a "New Overture." The other major work on the program was Haydn's "Military Symphony," together with which were two concertos, some songs and duets.

The Moussorgsky "A Night on Bald Mountain" was presented by Molinari at last week's regular symphony concert, in the course of which it was an outstanding number because of the vividness of its presentation of a Russian witch's Sabbath. With the Strauss tone-poem "Death and Transfiguration" and the Berlioz "Rakoczy March," the guest conductor brought to a close his first concert pair of the season.

The program in detail this afternoon will be:

Symphony No. 2 in D Major (London)......................Haydn
  I. Adagio. Allegro
  II. Andante.
  III. Minuetto. Allegro. Trio
  IV. Allegro spirituoso
"A Night on Bald Mountain"..Moussorgsky
Tone Poem: "Death and Transfiguration"...............Strauss
"Rakoczy" March, from "The Damnation of Faust"............Berlioz

Church, Jan. 6. During the holidays a club group caroled at the Jefferson Hotel, which was both musically and financially a success. Rehearsals are held every Wednesday morning at the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church.

Skinner, George Arliss and William Gillette.

Peg Entwistle has been with Walter Hampden and the Jewett Repertory Theater, Boston. Her New York debut was made in "The Man from Toronto," and then "Tommy." She was in "The Home Towner," the George M. Cohen play shown in the talking films here lately.

Richard Stevenson, who will be seen here as Babe Callahan in "Ned McCobb's Daughter," the opening play, also as Louis Dubedat in Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma" and Andrew Ferguson in "John Ferguson," is a graduate of Harvard. Mr. Stevenson started in business in Wall Street, and began his stage career with the Jessie Bonstelle Stock Company, now permanently located in Detroit. Mr. Stevenson has long been identified with the New York stage, having played the leading roles in "White Cargo" during its long metropolitan engagement, in Robert Milton's "The Unseen," "Kongo," "Cock Robin" and in Brock Pemberton's "Hotbed." He has been in stock companies here in St. Louis and in Kansas City, and was an aviator during the war.

Warburton Gamble was in the "Strange Interlude" and with Katherine Cornell in "The Letter" and also has been in pictures.

Alan Mowbray is a young English actor. In this country, he has appeared in "These Modern Women," "Sport of Kings," "Creaking Chair," "Wolf, Wolf," "Immoral Isabella" and "The Play's the Thing," during the New York runs.

Edwin Maxwell was born in Ireland and has been on the stage for 32 years. He has played in this country in stock, managed his own company and was in "The Jazz Singer," "The Donovan Affair," "Easy Come—Easy Go," "Merton of the Movies" and many others. He has written several plays.

Brandon Evans has had extensive stock experience and has toured in "The Bat," "The Fool" and with Walker Whiteside.

P. J. Kelly has been a member of Walter Hampden's company in New York and has been with the Irish National Theater in Dublin and has played with Mansfield, Sothern and Marlowe, Margaret Wycherly and Walter Hampden.

Neal Caldwell has been a director of the Cincinnati Art Theater, an actor with the Goodman Art Theater, Chicago, and with the Garden Theater here in St. Louis.

mony" the films had not seen this veteran for some time, however, as upon the death of Frank Bacon he was chosen to play the role of Lightnin' Bill Jones in the stage play "Lightnin'." He played that role continuously for seven years and only made his last appearance in it recently, before coming to Hollywood.

In "Close Harmony," Jefferson will be in familiar atmosphere, as it is a production of stage life based on a story by Elsie Janis and Gene Markey. John Cromwell, trained on the stage, is the director.

EMIL JANNINGS is to have his first real film location trip since coming to Hollywood two years ago to star in American-made pictures.

The European star will leave the film capital for Lake Tahoe in the high Sierras and will work near the mountain resort for a week while scenes of his new picture are taken.

The only approach to locations Jannings has heretofore had in this country were occasional trips to the Paramount ranch, 40 miles north of Hollywood.

"The Way of All Flesh," "The Street of Sin," "The Last Command," "The Patriot," and "Sins of the Fathers" were all made within the gates of the studios, with the exception of a few scenes taken at the ranch in the near vicinity of Hollywood.

Snow is the cause of the European star's first location trip. The locale of his new picture is the Swiss Alps and many of the scenes have to be taken in the snow. The white-capped mountains are also a scenic background necessity for many of the production scenes.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.

THE aftermath of the holidays in Hollywood is a collection of Christmas cards as unique in its way as any other manifestation of life in this film center. Something of the spirit of St. Valentine's day enters into the exchange of greetings. Certainly no one ever received valentines more gorgeous than the Yuletide missives specially designed and executed for some of the stars. And the breezy jocularity of the numerous "spoofing" cards reminds one strongly of the old-fashioned comic valentine.

Among the latter group an outstanding example this year was the map-size caricature from James Cruze and Betty Compson. It depicted in pen-and-ink a sort of bird's eye view of the hospitable Cruze estate northeast of here, with special attention to the bad habits of guests. Every type of thoughtless visitor was represented from the gay athletic girl who leaves her wet bathing suit on the best chair, to the hail-fellow-well-met whose weakness is calling friends on the telephone and urging: "Sure, come on over and bring the gang with you. I'm at Cruze's."

Another caricature, fathered by Pat Dowling of the Christie comedy outfit, was a sort of Rube Goldberg diagram of how talking pictures are made, winding up with the announcement that "our camera talks, sings, gesticulates, rolls over and plays dead, and amplifies to you a Loud and Hearty Merry Christmas."

Colleen Moore mixed humor with sentiment by sending a cartoon photograph of herself in blackface, saying: "If Santa Claus forgets me I sure hope he don't forget you-all, 'cause you-all is suttinly nice."

There were some very formal cards, too, bearing famous names in fuller form that one is accustomed to seeing them in electric lights out in front of the theater. For instance, the severely plain card with white embossed crest, signed "Richard Semler Barthelmess."

Tom Mix sent a pen-and-ink portrait of himself in Western costume, with a gold seal in the lower right-hand corner. Rod LaRocque wrote his greetings boldly in red ink on white bristol-board. Other cards carried etchings of the senders' homes—pictorial reminders of pleasant afternoons and evenings.

An indication of the swiftness with which new developments can alter the whole outlook of the motion picture industry is found in the fact that, while producers practically without exception have "gone talkie" and the industry has been thoroughly upset, the revolution has been so abrupt that only four studios have had time to rush one or more full-length dialog pictures to the screen.

These "first all-talkies" of the various producing organizations have been particularly interesting because each studio approached the problem with a different process of recording of an utterly new technique. Warner Brothers' "Lights of New York" not only was the first 100 per cent dialog feature, but the first feature-length demonstration of the feasibility of synchronizing dialog on a phonograph disk with lip-movements on a strip of film.

Universal's "Melody of Love" was the first feature-length talking picture using the Movietone process of recording dialog photographically on the same film with the action. Paramount's "Interference" was recorded on two films, one for action, the other for sound, and was an outstanding attempt to subdue and refine the new-found voice of the screen. The first Fox feature-length talker, "In Old Arizona," took the new art of the movies out into the open and showed players speaking their lines on a stage as wide as the desert and as high as the sky.

The next organization to present its first full-length talkie will be, according to present schedule, Pathe, which has "The Missing Man" about ready for release. This picture also will be closely watched by those who are following the development of the talking screen, for it is the first feature-length example of dialog reproduction by the Photophone (RCA) process which differs in important respects from any of the others.

Incidentally the new film will mark the first screen appearance of Lee Patrick, the Broadway acress brought here by Pathe several months ago.

There was a time when the picture-makers of Hollywood talked pictures from morning till night. At the slightest provocation they would tell with poetic enthusiasm of their newest pictorial achievements. Now it is music they talk about. The same man who used to exclaim: "What? You haven't heard about the big earthquake scene we just finished?" says now: "Boy, the love song Susie sings in the last reel is a lallapaloosa!"

A tour of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot the other day revealed executives in a state of lyrical enthusiasm over the catchy tunes which are part of "Broadway Melody," the musical movie nearing completion there. Charlie King, the New York musical comedy star, who makes his film debut in this picture singing "You Were Meant for Me," has been signed to a long-term contract—not because he can act, for there are others here who can act; nor because his face screens well, for there are other faces here that screen well; but because he has a singing screen personality that will put over a new song if anything can. Another new tune the picture is expected to popularize is "The Wedding of the Painted Dolls," sung in accompaniment to an elaborate dance number in natural colors.

On the Warner Brothers lot, of course, one expects to meet enthusiastic mentions of the new songs Al Jolson has for his new picture. But then Jolson always was identified in the popular mind with songs. However, on the set where Ramon Novarro is completing a picture begun in the South Seas one learns at once that he has composed a new song for this film. And the latest at FBO, where Gloria Swanson is making "Queen Kelly," is that she will sing several songs in the picture.

Alice White is to be a full-fledged star in 1929 at First National Studios. A new contract with Miss White has just been signed, which insures her starring in four pictures during the coming year. All will be singing, dancing and talking pictures, with a musical comedy flavor.

Miss White, exponent of flaming youth, has progressed rapidly during the two years she has been in motion pictures. She was a script girl two years ago, and got her first contract as the result of a screen test before she had acted for a picture.

Miss White is now making "Hot Stuff," a college story, directed by Mervyn Le Roy. Her next picture on this year's program is "The Broadway Musketeer," from the novel by Jay Gelzer.

Two German Films At Odeon Tonight

"The Nibelungs," a German made motion picture in two parts, "Siegfried" and "Kriemhild's Revenge" will be shown at the Odeon tonight starting at 7:30. Siegfried is the third section of Wagner's "Ring der Nibelungen" and is the picturization of the mythological story of the ancient Norseman, immortalized by Wagner's "Ring."

The Niebelung picture was directed by Fritz Lang from the scenario of Thera von Harbou. The stage sets were designed by Otto Hunte and Hugo Riesenfeld of New York arranged the score. The titles are in English.

At The Play

—By— St. John Ervine

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.

WE were talking, the other afternoon, about plays and players, and someone dropped a remark about the days when actors were great. It seems that we have no players now equal to those who flourished 40 or 50 years ago. Names such as Booth and Salvini were bandied about, and we heard references to Irving and Macready and Bernhardt and Duse. All, all are gone, and nothing is left for show. That, indeed, is the actor's tragedy. When he dies, we who remember him may be as fervent in our praise of his work as we please, but we cannot make those who never saw him realize what an actor he was. If I mention Bernhardt and Rejane and Duse and Ellen Terry to youngsters who are enthralled by Katherine Cornell and Jane Cowl and Ethel Barrymore, will they not, as politely as they can, yawn in my face?

Myself, I think that actors and actresses are remembered for far longer than they are ready to believe. A gracious personality does not so easily die out of the world as we suppose. Ellen Terry had not acted for many years when she died, yet the fragrance of that lovely nature remained in the memory of her faithful public and was communicated to many who had never seen her, except, perhaps, as an old, bent and very adorable woman who sometimes came to see a play and took as much delight in it as a young girl. WAR VETERANS DYING AT RATE OF 1000 A MONTH ly 68,788 on Pension Roll; 13 Widows of War of 1812 on List.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Indicating a death list of about 1000 a month, the Civil War veterans' pension roll stood at 68,788 at the end of 1928, more than 6000 less than the middle of last year.

The present Civil War pension roll is in contrast, the Interior Department said in announcing these figures, with that of 30 years ago, when it reached its high tide of [illegible].

The number of widows of Civil War veterans also has decreased, [illegible] of them being on the pension list at the end of the year, but this was 5000 less than six months ago.

The Spanish-American War veterans are increasing on the rolls, with 173,000, an increase of 10,[illegible] in six months, and 27,000 widows.

Of the other wars, only 13 widows of soldiers of the War of 1812 remain as receiving pensions, while there are 802 widows of Mexican War soldiers. There are [illegible] veterans of the Indian Wars and 3000 widows of these veterans.

The Government finds that soldiers outnumber widows as a whole in pension payments. It was paying on Dec. 31, 1928, pensions to 261,660 soldiers and 218,157 widows. The pensions do not include the benefits paid by the Veterans Bureau of World War veterans or their dependents.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

"She's a Septic!"

Many women want to be, deserve to be, and could be far more popular than is their lot. Doctors know why. So do nurses. They call such cases septics.

To remedy obnoxious body odors and bad breath, you must recognize their cause. The trouble is deep-seated. Frankly in the colon. Semi-constipation makes millions of systems septic. There may be a daily movement, but all the waste is not eliminated. The matter that remains poisons the blood, and permeates the perspiration. It taints the breath. Nature is signaling her need of a little calcium.

Calcium wafers work wonders in one's appearance, too. With the inner system sweet and clean, the complexion clears most marvelously. Eyes brighten. Teeth whiten. The tongue is no longer coated, even on arising. And you never need take another harsh cathartic.

Perhaps you are a septic, and don't know it. Try a tiny wafer of calcium, and see! It may make all the difference in the world. Leave harsh, habit-forming cathartics alone. You never need them if you take an occasional calcium wafer.

TRY THIS THOROUGH TEST
A five-day test will prove to you very conclusively the system's need for calcium compound, and the benefit from these little wafers. Your druggist has them for 10c. Or the family size, 60c. Start this test today!

ASHBURN OUTLINES $10,000,000 PLAN FOR BARGE LINES

Urges $4,000,000 for Mississippi, $3,000,000 Each for Missouri and Illinois Rivers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Detailed plans for the expenditure of $10,000,000 by the Inland Waterways Corporation were outlined today by Major-General T. Q. Ashburn, head of the corporation, before the House Appropriations Committee.

The fund, recommended by the President, has been approved by the committee and will be offered on the floor as an amendment to the War Department supply bill.

Of the amount, Ashburn said, $4,000,000 would be spent on the existing facilities on the upper and lower Mississippi and the Warrior Rivers, and $3,000,000 each on the Missouri and Illinois Rivers. A part of the money was sought for the immediate future with the remainder to become available as needed.

The $4,000,000, Ashburn said, would be used as follows: One additional towboat and equipment for the upper Mississippi, $200,000; a boat for the St. Croix River, $100,000; additional grain facilities at St. Louis, $50,000; terminal improvements at St. Louis, $75,000; conversion of a Shipping Board steamer to a wharf boat at Cairo, $75,000; barges for the lower river, $2,500,000; terminal developments at Mobile, Ala., $50,000; terminal developments at Holt Ala., $50,000; terminal facilities at Birmingport, Ala., $50,000; quarters for employes at Birmingport, Ala., $50,000; grain transfer at Helena, Ark., $75,000.

In addition to these items, Ashburn said, two additional towboats costing $650,000 were needed for the lower Mississippi and there should be more money available for the development of the fleets on the Mississippi, the Missouri and the Warrior Rivers.

The $3,000,000 for the Missouri and Illinois Rivers should be made available as soon as operations became advisable there, he said. The chief of engineers, he explained, reported that the Missouri would be completely navigable by Dec. 31, 1931, and the Illinois River a year later.

FIRE DESTROYS CHURCH OF DR. J. FRANK NORRIS

Evidence of Incendiarism Found After Structure Burns at Fort Worth, Tex.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 12.—Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin early today destroyed the First Baptist Church here of which the Rev. J. Frank Norris, fundamentalist leader and reform crusader, is pastor. A four-story brick Sunday school building and gymnasium adjoining the church also burned.

Investigators uncovered evidences on incendiarism. District Attorney Robert Stewart said a tub which had contained gasoline and water and a five-gallon jug that had contained gasoline were found in the Sunday school building. The jug was in the basement and the tub was on the third floor.

Dr. Norris was in Austin when informed of the fire. The original First Baptist Church, of which Dr. Norris also was the pastor, burned in 1912. He was charged with arson and perjury at the time but was acquitted. He came into the limelight again two years ago when he shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman.

British Ministry Advisor to Speak.

Col. L. W. Harrison of England, medical adviser to the British Ministry of Health, will be the speaker at the twentieth anniversary dinner meeting of the Missouri Social Hygiene Association, Jan. 25, at Hotel Chase.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 673C Marcellus Av., Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

ILLINOIS HAS HABITUAL CRIMINAL ACT LIKE MICHIGAN'S

It Will Be Invoked Against Gunmen, Not Bootleggers, Chicago Police Official Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Illinois has a habitual criminal act, similar to that in force in Michigan, Police Commissioner John Stege announced today, saying it would be used to put gunmen in prison for life. The law, however, will not be employed against liquor law violators.

Instructions were issued to all Detective Bureau squad leaders to round up criminals. An effort will be made to have life terms imposed on all who have been convicted four times.

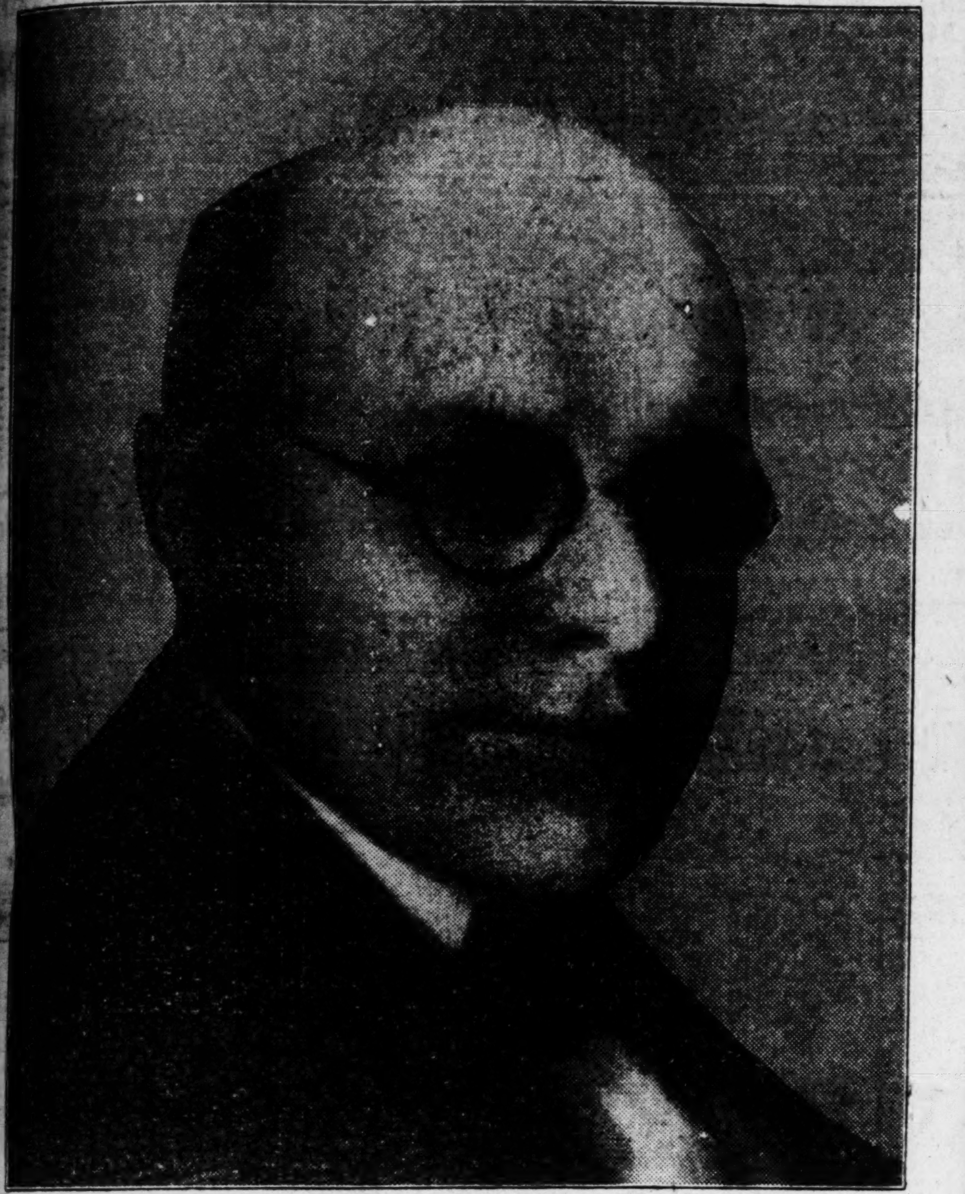
Rupture Button, Amazing Discovery, Brings Ohio Scientist International Fame



WORLD-FAMED RUPTURE SCIENTIST

His remarkable rupture discovery has brought fame in almost every corner of the globe to the Ohio scientist, John G. Homan. His tiny invention, called Magic Dot, really revolutionizes the treatment of rupture. Mr. Homan spent years of research for a way to do away with the cruel, cumbersome cushions, gouging springs, enormous buckles and heavy, soiled leg straps that millions of ruptured people have had to put up with since the dark ages. As stated below, he is now sending his device to ruptured people everywhere free to see in their own homes.

HOME OF MAGIC DOT

This queer little button-shaped device is made in the laboratories of the New Science Institute at Steubenville, Ohio. Here, under the personal supervision of Mr. Homan, ruptured people from all over the United States and many foreign countries are having this System prepared to their personal measurements. Thousands of letters and grateful thanks come to Mr. Homan from ruptured people to whom he has been so instrumental in bringing new happiness. Some of these letters are here reproduced.

Clever Sample FREE if You Mail This Coupon

189 Conn Bldg., Steubenville, Ohio

Send me free samples of Airtex and tell me about the New Magic Dot Rupture System, and how I may get it for free examination in my own home. I am not obligated.

Name ....

Address ....

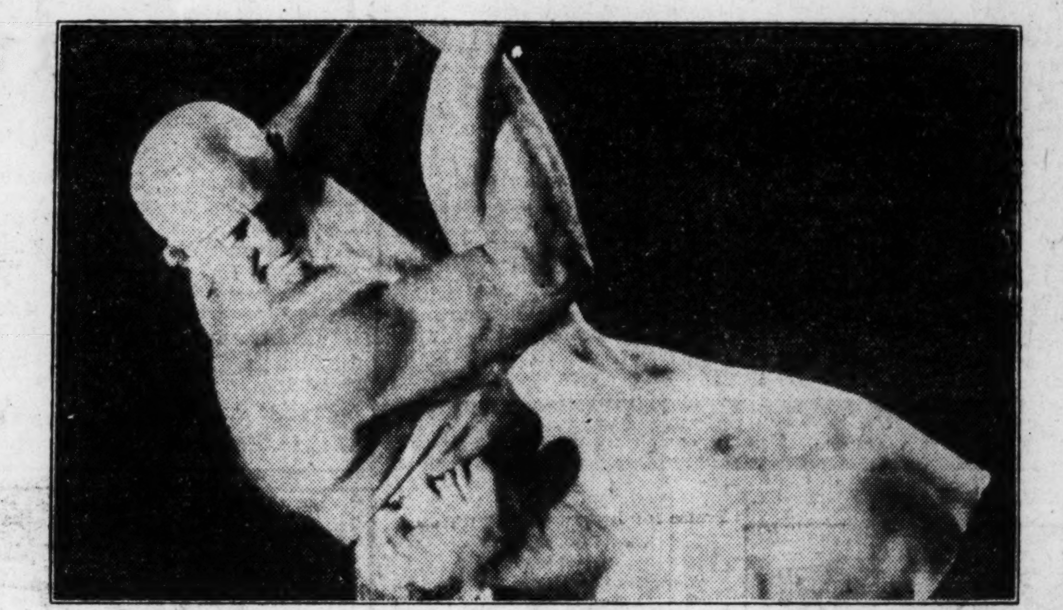
For a limited time in order that ruptured people everywhere may be induced to find out about this revolutionary system, a free sample of Airtex will be sent to those who mail the coupon above. But you should act at once. You will get full details and illustrations of the System. Mr. Homan will also send you a blank which will enable you to secure the device to see, in your home. We urge everyone interested to mail the coupon at once while this offer is being made. Address New Science Institute, 189 Conn Bldg., Steubenville, Ohio.

PHYSICIANS PRAISE MAGIC DOT

Like other physicians, Dr. J. B. Walkinshaw of Wellsburg, West Virginia, praises the Homan invention. After explaining how it worked, he said, "it is a remarkable invention. I have never seen anything before that so sets the stage to help Nature cure a reducible rupture."



RUPTURED WRESTLER THROWS AWAY TRUSS

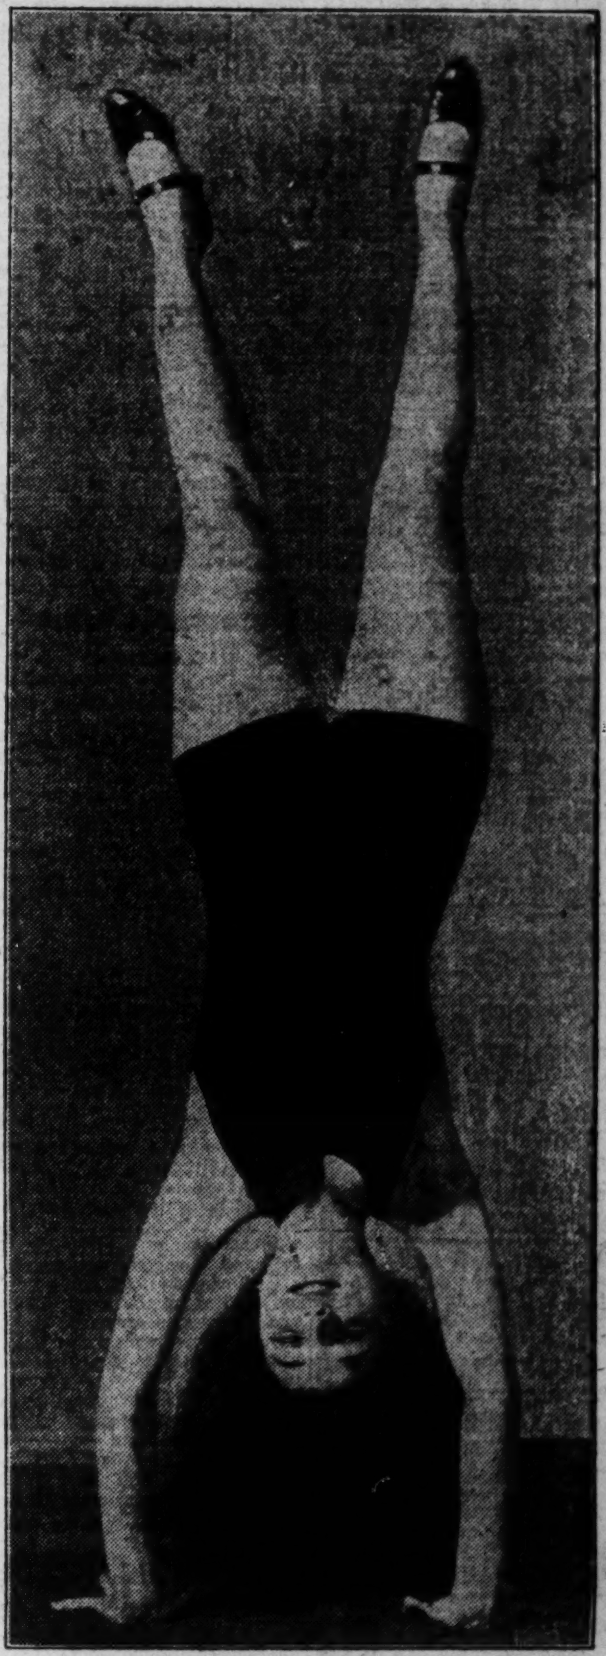
T. B. Cannon of San Bernardino is one of the many ruptured people who highly praise this great new relief. He had tried various types of trusses before he heard about the Magic Dot method. Now he teaches boxing and wrestling. Here is a splendid example that typifies the success with which Magic Dot has met among ruptured people who test it under the most severe conditions. Ruptured people are urged to fill out and send the request blank in the lower left hand corner of this page in order to get full details of the System, and the special free inspection offer now being made by its inventor.

AMAZINGLY TINY

It is almost impossible to conceive that a device so small that it can be concealed by the two fingers of your hand makes it possible to safely retain large and severe hernias. Magic Dot actually weighs less than one twenty-fifth of an ounce. It is certainly strikingly different from the old-fashioned, cumbersome, heavy, ill-fitting, ineffectual devices designed for a similar purpose.

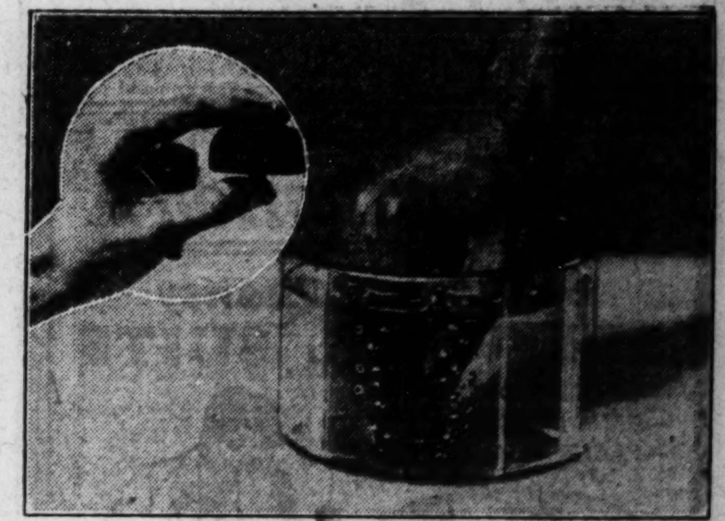
SENT TO RUPTURED FOR FREE EXAMINATION

Here is Mr. Homan's unusual offer. If you will fill out and mail the coupon at the left, he will send you a full description of Magic Dot, Airtex, and his remarkable system. Then, if you wish, you can receive the complete outfit to see in your own home without risking a cent.



RUPTURE CAN'T SLIP

Swimmers, athletes, golfers, people who engage in strenuous exercises or work, praise this new way to retain and heal rupture. It is possible to run, jump, bend in comfort—without the annoyance of wearing bulky, unsightly ham-like cushions or gouging pads. Ruptured people say they now have no hesitancy about moving quickly or sleeping in any position. In the lower left-hand corner of the page is reproduced a form which brings to ruptured people full details of Mr. Homan's invention and his free offer.



BREATHES AIR

Mr. Homan's new System is really a twin invention. Almost as wonderful as Magic Dot is the Airtex "cap" which fits over the rupture and actually "breathes" air. The illustration above, showing the bubbles coming from Airtex immersed in water, demonstrates how it literally breathes with the body. Also, how it is washable and sanitary.

Ruptured Man Rows Across Mississippi

A ruptured St. Louis man tells how he has found relief at last after eighteen years. To prove his freedom from any cruel truss, he rowed a skiff across the Mississippi River two miles upstream against wind and choppy water. But he is only one of thousands reporting the end of rupture torture.

FOR OLD

One man, 80 years old, and who has been ruptured 32 years, reports relief at last from cruel trusses. He says, "I have been trimming the lawn, working on my knees. Magic Dot and Airtex were right in place." Mr. Homan stands ready and willing to send older people the New Science System for free examination to their homes if they will write him.

DANDRUFF
A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy never fails.

CITY GETS $13,900 FROM CIRCUIT CLERK

Surplus From Court Fees Paid to Treasurer by John Schmoll.

A surplus of $13,973 in court fees collected by the Circuit Clerk last year has been paid into the office of the City Treasurer by Circuit Clerk John Schmoll, according to his annual report made public yesterday. The amount represents the balance over the administration expenses of the office for the year, including payment of the clerk's salary of $7500 and salaries of 70 Deputies and other expenses.

The report shows the total amount collected betwen Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1928, to have been $169,-239.80, of which $151,641.17 represents salary expense. In addition, Robert W. Burkham received $2500 for acting as Clerk Schmoll's attorney and Harry W. Sherman, who is not connected with the Clerk's office, received $750 for performing extra service required by the office.

Makes Passport Work Pay.

In the last year the clerk collected $2658.64 in passport fees, a work which was undertaken several years ago at the request of the Federal Government. Until now the issuance of passports has not proved profitable for the clerk, but last year he managed to collect enough from that source to exceed by $273.64 the salary of the deputy assigned to the work.

Since being in office, Schmoll has made it a practice to account to the city for the interest on daily bank balances of the clerk's funds. The report shows he collected $7271.09 interest last year, of which the city is benficiary. According to Schmoll, there is no law requiring him to collect interest on such funds, but he arranged with certain banks to pay 2 per cent in return for the privilege of handling the account. Much of the interest item consists of what was allowed on city condemnation funds deposited with the clerk pending litigation. The condemnation funds do not appear in the general collection total, being kept as a separate account.

In addition to the regular fees collected, the clerk accounted for a total of $56,019.78, to be applied on salaries of the Circuit Judges and court stenographers, and for pay of jurors, which was paid directly by him to the City Treasurer. This fund came from assessments which are taxed as costs in suits and other forms of litigation, and represents only a small part of the salaries of the Judges, stenographers and jurors. The deficit is paid from other funds of the city and State.

Schmoll is the only Circuit Clerk in recent years to pay a substantial surplus to the city. This he has been doing yearly since he took office six years ago. Heretofore it was necessary to use virtually all fees collected to pay administration expenses.

GIFT TO MEDICAL SOCIETY

A gift of $1000 to form the nucleus of a fund for the maintenance of a full-time executive secretary for the St. Louis Medical Society has been received from Dr. George A. Bronson, a dentist, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Cleveland H. Shutt, president of the society.

Dr. Bronson, who is not a member of the medical society, was present at the society's annual meeting when the proposal of the Executive Committee of the Missouri State Medical Association to defray the expenses of such a secretary for a year was received. Dr. Shutt said in his announcement that he expected funds would be forthcoming from other sources to enable the society to maintain the secretary permanently.

French Court Ball Brilliant Pageant For Art Alliance

aint Louis and Good Queen Anne Lead the Grand March at the Jefferson in Benefit Function.

IN a modern reproduction of a grand salon in the Palace at Versailles, French Kings and courtiers of an ancient regime emerged from their long exile to lend regal presence to the French Court Costume Ball Friday night in order that deserving St. Louis artists may benefit from study abroad under a scholarship from the St. Louis Art Alliance.

Louis IX, the sainted king, impersonated by James H. Platt, and Anne of Austria (Mrs. John T. Davis Jr.), wife of Louis XIII, and ambitious mother and regent of Louis XIV, known as the Grand Monarque, were the central figures about which the ball revolved, and into their court came their equally illustrious forebears and successors, of the entourages and families of De Medici, Valois, Capet and Bourbon, covering almost 00 years of romantic history.

The ballroom, with ceiling of gold leaf, parquetry floor and gilded balcony lighted by sparkling crystal chandeliers, where spectators watched, lent itself well to the picturesque pageantry. The tri-color of modern France was the only decoration.

After the arrival of the guests, who bowed and courtsied in the manner of other times, a fanfare of trumpets heralded the grand march, and for more than an hour Saint Louis and his consort, preceded by colorfully garbed pages bearing blue satin standards embroidered with fleur de lis, led beauty and chivalry throgh stately figures across the floor, passing in review before a committee of judges appointed to select costumes most worthy of prizes.

Later there were tableaux, posed by a charming group of the debutantes in a blue and gold frame draped in crimson velvet, on a stage at the far end of the room. A buffet supper in the crystal and mirrored banquet hall ended the formal program, which was allowed by general dancing.

Pierre Lamesangere, a sober personage who was professor of literature and philosophy in a French college before he became a famous modiste and owned 1000 pairs of shoes and 100 round hats, might have been bewildered by the styles and periods could he have stepped into the court room of the pseudo Louis and good Queen Anne. By ingenious designing these make-believe French subjects achieved a spectacular ensemble, and many of th costumes closely followed pictures of their originals.

Patches, curls and panniers made it difficult to differentiate between madame and mademoiselle, and the gentlemen must have followed a bit of advice given by Saint Louis in an unguarded moment when he forgot his predilection to simplicity and said, "You should dress yourselves neatly, in order that your wives may love you the more, and your people also will esteem you the higher for it."

The prize for the most historically accurate costumes, was won by Ned Simmons as the cruel, cunning and despicable Louis XI whose painted face looked out from beneath a fur-trimmed hood, his body wrapped in a mantel of black velvet with long flowing sleeves. His jeweled fingers grasped a gold topped stick, and he walked with the slinking step that marked the "wickedest king of France." His reward was an English etching print, given by Mrs. Samuel C. Davis.

The woman's prize was won by Mrs. Chapin Slater Newhard, formerly Miss Anne Kennard Wallace, in an elaborate riding costume of the period of Louis IV of green cherry velvet, with the long train, which draped over the side saddle in those days, a turned-up plumed hat. Mrs. Newhard won the privilege of sitting for a portrait by William Van Dresser, New York artist who is in St. Louis for the winter, and who, with Mrs. Eugene F. Williams Jr., arranged the tableaux.

Mrs. Harry L. Block was presented with an oil painting by Boynton for the handsomest woman's costume, that of a lady-in-waiting at the court of the Grand Monarque, of black taffeta, heavily panniered into a bouffant skirt, and tight pointed bodice, the whole elaborately adorned with black jet and rose, passementerie and black lace sleeves studded with jet. Her white powdered wig, coiffed high, was wound with diamonds and caught at one side with a cluster of diamond flowers. Her jewels were pearls.

For the handsomest male costume the prize went to Mr. Platt as Saint Louis himself. It was a bronze statuette contributed by Mrs. William K. Bixby. The familiar crusader's coat of mail worn by the king in battle was topped by a doublet of white velvet green satin sleeves, and from his shoulders depended the gorgeous train of state, fashioned of Charteuse velvet embroidered in silver fleur de lis which dragged eight yards on the floor. Above his helmet he wore the crown of his rank.

Prizes for the most individual garb were won by Miss Anne Farrar Semple, former Veiled Prophet Queen, who came as Joan of Arc, and Raymond Dyer, as Francois Villon. The prizes were a landscape, painted and donated by Edmund Wuerpel, which was given to Miss Semple, and an etching by Brounet; donated by Louis Werner, given to Mr. Dyer.

The peasant girl who led French troops to victory and afterward died at the stake, a victim of politics, wore a blue satin tunic falling to her knees over a metal sheath of meshed silver. A metal belt held in place a jeweled sword, and she wore her blonde hair bobbed about her shoulders.

Mr. Dyer, as the gallant Villon wore a fur trimmed doublet, leather boots, a sword and sack of poems hung at either side of his belt, and a rakish peaked cap, set at an angle and ornamented with feathers.

The tableaux were pastoral scenes, reproductions of paintings by famous French artists. The first was by Bastian Le Page, of Jeanne D'Arc in peasant costume listening to the voices of the angels which bade her go forth and fight for France. In the second picture Miss Julia Evans and Miss Lorraine Grover presented Boucher's "A Shepherd and Shepherdess in Conversation." The third was in portrait of Mme. Adelaide de France, after Nattier, posed by Mrs. Ira E. Wight Jr., and the fourth represented "The Music Lesson," a charming pastoral by Loncret in which Miss Anne West and Miss Mary Merwin Shepley, in pastel tinted taffeta, posed as students with Richards Scullin as their very serious teacher.

One of the most striking costumes in the grand march was worn by Mrs. Columbus Haile, as Marguerite de Valois, daughter of Catharine de Medici and wife of Henry of Navarre, who was one of the three guests who impersonated that lovely, if a bit scheming, lady. Mrs. Haile was in white chiffon incrusted with silver beads in a sunburst design, beneath which hung a flounce of lace. There were lace sleeves encircled with diamonds and a huge Catharine de Medici collar made of a lacy network of diamonds and silver. She wore a diamond tiara on her white curled wig and from her shoulders fell a satin court train brocaded in silver.

Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, another Marguerite of the same ancient house, wore deep crimson velvet, made in the long, slender mode, slashed to reveal a petticoat and flounces of gold lace. There were close fitting velvet sleeves to the elbow, which ended in a drape lined with gold cloth. Her hair was bound close to her head with a fillet of jewels.

Mrs. Howard Benoist patterned her gown after the one worn by Mme. Adelaide Nattier's painting, with a ruffled skirt of rose colored cendal, with elaborate ruchings and panniers of blue brocade edged with rose and blue. Mrs. George D. Markham impersonated Marie Antoinette, ill-fated wife of Louis XVI, in gray and mauve changeable taffeta gown, with a feathered headdress. Mr. Markham made a splendid Cardinal Richelieu in red robes.

French Court Ball Brilliant Pageant Of Ancien-Regime

Mrs. Rolla Wells was Princess Lamballe of the court of Louis XIV in pale green taffeta, adorned with festoons of lace ruffled into a circular design and edged in flowered banding. She wore a wreath of pink gardenias in her white hair and more of the blossoms adorned the skirt. Mr. Wells was a much decorated gentleman of the court.

Mme. du Barry, favorite of Louis XIII, was well portrayed by Mrs. Edward K. Love in pink satin, with frilled bow knots of green silk adorning her trailing bouffant skirt and sleeves. Mr. Love was the Chevalier d'Amour.

Among the guests was a real Parisienne, Mme. De Geligud, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton L. Whittemore.

Du Barry's rival, Mme. de la Pompadour, was Mrs. Ralph Foster Bixby, who wore a gorgeous costume of pale blue silk, with a bertha and petticoat of lace over pink. With it she wore a choker of flowers and carried an exquisite pearl fan of the kind in fashion at the time.

Mrs. Russell Murphy was a court character immediately prior to 1750 in a flounced salmon taffeta, piped in blue. Her pointed bodice was ablaze with turquoise jewelry set in gold, and was edged with a lace bertha. Mr Murphy was one of the later Bourbons in gold brocade.

Mrs. Skinker Matthews represented the Marquise de Castellane of the period of 1725 in bouffant blue satin adorned with pink rosebuds and lace, and carried a tiny blue feather fan. Her son, Rives Skinker Matthews, was the Earl of Essex.

Many of the men appeared in regulation court costume of satin coat, knee breeches, white satin waistcoats and jeweled jabots of lace. A few, however, played the part of distinctive characters. One was a prefect of police: Arnold Stifel was the Count of Monte Cristo: Francis Niedringhaus as a gay cavalier in doublet, tight trousers tucked into boot tops, and sweeping plumed hat. Garneau Weld was a jovial friar in street costume, with a gold cross embroidered on the front of his black cloak, and a wide brimmed flat black hat. Another dignitary of the church was Ira E. Wight Jr., in flowing white velvet, with an overvestment of blue velvet.

A striking gown was worn by Mrs. Oliver Anderson of ivory satin trimmed with puffings of the materials. The skirt was draped away from the front to show an underlay of crimson satin, and three court plumes of crimson ostrich were worn in her attractive white wig.

Still another was worn by Mrs. Virgil Lewis as Mme. Mautespan of the court of Louis XVI. The gown was of deep rose satin with huge wired panniers edged in front in striking contrast with broad bands of white satin sewan with dark blue ribbon bowknots and pink roses. A silver lace De Medici collar completed the ensemble, and she wore pink flowers in her hair.

Mrs. John D. McGee of Washington, sister of Mrs. Mary B. Pollard, was a Louis XIV character in blue satin and rosebuds, and Miss Agnes Benoist was a Watteau figure in flowered silk, caught up at intervals with black velvet bows. The vest and bodice were of lace.

The artist Nattier furnished a figure for Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, that of Beaujolais, in rose taffeta. The lace flounce, instead of appearing near the hem of the gown, as became customary later, was about the waist, and ended in a pointed vest. There were lace sleeves. Her jewels were pearls, worn in strands about her neck and arms. Mrs. John Lawrence Mauran was a lady of the court of Louis XIV in salmon faille silk edged in a flowered banding. With it she wore sprays of pink flowers adorning the bodice and entwined in her hair.

Other elaborate gowns were worn by Miss Margaret Ewing of the Louis XIV period in green and silver metallic cloth, and Mr. and Mrs. August A. Busch Jr., the latter in bouffant blue tulle, veiling satin and a court train of orchid taffeta tulle in alternate stripes. Mrs. David R. Calhoun looked well in white circular white-beaded gown and carrying an orchid-tinted ostrich fan. Mrs. Frank M. Mayfield had an elaborate costume of ashes of roses brocade with a border of bow knots, and a petticoat of blue velvet. A waist flounce of lace encircled the upper part of the skirt, and there were lace sleeve ruffles and bertha. Another pretty costume was worn by Mrs. O. P. J. Falk of green silk with trimmings of orchid ruchings. Mr. and Mrs. Marion Niedringhaus were Francois Villon and a court lady. Mrs. Niedringhaus wore her great-grandmother's gown, of old mauve silk with a fichu of the fashion inaugurated by Marie Antoinette. Mrs. Charles Mullikin was Mme. Comargo, a dancer at the court of Louis XV, made en bouffant, and draped a bit at intervals with great pink gardenias.

Another Princess de Lamballe was Mrs. Henry S. Cushman, lady in waiting to Marie Antoinette, in a beautiful brocaded stuff in a pinkish yellow tint with brocade panniers, and touches of blue about the gown. Her headdress was of ostrich plumes. Her jewels were diamonds.

Still other gorgeous costumes were worn by Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Hager Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Loisel Papin, Miss Elizabeth Cuendet, in a gown composed entirely of white satin ruffles, wired out at the sides; Mrs. Garneau Weld, Mr. and Mrs. Louis La Beaume, Dr. and Mrs. I. D. Kelley and Mrs. Birch Oliver Mahaffey.

A costume entitled to a description was worn by Mrs. Oscar Johnson as Mme. Sophie, daughter of Louis XIV and Mme. Pompadour of green brocade with a nover lay of gold net. A spray of flowers crossed her bodice, and graced her wig, and a fan added to the effect.

Much of the credit for the success of the ball is due largely to the nine matrons, prominent in social and cultural affairs, who originated the idea and have spent much of their time for the past few weeks in advancing it to a conclusion profitable to the Art Alliance. As now planned it was the first of a series of annual entertainments of its kind at which the same organization will benefit, although the arrangements and historical periods may differ with each succeeding year.

Mrs. John T. Davis Jr. was general chairman and Mrs. James M. Franciscus, Mrs. Howard Benoist, Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, Mrs. Virgil Lewis, Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce Jr., Mrs. John Lawrence Mauran and Mrs. Harold M. Kauffman.

New York Society Looks To Beaux Arts Ball

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.

A SERIES of balls—given for amusement as well as for charity—is keeping social New York busy. Dancing remains society's favorite diversion, and costume balls, color dances and circus parties are the order of the day.

The Beaux Arts ball, to be held at the Hotel Astor Jan. 25, will be one of the most colorful of the season. It always expresses, in pageantry, some chapter of French history and this year will portray the Napoleonic era. Only guests costumed in the fashion of that period will be admitted. Society at present is giving much thought to the dress of soldiers and clergymen, court ladies and peasants of that time.

The Napoleonic atmosphere will be further expressed by the events of the pageant. More than 300 will take part in the spectacle which will show scenes from the court of Louis XVI, the directorate, the Napoleonic battles and finally the coronation of the Emperor. An elaborate scenic effect is being designed as a background for the pageant.

Color will be the dominating feature of the silver ball to be given in Madison Square Garden next week in aid of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children. A silver pageant, in which 64 young women gowned in blue and silver will form a plastic statue on an elevated stage, is to complete the elaborate entertainment program. Blue moonlight will flood the stage, which is designed with four ramps leading up to it. The pageant girls will weave in and out as they ascend the stage, thus giving the effect of a complicated blue and silver Maypole dance culminating in a symbolic statue. When completed the plastic statue formed will represent the new modern skyscraper hospital which is to be erected on the site of the old New York Infirmary for Women and Children.

The seventy-second annual charity ball to be given this month for the benefit of the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital will be an outstanding event of the winter. It is more than 70 years since the first ball was given, and the dance has come to be a tradition with society. A feature of the ball, always a part of its program, is the grand march which will precede general dancing. Temporary boxes will be built around the ballroom, and many New York hostesses already have made reservations for large parties. Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock and Mrs. George F. Baker Jr. are among subscribers to the ball.

Society wore its satins and high silk hats in new guises to attend the circus ball given by Mr. and Mrs. William May Wright at the Sherry-Netherland. Guests were costumed as spectators or performers of a circus. Ben Ali Haggin appeared in the frock coat, buckskin trousers, high boots and top hat of a ringmaster, while his wife chose the full skirted frock and pantellettes popular in the 70's. Mrs. Harry Gushing III went as a fortune teller. Mrs. H. H. Rogers as a program boy, while the hostess chose an elaborate costume with jeweled bodice and skirt [illegible] of ermine. The "big top" [illegible] circus was erected in the [illegible] room, and side shows, hot [illegible] ons and peanut stands were provided elsewhere for the [illegible] of the guests.

Although the debutantes [illegible] ing slowly but surely [illegible] the background, parties [illegible] being given in their honor, [illegible] of them novel in decoration [illegible] entertainment. Mrs. [illegible] Gardiner provided a [illegible] setting for the pink and silver [illegible] which she gave at the Park [illegible] in honor of her daughter, [illegible] Alexandra, this week. No Slump in Official Society at Washington

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.

THE social slump usually attending the close of an administration is wholly lacking in Washington just now, and seldom has there been a more interesting program in progress than that closing the Coolidge administration.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge are not slacking any obligation and the Vice President and Mrs. Dawes undoubtedly would get in a dinner party of their own now and then if they had a chance. As it is, they are engaged for almost every night between now and March 4, with disappointment awaiting many of the hostesses when the Vice President sends his last minute regrets that affairs in the Senate ensnare him and Mrs. Dawes must carry out the engagements without him.

Senator Charles Curtis, Vice President-elect, also is laying up another store of disappointed hosts who would add a dinner in his honor as one of the high lights in the season program.

Two of the largest dinner parties of the week might be called administration affairs, the company invited by the Attorney-General and Mrs. Sargent, to meet the President and Mrs. Coolidge and the interesting guests asked on the same evening by the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Everett Sanders to meet the Vice President and Mrs. Dawes.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford of Dearborn, Mich., represented the West at the Attorney-General's dinner, coming over from New York and Menloe Park, N. J., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, while by far the greater number of guests for this event came from New England.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

New Recipe for Coloring Gray Hair

By LOIS PAGE

One of the questions most frequently asked me is: "What shall I do for my graying hair?" Unhesitatingly I recommend that tried and proven recipe of sage tea and sulphur. A brew of common garden sage with sulphur and alcohol added, makes the best hair restorer I know of.

You can either prepare the mixture yourself at home, or, as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the read-to-use preparation and, since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the bother of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it and draw it through the hair, one strand at a time. One application banishes the gray, and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no hard, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. Thousands of men and women use this preparation with no one suspecting it.

FOR over half a century Conroys have served the buying public in various lines of industry. And in the wealth of experience which time and time alone can bestow we have learned that "making haste slowly" is the best method for lasting success. As a natural outcome when the radio craze swept the country Conroys organized The Conroy Radio Corporation, heretofore a research laboratory designed to take the "guesswork" out of radio and place radio sets on a basis where the guarantee would be identically as sound as all Conroy guarantees are known to be. As a result therefore of years of experience we offer the following lines with the assurance that if the radio does not meet with your approval you will not be asked to purchase.

Health Questions Answered

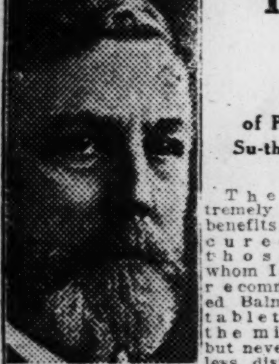
An Advertisement Telling How and When to Use Trustworthy Products and Reproducing Extracts of Patrons Letters Relating to Cadomene, Balmwort, Chex Soap, Sulpherb, Su-thol, Mentho-Laxene, Hypo-Nuclane, Triopeptine, Mentho-Laxene Salve.



Dr. Lewis Baker

The extremely good benefits procured by those to whom I have recommended Balmwort tablets for the minor, but nevertheless distressing, annoying and painful ailments of the kidney-bladder system, may be explained by quoting a prominent scientist who states: "It is to Vienna, home of the great Dr. Lorenz, and other equally famous scientists, that we owe this new remedy. First used by eminent European specialists and later brought to America, where more perfect methods of preparation followed, it is now banishing kidney and bladder distress almost in the twinkling of an eye. This discovery, termed Filament De Mais, seems to open up the clogged kidney blood vessels, reducing inflammation, and allows the life-giving blood to flow freely while absorbing and throwing off the poisons, which, retained for any length of time by the system, results in most serious consequences." Filament De Mais, it may be stated, is the main active ingredient of Balmwort tablets, a non-secret remedy which I have recommended to thousands during the last fifteen years, with most gratifying results.

Mr. J. R. asks: "I am 37 years old and am very nervous. Suffer a great deal with pain in head and back of neck. Have no ambition and am always tired and depressed. Am pale, thin and don't sleep well."

Answer: I suggest that Cadomene tablets be taken to aid improvement of the quality and quantity of the blood and thus restore the normal functioning of the body organs and nervous system.

R. M. T. writes: "I suffer from biliousness, heartburn, gas, and always have a coated tongue, with bad breath. Constipation bothers me greatly, and have pimples on shoulders and face."

Answer: Probably your failure to find relief from constipation is the underlying cause for your afflictions. Begin taking Sulpherb Tablets regularly, as a laxative, blood cleansing treatment.

Mrs. A. C. writes: "My two children have been out of school for two weeks because of a severe cold and cough. Nothing we have used has seemed to help them and I write for advice."

Answer: Obtain essence Mentho-Laxene and dilute it with sugar syrup or honey. Give this to your children every hour or two. This is being used by thousands of mothers, because it is quickly effective and contains no opiates, chloroform, or narcotics to upset the little stomachs.

"Menace R" writes: "I have had a severe attack of Rheumatism affecting my arms, legs and back. The pain has been so great that my physician resorted to morphine to relieve me, but the disease is no better. I am afraid to continue taking his treatment fearing the habit."

Answer: I advise 5-grain Su-thol tablets to stop severe pains of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, etc. It is quickly effective and can produce no drug habit.

To aid in correcting and overcoming rheumatism, have prepared the following and take a teaspoonful at mealtime and at bedtime: Iodide of Potassium, 2 drams; Sodium Salicylate, 4 drams; tincture of Colchicum, ½ ounce; comp. essence Cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. Balmworth 1 oz.; and Elixir Lactated Pepsin, 5 oz. For those who do not like liquid medicine, I recommend Cardiol Tablets, a formula similar to the foregoing liquid.

Mrs. E. H. asks: "What ever I eat lays on my stomach and ferments, forms gas and presses on my heart, and makes me miserable. I wish you would tell me what to do?"

Answer: If constipated take Casca Royal Pills as a pleasant laxative. Also begin taking Triopeptine tablets which tend to aid and overcome functional distress of the stomach and bowels.

H. A. asks: "I have bladder and kidney trouble, with a burning stinging sensation. My night's rest is disturbed and often have dull aches and stiffness of muscles and joints. Can this condition be helped?"

Answer: Take Balmwort tablets as a diuretic-tonic and neutralizing agent to tone up the kidneys and overcome the bladder irritation.

Mrs. B. N. asks: "Will you please advise a remedy for nasal catarrh and bad breath?"

Answer: Obtain antiseptic Vilane Powder, and use as per directions as a nasal douche, mouthwash and to gargle throat twice or more daily. Also apply Mentho-Laxene Salve in nostrils morning and night. This is a most effective treatment when used regularly for several weeks.

Answer to M. C. L.: The best treatment for blackheads is medicated Chex soap. The creamy, velvety lather penetrates and dissolves the blackheads if directions are followed.

O. M. M. asks: "What is good to loosen up stiff, sore joints? Ordinary liniments don't help me."

Answer: The peculiar pain relieving quality of triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve gives very quick relief after anointing any painful spot.

T. W. writes: "Always after getting rid of a cold I am bothered with severe headaches above and between the eyes, which last for weeks. What can I use to avoid my trouble?"

Answer: Take 5-grain Su-thol tablets for relief of headaches. Also see answer to "Mrs. G. N." for nasal catarrh.

Note: Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director of The Blackburn Products Co., 312 College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, will send his valuable guide to Health and Beauty, to any address upon receipt of 10cts. Coin. The trustworthy medicines advised, can be obtained of all leading druggists.

LETTERS TO DR. BAKER

INWOOD PARK, LONG ISLAND, N. Y. Daniel M. Wert, 9 Maple Road writes: "I am a carpenter and most of my work is outside. Am 50 years old and I have had trouble with my kidneys and had pains in my groins for 3 years before I get any relief. My landlady then told me about Balmwort tablets from which she had found relief. I have used 3 boxes and am feeling fine—no trouble the last 6 months. My sleep would be disturbed 6 and 7 times a night, and could never lie on my back.

MOBERLY, MO. Miss M. A. Brower, Lock Box 577, writes: "I saw your 'Answers to Health Questions' in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and a case similar to mine. Itching skin, rash and blotches, and procured a box of Sulpherb tablets at once. Have taken 4 packages and there is a wonderful change, for itching rash and blotches have disappeared, etc."

MILWAUKEE, WISC. Mrs. Hilton Roeber, 1156 Third St., writes "First of all I want to thank you for the wonderful results I got from taking Cadomene tablets. I was very nervous, run-down and weak; could hardly do my housework. A friend recommended Cadomene and I am now taking my third box, and I must say I am feeling just fine, have gained eleven pounds in the last month, can do all of my work and do not feel a bit tired. Some friends, too have used it with good results. I am, very sincerely."

CLEVELAND, OHIO. Mrs. J. Leada, 1714 W. 28th St., writes "My husband was suffering for a long time with lame back, legs and arms, such as muscular rheumatism. I cut out your piece in the paper, took it to the druggist. The first bottle he took done him lots of good, so he got another to be sure he was all right. It was certainly fine and we thank you very much."

WESTBORO, MASS. R. C. Wimberly, Box 288, writes: "I am writing this to tell you that I bought one bottle of Mentho-Laxene, used it according to directions, and before I had taken all of it my cough was gone. I had been troubled with a severe cough and had tried most everything in vain. I shall have it always at hand, etc."

TURTLE CREEK, PA. Mrs. T. M. Zafaras, 700 Penn Ave., writes "I had a tickling sensation in my throat. I used one bottle of Mentho-Laxene and the tickling feeling left. Have also used the triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve and can say it is the greatest and grandest I have ever used for colds, catarrh, etc."

PHILADELPHIA, PA. James J. Fox, 2645 N. Mutter St., writes "About your wonderful medicine for constipation, Casca-Royal Pills, I find that it is the best I have ever used. There is not any griping pain, or weakness as I have found with other medicine such as the compound cathartic pills, etc."

oreign Car Registrations For 1928 Set At 4,000,000

even Years Ago, in 1923, Total Was Only 300,000 Units — Business Abroad Will Stabilize Industry. N. A. C. C. President Declares.

y a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 12.—For e first time in motor history the orld registration of automobiles utside of the United States has pproached the 4,000,000 mark. his is the most significant fact n the automotive outlook for 1929 t is important not solely from the andpoint of automotive sales, hough that aspect is gratifying. ut it is primarily important beuse of the stabilizing effect on e entire industry.

The existence of a market for 800,000 cars and trucks outside the United States is a motor ansport field exceeding 20 per nt of the total. The size of such market constitutes a degree of usiness insurance which the mor industry did not have in its ounger days, in the opinion of lvan Macauley, president of the ational Automobile Chamber of mmerce.

"At present if there should be me slackening in commercial acty in the United States, there is possibility of making up the difrence in the markets of South merica or elsewhere, Macauley deared.

In short, our international outek not only makes for an ineased production, but in spreadg demand throughout the entire orld intends to smooth out the uctuations which occur in any usiness.

In Macauley's opinion, 1929 will, ecause of this international situaon, establish a 5,000,000 mark as e new normal production for the tomobile industry. Since 923 the tomobile industry has considered e 4,000,000 mark a good average tput. The total by years from at time on is as follows:

1925	4,427,660
1926	4,503,531
927	3,573,671

"In arriving at 5,000,000 as the w normal base, the automobile dustry is not contemplating a rried advance in world markets. recognizes that it must proceed eliberately and along sound lines t when it is realized that in 1922 e market beyond our borders s about 300,000 vehicles and that 1929 it will be close to 5,000,000 hicles, it is clear that the indusy has greatly expanded its marts," Macauley continued.

The American motor industry be sure, does not contemplate ing all of the world's motor siness. Its position is that the tential demand is so vast that e greatest results will be hieved by all nations working gether to improve transportation nditions, and that each will nefit from the enlarged market.

"The automobile market in the nited States is established on the pregnable rock of keeping faith th the public. Automobile prices ntinue to be less than pre-war. e 1914 automobile dollar will y more than $1.07 today, while e purchasing power of the avere cost-of-living dollar has dened to 61 cents. In other words, day it requires fewer hours of bor, fewer bushels of wheat, nds of beef, bales of cotton, and forth, to purchase a motor car an it did before the war.

"There are today a great variety serviceable automobiles selling a minimum price and even the gher quality cars are available to milies of moderate income. As g as the automobile industry ntinues to give exceptional value r dollar it can be assured of ong public patronage."

While the greater portion of the nual State road income is deed from motor vehicle fees and soline taxation, receipts from les of State highway road and idge bonds and from notes for 26 and 1927 ranked third, and deral-aid appropriations fourth sources of revenue. Foreign Car Registrations For 1928 Set At 4,000,000

Seven Years Ago, in 1923, Total Was Only 300,000 Units—Business Abroad Will Stabilize Industry, N. A. C. C. President Declares.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 12.—For the first time in motor history the world registration of automobiles outside of the United States has approached the 4,000,000 mark. This is the most significant fact in the automotive outlook for 1929. It is important not solely from the standpoint of automotive sales, though that aspect is gratifying, but it is primarily important because of the stabilizing effect on the entire industry.

The existence of a market for 4,000,000 cars and trucks outside of the United States is a motor transport field exceeding 20 per cent of the total. The size of such a market constitutes a degree of business insurance which the motor industry did not have in its younger days, in the opinion of Alvan Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

"At present if there should be the slackening in commercial activity in the United States, there is possibility of making up the difference in the markets of South America or elsewhere, Macauley declared.

"In short, our international outlook not only makes for an increased production, but in spreading demand throughout the entire world intends to smooth out the fluctuations which occur in any business."

In Macauley's opinion, 1929 will, because of this international situation, establish a 5,000,000 mark as the new normal production for the automobile industry. Since 1923 the automobile industry has considered the 4,000,000 mark a good average output. The total by years from that time on is as follows:

1925	4.427.660
1926	4.503.531

"In arriving at 5,000,000 as the new normal base, the automobile industry is not contemplating a hurried advance in world markets. It recognizes that it must proceed deliberately and along sound lines. But when it is realized that in 1923 the market beyond our borders was about 300,000 vehicles and that in 1929 it will be close to 5,000,000 vehicles, it is clear that the industry has greatly expanded its market," Macauley continued.

"The American motor industry, to be sure, does not contemplate taking all of the world's motor business. Its position is that the potential demand is so vast that the greatest results will be achieved by all nations working together to improve transportation conditions, and that each will benefit from the enlarged market.

"The automobile market in the United States is established on the impregnable rock of keeping faith with the public. Automobile prices continue to be less than pre-war. The 1914 automobile dollar will buy more than $1.07 today, while the purchasing power of the average cost-of-living dollar has declined to 61 cents. In other words, today it requires fewer hours of labor, fewer bushels of wheat, pounds of beef, bales of cotton, and so forth, to purchase a motor car than it did before the war.

"There are today a great variety of serviceable automobiles selling at a minimum price and even the higher quality cars are available to families of moderate income. As long as the automobile industry continues to give exceptional value for the dollar it can be assured of strong public patronage."

Most Highway Money From Bond Issues

While the greater portion of the annual State road income is derived from motor vehicle fees and gasoline taxation, receipts from sale of State highway road and bridge bonds and from notes for 1926 and 1927 ranked third, and Federal-aid appropriations fourth as sources of revenue. In 1923, 1924 and 1925, motor vehicle fees headed the list, States bond revenues were second, Federal-aid funds ranked third, transferred funds from counties ranked fourth, and gasoline taxation fifth.

Urges Oil Industry to Aid In Lessening Road Costs

U. S. Highway Chief Says Low - Priced Product Could Be Developed That Would Compare With Concrete as a Building Material.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — No agency is so well equipped as the oil industry itself to determine experimentally how best to use light oil products in low-cost road building, according to E. W. James of the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture. It is the commercial and economic duty of the oil industry, he says, to develop this natural resource.

"The practicable large-scale commercial production of light road oils, so they may be purchasable on specifications for a certain definite use, anywhere in the United States, is an industrial, and not a laboratory problem," James declares. "The variety of adjustments possible at the refinery are ample to develop the conversion of all crudes available into products that will meet the market demands for materials of the respective base constituent."

Studies made by the bureau and by some of the states, indicate that the use of oil products promises to be the most successful and least expensive method for raising low-type road surfaces to a condition satisfactory to meet the public demands. Improvement of low-type roads, such as gravel, sand-clay and graded and drained earth is one of the most serious problems facing the highway engineer and the several states today.

The oil industry has very largely confined its interests in highway construction to production of asphalts required essentially in a limited range of high-type pavement in which it must compete with other materials also suitable only for such pavements. The industry has left practically unnoticed this huge field in which it would have almost no competition.

As an index to the possibilities for the use of light oils, James cites the 1,175,000 miles of improved roads in the United States today, of which over 600,000 miles are graded and drained only and have no surfacing. Over 300,000 miles are of gravel, very little of which has been surface treated. Water-bound macadam, most of which has undoubtedly been surface treated, and bituminous macadam represent another 85,000 miles. In addition, there are some 1,825,000 miles of roads still unimproved, a certain fraction of which will be advanced into the improved class annually.

The estimated annual program of resealing and surface treating is set at 1,021,900 miles, according to James, 4800 of which are bituminous macadam, 30,000 waterbound macadam, 292,500 miles gravel, and 694,600 miles of graded earth and sand-clay. This mileage would require annually an estimated 8,470,000,000 gallons of surface treatment material. Adding to this figure the amount of treatment needed on the estimated 53,800 miles of unimproved roads brought to some degree of improvement each year would bring the annual estimated consumption of surfacing material to about 9,000,000,000 gallons of 36,000,000 tons.

Wild Game in U. S. Parks Increasing

A statement issued by the Department of the Interior says that big game animals in the National Parks, many of them of species that have been threatened with extermination, are shown by the 1928 census of the National Park Service to be, in most cases, abundantly re-established while none is any longer threatened with extermination.

Caribou herds, for example, have so grown that their numbers are believed to total more than 100,000. These picturesque animals range the area of Mount McKinley National Park, in South Central Alaska. In fact this park was created in 1917 largely for the purpose of protecting the herds of caribou and mountain sheep which, with the prospective opening up of the region through the completion of the Alaska Railroad, were in danger of serious depletion if not extermination. Other animals also have thrived under the protection afforded by Mount McKinley Park, and have overflowed to the surrounding country, to the benefit of legitimate hunters and trappers.

Other outstanding examples of the effect of wild life conservation in the national parks are the buffalo and the antelope of the Yellowstone. These two species, which once roamed the plains in countless numbers, had almost disappeared when public interest in their preservation awoke and intelligent efforts were made to give them adequate protection, resulting in the present interesting park herds.

Millions Yearly For U. S. Road Research Work

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — Expenditures in the United States for highway research in 1927 probably totaled nearly $1,000,000, Dr A. F. Woods, Director of Scientific Research of the United States Department of Agriculture, declared in an address given before the Highway Research Board of the Division of Industrial Research, National Research Council, the past week. The outlay for the year for this purpose by the Bureau of Public Roads alone, he said, was $400,000.

Nearly an equal sum was required to support the investigations of the state highway departments and substantial additional outlays were made by the various agricultural experiment stations and colleges. As evidence that money spent for highway research in the past has been well spent, he said it was sufficient to point to the excellence and efficiency of modern highways.

Dr. Woods described the progress of highway research from the early period when the requirements of horse-drawn traffic were predominant, to the present era of heavy and incessant motor vehicle traffic. "Early experiments," he said, "were made with burnt clay as a surfacing material. Sand clay mixtures were tried. In 1893, or thereabouts, the farmer was the largest and indeed almost the only rural road user, and the commonest vehicles were the farmer's buggy and wagon. The gasoline motor and rubber tire were still beyond the horizon. Under such conditions, methods of road-making adapted to traffic light in volume and in weight and limited in range sufficed. For roads for the heaviest traffic the bureau then advocated the macadam surface, not a mere scattering of rocks but a rolled road of two courses, with much emphasis on crown and drainage.

Continuing, he said: "In the last years of the nineteenth century the Bureau of Public Roads, in co-operation with the University of Tennessee, devised a recording instrument called a tractograph for the measurement of tractive power. Records made with this tractograph led to experiments that promised to have great importance. The bureau entered upon an investigation of the possibilities of steel roads. In 1898 it laid, on the outskirts of Cleveland, O., a 500-foot channel-bar trackway set in a macadam surface. This road, as the bureau reported, was laid in a street carrying a heavy volume of traffic and demonstrated the great value of road construction. We might today be traveling on steel tracks had not another group of experimenters hit upon an idea that made radical changes in the character of vehicles and their tires. These experimenters, of course, were the pioneers in motor traction.

"Intensive scientific investigation was started by the bureau about 1905. Each year thereafter it constructed one and sometimes more experimental roads. In these roads experiments were made with various bituminous materials applied as surface treatments. A little later a mixing method—the beginning of bituminous concrete—was tried. Rapid strides were made in the development and standardization of tests, and the work resulted in a notable series of circulars entitled 'Dust Preventives and Road Binders.' In 1911 the bureau began constructing its best-known experimental road. This is in Washington, D. C., on Connecticut avenue, beyond Chevy Chase Circle. Construction was started with bituminous macadam sections; and continued in 1912 and 1913 with the building of bituminous concrete, concrete and brick sections. When this road was built the country had only about 1,000,000 motor vehicles. Traffic was still predominantly horse-drawn. Yet the road has lived to serve a constantly increasing traffic of automobiles and motor trucks to the present day.

"For 15 years this stretch of roadway was carefully maintained by the bureau, and a record kept of every expenditure and of all traffic carried. It is believed that no other road anywhere in the world exists for which there is

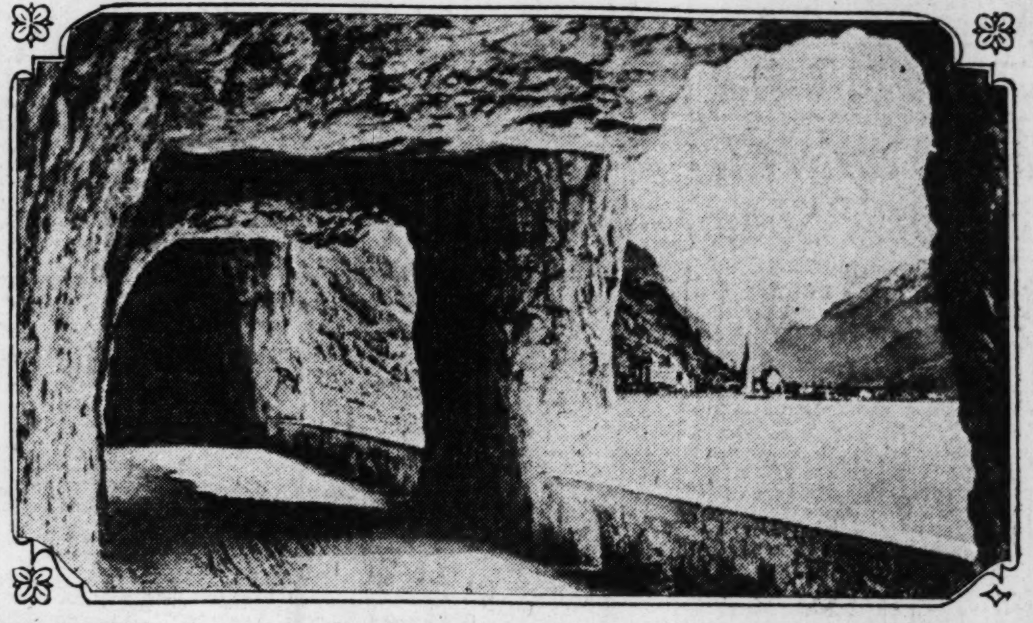
CALLED MOST REMARKABLE ROAD IN WORLD



AUTOMOBILE tourists agree that the Axenstrasse road, about seven miles long, which extends from Brunnen to Fluelen along the shores of Lake Lucerne in Switzerland, is one of the most remarkable in all the world. It was largely cut from solid rock, one gallery hewn in the side of the cliffs, succeeding another. This marvel of engineering skill and human patience and ingenuity was completed over 60 years ago, but only of late years, with the coming of the motor vehicle, has travel over it been extensive.

GUGGENHEIM SEES PLANES SAFE—As Automobiles

Steps in the development of an aerodynamically safe airplane which will compare favorably with the motor car in safety and ease of operation, were explained by Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics.

Stalling of planes and fog are the greatest problems of aviators, he declared.

"Undoubtedly by far the most frequent cause of airplane accidents today is due to the stall," he said. "Mr. Handley Page has been working for many years on the development of the slotted wing. The effect of the slot is to delay or prevent the breakdown of the air flow around the wing which with an ordinary wing section occurs at an angle of about 16 degrees to the wind. It is the breakdown of the air flow which causes the loss of control. Recently Mr. Page has perfected his automatic slot which prevents the loss of control and eliminates the possibility of an unintentional stall.

"Given the aerodynamically safe plane and continued progress in the various problems involved in safe flying, which do not require for perfection anything but ordinary sound industrial development, there remains one fundamental, unsolved problem, and that is flying through fog. Fog is one of the few hazards that are really feared by the aviator, and the more experienced the pilot, the more respect he has for that extreme condition of the atmosphere in which

Low-Priced Cars Featured At 29th Annual New York Automobile Exposition

Manufacturers Make Direct Appeal to Persons With Modest Incomes—Sweeping Price Reductions in All Classes Noted — European Makers to Invade American Market.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

New York's 29th annual Automobile Show, which came to a close in Grand Central Palace yesterday afternoon after a week's run, presaged a year of unusually sharp sales competition among the leading manufacturers of the country. While last year's national exhibition achieved distinction by spreading its automotive offerings completely over the entire price range, presenting an attractive investment for every pocketbook, this year's show reveals an unprecedented concentration of sales effort on the buyer who may spend less, often much less, than $1500 for his new motor car.

To accomplish their purpose of thoroughly invading the modest income territory, the manufacturers this year have achieved a modern miracle. Whatever the price range that has been set for their product, whether it is essentially below or above $1000, or whether it is a low or medium-low price range series supplementing other series of higher price range, they have produced astonishingly more actual automobile value for the dollar than would have been believed possible a short year ago.

Sweeping price reductions have been made in established lines of cars, not by sacrificing values that had previously been incorporated in them, but in conjunction with many mechanical improvements and refinements that would have made the new car a better buy even at the previous higher price. And they have added accessories

California Road System Is Expanded

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 12.—California added 255 miles of paved construction, 34 miles of bituminous macadam and 698 miles of grading with crushed rock, oil sealed or armoured surfaces, a total of nearly 1000 miles of improved highway to its road system during 1928. This is the summary of a report just issued by the Department of Public Works.

For the coming two years, the plans contemplate 311 miles of

Engine Developing 62 H. P. One of Many New Features.

Given additional beauty by advanced styling and new color combinations and with even greater power and finer performance, the Oldsmobile for 1929 is being displayed at the St. Louis factory branch of the Olds motor works, and by dealers. The exhibit shows the artistry and skill by which many desirable improvements have been added without radical changes having been made in the distinctive and graceful lines or fundamental changes in the mechanical specifications.

The most apparent change in the outward appearance of the 1929 Oldsmobile is the addition of a heraldic crest on the radiator and the removal of the nameplate to a chromium plated bar connecting the larger headlamps, which now are supported by chromium plated standards. Other exterior refinements include an advancement in design of the radiator shutters, a new cadet type windshield visor which is designed to harmonize with the graceful saddle on the hood and cowl, and the changing of the finish of the roof shoulders from fabric to sheet metal lacquered in body colors.

Adjustable front seats are now included in all closed models. These, with an even fineg rgrade of mohair upholstery, increase the comfort and beauty of the Fisher built body interiors.

The complete line of body models consists of seven standard models, all available in special and de luxe types. The line contains a landau sedan, four-door sedan, two-door sedan, sport coupe, business coupe, sport roadster and sport phaeton.

Continuous research work by the engineers have resulted in an increase in horse power and a corresponding improvement in mechanical performance. The high compression Oldsmobile engine now develops 62-horsepower, and this added power has brought even greater speed and smoothness of performance.

In this connection the connecting rods have been fully machined and rifle drilled so that oil under pressure is injected through the rods to the piston pins. This is technically known as full pressure lubrication and heretofore has been a characteristic of cars of high price.

A new air cleaner with a mineral wool content replaces the former cleaner of a centrifugal type. Tests have proven that this new type cleaner is highly efficient and does not restrict the flow of air at any engine speed. A larger carburetor which embodies the newest features of carburetion niw is employed. Crankcase ventilation is retained, as are the oil filter and gasoline pump and filter.

Additional driving ease and comfort have been attained through a new and improved steering gear and improved adjustments of the clutch and brake pedals. These pedals are also equipped with rubber pads.

Adjustable front seats, a new development by Fisher, are used in all closed body types. A very accessible handle adjusts the position of the seat, which can be moved forward or backward until the proper position is attained. This, with the adjustable steering column which has long been a feature of Oldsmobile, assures absolute comfort to every driver, whether short, tall or of medium stature.

Another convenience drivers will appreciate is the use of a subdued green light to illuminate the instrument panel.

South Side Reo, Inc. Increases Business

South Side Reo, Inc., since moving into its new sales and service building, at 3647 South Kingshighway, has registered a substantial increase in business, according to A. E. Huber, president. The firm formerly was located at 2819 South Jefferson avenue. Announced changes in personnel include the appointment of Arthur Schrader to be service manager.

and fitments that had not before been provided as standard equipment. Where slight price advances have been made in the low-price field, they are accompanied by so material a betterment of the product that actual value increase has been many times the amount of the price rise. Where manufacturers have extended their line downward into the medium-low price class with the introduction of a new series, the job they are offering is virtually a sizing down of their costlier cars to a smaller chassis and lower power, retaining most of the exclusive mechanical features that mark their line, and giving a value proportionate to the price on approximately the same scale as in their more expensive models.

More thorough attention has been paid to both exterior and interior body design in the lower-priced cars. Grace has been added to the lines wherever possible and the skilled designers have accomplished wonders, for until recently the shorter wheelbases have been considered an obstacle to satisfactory car beautification. Lowering of body heights has helped bring the cars into better proportions and the study of streamline effects, fender treatment, radiator design, body curves, color combinations and kindred problems heretofore lavished without stint on the costlier cars, has been turned with gratifying results to the less expensive models. Interior treatment has provided materially more room and more passenger comfort.

This modern miracle which the manufacturers have achieved in producing beautiful, inexpensive cars of remarkably high dollar value, is made possible by a fortunate combination of circumstances. Science, enlisted in the research laboratories, has produced new metals, new processes, new devices for power increase and new means of extending service life. Production engineering has cut tremendous items of cost from the manufacturing. Exacting proving ground tests have eliminated uncertainty in performance before production is begun. Art has been set to work on all problems of appearance. These tools with which the manufacturer today works were not in his hands just a few years ago. We are beginning to reap the dividends of investment in modern aids.

Now we come to what promises to be an entertaining warfare—the battle between the "sixes" and the "eights." The American automotive industry opens its 1929 program with the four-cylinder pleasure car field essentially left to two manufacturers. The low price division had otherwise definitely gone to six cylinders. At the same time the eight-cylinder car, until within comparatively recent days exclusively identified with the high price class, has begun a downward spread into the medium-price field which the sixes have been dominating, and it is rumored that before the year is over the low, or rather, the medium low price field, also will be invaded.

A very short while ago the fours and sixes were engaged in a similar conflict. The fours receded to the medium and then to the medium low and low price classes, and the sixes, sweeping out of the high price citadel which they had won and were holding in company with a few eights, followed them down the line and finally drove them to their last stand at the very bottom of the scale. Now the eights in turn are pressing on the heels of the sixes.

A few sixes, however, still stanchly hold their posts at the upper end of the medium price range and they may bitterly fight against dislodgment. As an indication of what is happening we see, for example, one company which had been making a high-priced eight and a six of somewhat lower price dropping the six and replacing it with an eight, and another company, with several lines of cars in practically all price ranges, replacing with an eight the six which had occupied the top of their line. At no American national automobile show have there ever before been so few fours and so many eights presented. What next year's show will reveal offers opportunity for highly entertaining conjecture.

An interesting skirmish was forecast in the presentation, for the first time at an automobile show, of foreign exhibitors. Five makes of Eureopean cars were shown, three English, one French and one German. American-made automobiles have very successfully been invading the European market. Our automotive export trade has been a highly profitable activity of the industry.

There has been a definite market here for European cars, but it has been limited almost wholly to the fine car field and to the purchaser who enjoys the exclusiveness of driving an imported automobile. Without entering into a discussion of the relative merits of American-made and foreign-made motor cars, it is conceded that the imported car demand here has ample room for growth without seriously injuring our own manufacturers of costly and exclusive automobiles. But within certain circles there will increase an intense rivalry now that the foreign car has been accorded official recognition at the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce exhibition.

In the medium-priced cars at the show the manufacturers have outdone themselves this year in providing truly high-priced appearance and performance. Many of the luxuries that only a year ago were high price accompaniments are now incorporated in the jobs representing this less expensive group. It is becoming history in the automotive industry that within certain necessary limitations every price group eventually inherits the advantages originally produced at great cost for the group above it.

The legion of buyers to whom the reasonably moderate cost of these cars is no financial barrier will find themselves in an unusually fortunate position. There has perhaps never before been such a flat level of values from a mechanical standpoint, with, at the same time, such strikingly marked individualities. In this group one may with no difficulty select appearances that satisfies personal preference and at the same time be reasonably assured of mechanical satisfaction.

The higher-priced cars naturally represented the cream of automotive accomplishment. Here it is now hard to distinguish between the stock jobs of this year's show and the special custom jobs that were built only a year ago. This is because a certain amount of what was formerly exclusively custom practice in body design and interior comfort and luxury has now been adopted as stock practice.

Every year now the automobile show provides some one interesting note of progress. In 1927 it was the general adoption of full balloon tires. Last year it was four-wheel brakes. This year it was chromium plating, which is now almost universally employed. Rustless, tarnish-proof, unaffected by corrosion, resistant to heat, it is being devoted to the purpose for which it is ideal—all exterior and much interior bright work —radiators, lamp rims, hub caps, bumpers, door handles, and the like.

It is interesting to observe that the trend toward shorter wheel bases has apparently been checked. In fact, in some of the medium-small cars the wheel base length has been slightly increased, others retaining the same length as in the 1928 models. Power in many cases has been increased, and speed with it, in some instances accomplished by simply reducing the size of the conbustion chamber, with a resultant higher compression ratio.

Chevrolet Plans To Build 1,250,000 Vehicles in 1929

Produced 1,200,000 Units First 10 1-2 Months of 1928.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 12.—With thousands of new Chevrolet sixes daily being placed in the hands of owners, Chevrolet Motor Co. announced officially here yesterday that production for the first ten and one-half months of 1928 was 1,200,000 units. This figure, it was said, represented an increase of 180,000 units over the entire output of 1927, the best previous year.

Month after month of last year found Chevrolet breaking all former production marks. Its all-time record for monthly output occurred in May, when 140,775 units were produced. May stood out in the Chevrolet calendar also because it included the greatest single day's output in the company's 16 years of history, when 7075 cars and trucks completely finished, rolled off Chevrolet assembly lines May 28.

Coincident with the announcement of 1928 production figures, Chevrolet officials at the New York Automobile Show last week, were viewing with interest the continued enthusiasm that the crowds bestowed on the new sixes. Several ranking officials reiterated the statement made a few weeks ago by W. S. Knudsen, president, that 1929 production would equal at least 1,250,000 units.

A special showing of 1929 Marmon automobiles is to be seen today in the showrooms of the Archer-Mann Motor Car Co., Marmon distributer. The cars on display are exact duplicates of the models on exhibit the past week at the New York Automobile Show, Richard Mann, president of the firm, stated yesterday.

Cadillac Sold 41,500 Automobiles in 1928

DETROIT, Jan. 12.—In a statement issued today, Lawrence P. Fisher, president of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., says:

"The Cadillac Motor Car Co. has just completed the most satisfactory year in its history and we are expecting a substantial increase of business in 1929. Our production schedules for 1929 are 25 per cent higher than for 1928.

"Total shipments for 1928 were 41,500 cars, an increase of 17 per cent over 1927, our previous biggest year. Exports increased 15 per cent. December's increase over December, 1927, maintained the same ratio.

At St. Louis Air Fields

TENTATIVE establishment here of the headquarters of the Universal Aviation Corporation, a $7,000,000 concern operating mail and passenger lines, was announced last week with the leasing of offices in Boatmen's Bank Building for executives of the company. The offices will be in charge of Col. Halsey Dunwoody, former assistant to President Russell E Gardner Jr., president of the Gardner Motor Co., who has been appointed executive vice president of the Universal Corporation. Col. Dunwoody was in charge of supplies for the army air service in France during the war.

Smaller Planes Put in Service.

Due to lack of patronage during the winter months the 12-passenger tri-motored planes have been replaced by 4-passenger Ryan broughams on the St. Louis-Chicago route.

MARMON
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF
G. M. WILLIAMS

G. M. Williams, President Marmon Motor Car Co., under whose direction this company has attained the greatest success and importance in its long history.

The greatest success in 26 years

Marmon, during the past year, attracted more attention than at any time in its long history. Actually, the number of cars built was nearly double that of the preceding year. All of which is a reflection of the activities of the young and aggressive Marmon organization.

This organization set out to give—

First—Cars of unusual distinction and good taste under the respected Marmon name at a price which the public previously had been accustomed to pay for the average "mass production" makes.

Second—To provide in these cars the most advanced standards of engineering. This meant that the new Marmons had to be straight-eights. No other type of motor so completely meets the present-day demands for extreme smoothness and ease of operation. Equally important, the straight-eight is the only type of car which can be bought today with the assurance that its trade-in value will not be depreciated by obsolete mechanical design for years to come.

These Marmons stand quite alone in their price fields, with advantages never before offered at conservative prices. They are Marmons, built with the same precision as the $4000 Marmons of the past. They represent Marmon's sincere effort to offer the greatest values, per dollar invested, of any cars in the world. Your inspection is cordially invited.

NEW ENGINE IN FRANKLIN CARS FOR 1929

Improved Line on Display Here Beginning Today.

As the culmination of an expansion program which has been under way for months, the Franklin Automobile Co. is introducing for 1929 an entirely new line of high-compression air-cooled motor cars, embracing a comprehensive selection of body styles on three completely new chassis and selling at prices as much as $600 less than any former prices of corresponding models. The cars now are on display here by the Franklin Automobile Co. of St. Louis, 3949 Lindell boulevard.

Refinement and embellishments designed to mark a new high index in the company's standards of values have been added in the 1929 line to the traditional Franklin features which long since established for Franklin an outstanding position in the fine car field. Noteworthy among these are the high-compression air-cooled motor, in which the power increase ranges as high as 20 per cent above any former Franklin engine rating; increased size and corresponding roominess; 100 per cent automatic and positive engine lubrication; a silent running, quiet shifting transmission of the Hyflex internal gear type in the larger models; hydraulically controlled spring action, and luxurious niceties and beauties of styling that reflect forward strides in the art of quality body building.

The complete new Franklin line consists of Model 130 at $2180, Model 135 at $2485, and Model 137 at $2775, these base prices applying to sedans. A coupe at $2610 is also included in the Model 130 line. In addition to the sedan, Model 135 types include coupe at $2510, convertible coupe at $2610, Victoria brougham $2595, sport sedan $2625. In Model 137, besides the seven-passenger sedan, there is a limousine at $2970, sport touring at $2785, seven-passenger touring at $2870 and sport runabout at $2785.

Model 130 is powered by a 3¼"x 4¾" six-cylinder motor of 236 cubic inches piston displacement. The two larger cars have a 3½"x4¾" six-cylinder motor of 274 cubic inches piston displacement. The wheelbases are 120 inches, 125 inches and 132 inches, respectively, for Models 130, 135 and 137, all having the wider 58-inch tread.

While maintaining the fundamental characteristics of Franklin body design, numerous improvements have been made to add to distinction, improved proportions, and provide greater roominess and more luxury. Most noticeable is the lower roof line, the higher belt, and the greater length. Franklin has adopted the 58-inch tread uniformly and has thereby obtained body width fully one and one-half inches more than the former standard.

A new treatment of the window reveals is brought about by broadening the step panels and by using a radius at the corners. This accentuates the height of the sides and the lowness of the roof line, and too increases the low-hung appearance of the body.

Open Highway for Winter.

The international highway from Montreal, Canada, to New York City is to be kept open during the winter months by the International Winter Highways Association. Work will also extend in all areas through which important highways run.

GUGGENHEIM SEES PLANES SAFE AS AUTOS

vision is completely obscured. In the present state of flying development, fog cannot in general be successfully combatted, and it is seldom intentionally trifled with.

"As a rule, even though a pilot cannot fight fog and win, there is no reason for fog to take toll of life. When fog thickens ahead to a dangerous point, the wise pilot follows the rule that Lindbergh consistently uses, namely, turn back before it's too late. Usually a pilot has ample warning in entering a fog area from the increasing wisps of clouds that beset his path.

"There is a great temptation to keep on through these harmless looking billowy wisps that seem to beckon one to go farther and offer assurance. That just a little way ahead the wisps will give way to clear sky. This desire to see what is on the other side is accentuated today by the sparsely located airports throughout the country so that to turn back may mean a long return flight to an airport or a chance of a bad landing in some country field, far from habitation.

"The fund is devoting its energies and resources to fog as a major problem. We are now in the midst of establishing a full flight laboratory where all of the promising devices that have been developed or may be developed to make possible fog-flying will be scientifically tested and operated. Encouragement will be given for the perfection of those devices which give indication of being the most valuable.

"Through the courtesy of the Army Air Corps, Lieut. James H. Doolittle, of unusual ability, both as a pilot and scientist, has been assigned to the fund to help in this project and is in charge of our full flight laboratory.

"As in other major research fields in aeronautics engine development has further great possibilities. The development of the heavy fuel engine may well prove another step in aviation's progress.

"These factors are closely related to the problem of speed. The speed of the airplane has been increased from about 35 miles per hour in the day of the Wright brothers' first flight to the stupendous speed of 320 miles per hour today. In spite of this great speed of racing planes, the average commercial plane travels today at a cruising speed of approximately 90 miles per hour, although some of the most recent large passenger-carrying planes cruise at the rate of about 120 miles per hour. Commercial cruising speed is a matter, in my opinion, of great economic importance.

Moderate, Steady Speed Best for Extensive Trips

Better in Long Run Than Sensational Spurts, Says Cadillac Engineer.

To make the best time on long cross-country trips, drive moderately and steadily. This method will eat up the miles faster than tremendous bursts of speed followed by periods of relaxation, and will also sharply advance the safety of highway traffic.

These are the opinions of William R. Strickland, assistant chief engineer of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, based upon his own driving experience and observations of Cadillac-LaSalle engineers made during many cross-country runs.

"With constant improvement in motor car design and manufacture," Strickland states, "the best makes of cars today will stand without injury the stress of high speed. The rate of travel is not a matter of what the car can do. It depends upon the driver's judgment. But if getting somewhere in the shortest time is the object, moderate, continuous travel is the proved best method—and the safest.

"Observations of our experimental engineers on their cross-country runs have been that the steady driver at 45 miles per hour—and at the most not over 50—reaches his destination ahead of the tense, excited driver who flashes by at 70. The calm driver is always in a mental condition to maintain his pace. The spasmodic, high-speed driver seldom is.

Motors Taxed $785,000,000.

Despite local abolition of all Federal taxation of automobiles, motorists of the United States paid $785,000,000 in taxes during the 12 months of 1928. The repeal of the Federal excise cut $35,000,000 a year from the total tax bill of the motorists, but increases in State taxes have been such that a large net increase of taxation results.

such a parallel record of cost and traffic covering so long a time. The undertaking was followed by what may be termed the modern period of the bureau's experimental work, in the course of which bridge slab tests were begun in 1912, soil pressure tests in 1915, the earlier wear tests in 1919, and the impact experiments in the same year. Analysis of sub-grade soils was begun in 1920 and of traffic surveys in 1922, and many lesser tests and experiments were carried out. This work, in common with research work in general, has been of fundamental importance in the practical solution of the highway problem."

Dr. Woods urged the Highway Research Board to interest itself in the improvement of roads leading directly to farms. He pointed out that only 300,000 miles of the 3,000,000 miles of public rural roads in the United States are included in the main heavily traveled highways. Farmers are interested in these highways, but they are perhaps more interested, he believes, in the local road mileage outside the main system. He said traffic carried by these local roads is not sufficient to support the types of improvement on which the investigations of the Highway Research Board have mainly been centered.

paving, 154 miles of macadam and 541 miles of grading, a total of 1007 miles.

In addition to its building program, the state is making its highways safer. The minimum width of pavement had been set at 20 feet and the minimum width of grades at 36 feet, providing for an eight-foot shoulder on either side, thus giving the motorist ample room to stop his car with all four wheels off the pavement.

Dangerous curves are being eliminated and the maximum grade is fixed at six per cent. A safety device is being applied in the marking of traffic lanes.

During the past two years, 26 grade crossings have been eliminated. Guard rails have been built along narrow grades, and through the co-operation of the railroad commission, warning signals have been placed at all grade crossings.

The comfort and pleasure of motorists has been added to by the application of light oils to some 1500 miles of gravel roads, making them practically dustless. This process will be continued, especially in the recreational regions.

California's highway program has been planned for 10 years ahead through a measure adopted at the last Legislature. The Automobile Club of Southern California and other organizations advocating good roads advocated the business-like program in effect. During 1928 the expenditures for all highway work in California approximated $80,000,000, and during the next biennial it is expected that the total annual expenditure will approach the $100,000,000 mark.

Not only must California provide for the nearly 2,000,000 motor cars owned by its own residents, but for 250,000 additional cars yearly that come in from other states bringing tourists to view the national parks, Big Trees and other scenic attractions.

Florida Winter Influx Of Tourists Is Started

Fifty-Five Per Cent of Visitors From North Last Year Arrived by Motor as Result of Improved Roads.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 12. — Now that cold breezes are beginning to blow from the North, hundreds of tourists are heading their automobiles toward the sunshine of Florida. Automobile clubs in Jacksonville, Lake City and other "gateways" report that incoming traffic has more than trebled in the past few weeks, and several hundred visitors already have entered Tampa to enjoy the winter sports here.

Last year's figures show that more than 55 per cent of the persons visiting in the State came by automobile. This increase in automobile travel is a result of the added mileage of good roads both throughout the North and Middle West and in the State itself. In Florida there are more than 9000 miles of excellent roads that can be traveled over comfortably at a speed of 60 miles an hour, and more roads are being repaired and improved daily.

Of the 600,000 automobiles entering the State last year at least 100,000 passed through Tampa. Tampa is located in the heart of a network of paved roads, leading to many points of interest. Over the Tamiami Trail, 286 miles away is Miami, and within a short drive of the city are Lakeland, Tarpon Springs, Petersburg, Clearwater, Espiritu Santo Springs, New Port Richey, Bradenton, Sarasota, Winter Haven and other attractive cities.

Sports of all kinds are being enjoyed by visitors. Bathing, boating, fishing, dancing, boat races, golf tournaments, tennis meets and other sports are lending a zest to early winter activities.

Merry Tests New Shock Absorber

H. C. Merry, president of H. C. Merry, Inc., distributer of Gabriel snubbers, who recently returned from the annual convention of distributers for the Gabriel Snubber Manufacturing Co., held in Cleveland, reports on the performance of the new Gabriel triple hydraulic shock absorber during a road test between the factory and St. Louis.

Following the distributers' convention, Merry had his Buick car equipped with these shock absorbers. His description of the test is as follows:

"The reaction of the ride on this new Gabriel triple hydraulic shock absorber was strictly like floating. The preloading or jiggle on smooth roads, so often found in most all types of shock absorbers, has been absolutely eliminated, and it really gives a smooth ride on a smooth road. Chuck holes, bumps, railway crossings, all were taken at a speed of 65 to 70 miles per hour without a jolt to the passengers."

The factory has already started production of 1000 sets a day, and the Merry Co. is receiving its first shipments, and is now prepared to make installation on all makes and types of cars.

Dealers' 'Junk' Yard Called Safety Aid

That the salvage yard, established by members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers Association at 6606 Eaoston avenue, and conducted as the Auto Dealers Salvage Co., is operated for other reasons than merely to relieve dealers of surplus stocks of obsolete motor cars, is related in a letter Col. Phil H. Brockman, president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, received yesterday from Girard C. Varnum, secretary and manager of the St. Louis Safety Council, in which the Salvage Yard is warmly praised for contributing tremendously to safety on the streets of St. Louis. Varnum's letter says:

"On behalf of the St. Louis Safety Council I want to express our sincere appreciation of the action of your association in creating the Salvage Yard for old broken-down motor cars.

"Major Robert E. Lee informed the Executive Committee at its last meeting of the purpose the dealers had in mind in establishing your salvage yard and the committee enthusiastically expressed its praise of the idea and wishes the association every success in carrying out their plans concerning it. There is no doubt but many automobiles are being operated on the streets today which are in a decidedly unsafe condition and should such a salvage yard not have been created, many cars unfit for operation would have been sold to, in many cases, those who really cannot afford them and who would not be in position to make settlement in the event an accident occurred through their recklessness."

Up to Jan. 1 the Auto Dealers Salvage Co. had purchased in its four months of existence 2775 motor cars from dealers and individuals, all of which have either been wrecked and the metals or parts sold or are on hand. An inviolate rule of the board of directors of the Auto Dealers Salvage Co. is that no complete car will be sold from its salvage yard.

The officers of the Auto Dealers Salvage Co. are: George Weber, of the Weber Implement & Auto Co., president; Phil H. Brockman, of the DeLuxe Automobile Co., vice president, and R. C. Frampton of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Frank R. Tate of the Tate Motor Co., and Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers Association, directors.

Allen-James New Building Cost $200,000

Chevrolet Dealer's Plant Located at 2300 Olive Street.

The Allen-James Motor Co., well-known Chevrolet dealer, will hold the opening of its new sales and service building at 2300 Olive street during the afternoon and evening of Tuesday, Jan. 22, at which time there will be a complete showing of the new Chevrolet six-cylinder car. Every model of the line, including the four commercial jobs, will be on display.

The new building was built especially for the dealer by the Langforth Realty and Investment Co., at a cost of $200,000.

CHEVROLET DEALER'S NEW PLANT

Over-all dimensions of the building are 175 feet on Olive street by 69 feet on Twenty-third street. It is constructed of reinforced concrete skeleton work with terra cotta. The building is three stories high with a slightly terraced effect along the Olive street side. A circular ramp service will be means of elevating the cars from one floor to the next, and will extend from the first floor to the third.

The officers of the Allen-James Motor Co., Terry W. Allen and J. Rush James, are well known to St. Louisans. James has been connected with the automobile industry in St. Louis for the past 17 years, and for the past five years, when the Allen-James Motor Co. was first formed with showrooms in Clayton, has been a Chevrolet dealer. In May, 1928, they moved into new headquarters at 3016 Locust street, formerly occupied by the Orthwein Chevrolet Co. Allen, who is connected with an investment firm, spends much of his time in the conduct of the Chevrolet business.

"Question Mark" Used Pennzoil

The three great Wright Whirlwind motors, which enabled the "Question Mark" to make its record-smashing mark of 150 hours in the air, are estimated to have made something over 42,522,000 revolutions in the course of the flight.

"Such an engine test is almost inconceivable to the average motorist," says an official of the Pennzoil Co., which furnished the motor oil used in the flight.

"The average automobile engine running continuously for the same length of time at its peak of power would turn over approximately 28,000,000 times. It would pack a year's average mileage into the short space of less than a week.

The Greatest Value In Dodge Brothers History

inspired by WALTER P. CHRYSLER

© 1929—Dodge Brothers Corporation

THE NEW Dodge Brothers Six marks the farthest advance of Dodge dependability, just as it represents a new and greater attainment of Walter P. Chrysler's genius.

Here in one car are combined all the qualities, distinctions and characteristics so long associated with these two eminent names—Chrysler—and Dodge Brothers.

Here in one car is offered more prestige, more ability, and greater dollar-for-dollar value than has ever before been available at or near the price.

Much might be written of this car's new Mono-piece Body, its new beauty, new luxury, and new power, as well as the score or more of important engineering betterments it introduces.

But the marrow and substance of it all is summed up in a single sentence:

Walter P. Chrysler inspired the new Dodge Brothers Six; the Great Dodge Brothers organization built it.

In that lies the explanation of this remarkable new car.

RATINGS OF G. M. TRUCKS ARE CHANGED

Will No Longer Be Marketed by Tonnage Capacity.

A far-reaching development, affecting the customary method of rating truck capacities, will soon be announced by the General Motors Truck Co., it was announced here yesterday by O. H. Perkins, manager of the St. Louis branch of the company. He indicated to interviewers that an entirely new basis would be established, providing exact knowledge, in advance, as to the most efficient pay-load capacity of any given truck, equipped with any given type of body.

"It will clarify the whole situation a truck buyer faces when he comes to invest in new equipment—and will make possible much higher efficiency in the operation of trucks," Perkins said.

"Exhibitions of the 1929 light duty series of General Motors trucks have already opened, or will open shortly, throughout the country. These trucks, providing marked increased power and performance, are powered by the 1929 Pontiac engine," he continued.

"This Pontiac-powered light duty series will be offered to the public, described, sold, and fully guaranteed on this clean-cut new basis," he said. "There will be models of seven different basic ratings, as established by the modern method to which I refer. With each, information will be accurate in a new degree. Where bodies of comparatively lighter type are used, such as a stake job, pay-load capacity will be relatively greater than for the same model equipped with a heavier body, such as a van job.

"A man will be able to invest in equipment exactly suited to the requirements of his work. He will neither have to buy and operate more 'capacity' than he needs—nor will he have to risk the hidden costs and penalties of overloading. His tire equipment will be of precisely determined capacity, known in advance, to give the utmost mileage-economy."

Outstanding advancements in this light duty series will be increased horsepower without increased tax liability, it was stated, performance being from 10 per cent to 30 per cent greater; with actual horsepower increased more than one-third, in the 1929 Pontiac engine.

Longer and sturdier chassis have been provided, the new specifications show, with increases of strength in axles, transmissions, propellor shafts; and more generous proportions throughout.

Models so far exhibited show marked smartness in line and finish, and equipment and fittings are unusually complete.

An unusual offer, providing trucks for actual testing on regular work, is a part of the General Motors truck policy to provide purchasers with all possible advance information, it was pointed out. The new rating development will be another step in the same direction.

Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

– a Six in the price range of the four!

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History has now been seen and inspected by millions of people in every section of America—and everywhere it has been hailed as exceeding all expectations.

Many looked forward to finding a motor of exceptional design—but none expected a six-cylinder valve-in-head engine which develops 32% more power than its famous predecessor, which displays correspondingly higher speed and faster acceleration and which delivers better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Many anticipated seeing numerous factors that contribute to ease and safety of control—but were amazed at such quality car features as full ball-bearing steering mechanism with latest flat-type wheel, foot controlled headlamps and newly designed, quiet, easy-acting four-wheel brakes.

Many were confident that the new Chevrolet would be a comfortable car—but were delightfully surprised to find such outstanding comfort features as adjustable driver's seat in all closed models, fully cushioned seat backs and larger, roomier bodies.

And although everyone expected that Fisher genius would contribute a new note of beauty to the new Chevrolet Six—no one ever dreamed that it would be possible to achieve in any low-priced car elements of beauty, luxury and safety so worthy of direct comparison with the finest and costliest automobiles. Revealing low, sweeping lines and graceful contours, upholstered in rich fabrics that come from the world's foremost looms, and built of hardwood and steel, the new bodies represent an achievement in keeping with Fisher's reputation as world leaders in fine coachwork.

If you have not already made a personal inspection of the new Chevrolet Six, we urge you to do so at your earliest convenience—for not until you have seen and inspected this remarkable car, can you appreciate what the buyer of a low-priced automobile is now entitled to expect for his money. We now have the beautiful new models on display—and you are cordially invited to call and see them.

BOARDS OF REVIEW TO EXAMINE SCOUTS

New Ruling Made on Awarding of Carpentry and Leathercraft Badges.

A new ruling requiring that the merit badges of carpentry and leathercraft be subject to examination by the Boards of Review conducted by the St. Louis Boy Scout organization has been put into effect through a decision made by the chairmen of the various boards at a meeting last week. Heretofore scouts desiring to be awarded these badges could obtain them from a Court of Honor, after passing the required tests, without appearing before a Board of Review, one of which is conducted in each of the four districts of the St. Louis Council.

In accordance with the ruling, all scouts who have applications for these badges on file, or who file them before Feb. 7, must appear at the next board in their district, in order to obtain the badges by the next court.

Considerable misunderstanding as to the purpose and workings of the Boards of Review, which were inaugurated in St. Louis comparatively recently, has occurred among the scouts and scout leaders here, according to William J. Puffer, educational director of the local council. Coincident with the announcement of the ruling, therefore, he issued the following statement on these bodies:

Review Is Essential.

"Passing all of the tests for advancement to the rank of first-class scouts does not completely fill all requirements. At the time a badge is awarded scouting literature explains that a scout must be able to pass all the requirements in scouting that have preceded it.

"It is too much to expect that the scoutmaster, with all his other duties, should conduct a thorough review before a scout can be awarded his first-class badge; yet such a review is essential. The Board of Review consists of a group of men who are thoroughly familiar with the subject matter of the requirements and they lift this responsibility from the shoulders of the scoutmaster.

"Scouting literature also explains that certain of the tests should be given only by qualified experts and not by the scoutmaster, unless he is also an expert in these special subjects. These subjects include first aid, signaling, mapping and nature. Most local councils have regulations concerning expert examiners in these subjects, and many councils require that tests be passed only to examiners who have qualified as such through taking special training courses.

Scout Saved Trips.

"In the St. Louis Council attempting to maintain a high grade of scouting achievement by reducing the time and effort that would be required of a scout were he to secure appointments and go to specialists for examination in each subject. The scoutmaster or examiner appointed by him for the troop gives the scout as thorough an examination as it is possible for him to give. The Board of Review (these special examiners) meets in one place; the scout, therefore, is saved many trips.

"The members of the Board of Review are counselers rather than examiners. While it is their duty to pass upon a scout's qualifications for advancement and maintain uniform practices and procedure, they are many times able to correct defects in preparation without hindering the progress of a scout. Of course where some misunderstanding has resulted in faulty preparation or where a scout has slipped through without honest effort, he knows or should be shown that he is not entitled to advancement honors.

Help to Both.

"The Board of Review is not just another "hurdle" for the scout but is a help to the scoutmaster and a help to the scout.

"The Board of Review specifies that the merit badge subjects which are subject to review at each group of sessions and this always includes every badge that is on file at headquarters and ones that are filled in addition up to the last day of review that is possible before the week in which district courts of honor meet.

"Expert counselers have passed upon the scouts eligible to receive these badges and it is not the purpose of the Boards of Review to re-examine the scout but merely to check on whether an adequate examination was given; to find out what difficulties scouts encounter in their preparation to place the council in a position to remove these difficulties insofar as it is able."

The Boards of Review will meet as follows: North District—Jan. 14 and Feb. 7, Farragut School; South District—Jan. 15 and Feb. 5, Rose Fanning School; West District—Jan. 16 and Feb. 5, Clark School; Suburban District—Jan. 17 and Feb. 6, Webster Groves High School; in Overland—Feb. 6, at the Overland School.

All reviews begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

The Courts of Honor for each district will be held: North District—Feb. 11, at Yeatman High School; Suburban District—Feb. 11, at Webster Groves High School; South District—Feb. 13, at the Missouri School for the Blind; West District—Feb. 14, at the Ben Blewett Junior High School; St. Charles, Mo.—April 2, St. Charles High School.

Headquarters Notes.

A hike for members of the "Elements of Scoutmastership" training course being given by the Boy Scout Council will be held under the direction of Prof. Charles F. Smith of Columbia University, Jan. 26. The hike which will be counted as the tenth meeting of the course, will occupy both afternoon and evening.

While intended primarily for members of the training course, the hike is open to any scout leader in the city, particularly those who may need attendance at a hike to be credited on any other course they have taken. Patrol methods are to be stressed by Prof. Smith.

The Leaders' Handicraft Center, located in the Missouri Theater Building, reopened last week after being closed during the holiday season. "Skipper" Thompson, Ranger Camp director, is again in charge, and is conducting groups in leathercraft, woodcraft, woodcraft, whittling, beadwork and silvercraft.

The center is open to any scoutmaster, assistant scoutmaster, junior assistant scoutmaster, senior patrol leader, or patrol leader who obtains a permit from local headquarters.

The ninth meeting of the Leaders' Training Course will be held tomorrow evening, each of the three groups into which it is divided assembling at a different place. The First Aid Course will meet in Capt. John Hall's classroom at the Washington University School of Medicine; the Elementary Course will meet at the Michael School, and the Advanced Course will meet at the Stix School.

Thirty new recruits were added to the ranks of St. Louis Scouting last week:

Suburban District — Webster Groves 14, John Phemister and Sam Bowring; Webster Groves 3, T. L. Wright and O. E. Reynolds; Kirkwood 1, Robert Nicholas.

North District—Troop 203, Robert Smith and Leroy Woodson; 170, Clifton Jordon.

South District—Troop 178, James Zakria; 224, Lemoines Stark, Robert and Donald Wayne, Weslie Ditto, Moderall Kester and William McMillan.

North District.

A specialization meeting on compass work, including instruction by Scoutmaster Simons and a patrol contest for proficiency in compass use, was held at the last meeting of Troop 3 of the Grace Holy Cross Church. The Bob White patrol proved most proficient in the contest, with the Wolves second. As a result of the competition, the Bob Writes have been challenged by the Beavers to a contest in bandaging, to be conducted at the next meeting. A recreational period, during which games employing the compass were played, was concluded by the presentation to the troop of a large compass made by the Bob Whites.

Although organized but a few weeks, Troop 148, Hyde Park Congregational Church, has grown until it now has a full complement of 32 members. Scoutmaster Stohlman has announced that the troop is planning to erect a structure in the pioneering event at the Scout Circus.

Troop 19 of the Blair Howard School held a joint meeting and holiday party with the Blair Howard Patrons' Association last week. The program included numbers by Shay's string band, vocal selections, recitations and an impersonator. A patrol flag and individual bars were awarded by Troop Committee Chairman Deffendall to members of Patrol Leader Robert Schber's patrol, which won a recently concluded interpatrol contest. Awards also were made to Scouts for regular attendance over one, two and three year periods. These awards were presented by Troop Inspector A. T. Ruff.

A hike to Creve Coeur was taken by Troop 42 of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church last Sunday. The hike was attended by a large percentage of the membership. Although intended primarily for a recreational trip, one Scout passed all his second-class tests. A merit contest is being inaugurated in the troop by Scoutmaster Muldner, after a lapse in this type of contest for two years.

Scout Ernst Grote won first place in the last quarter of an interpatrol contest conducted by Troop 206, of the Ames School. The contest as a whole was won by the Tiger Patrol. Awards were made at an open meeting, to which parents and friends were invited, held at the Ames School last week. Field Executive L. L. Hotchkiss and Deputy Commissioner J. P. Simons were guests of honor.

The drum and bugle corps of the troop, directed by Assistant Scoutmaster George Tubessing, broadcast from radio station KMOX recently.

West District.

A new troop newspaper, Troop Static, is being published in St. Louis, by Troop 26, of the Delmar Baptist Church. The project is a more ambitious project than most troop newspapers, consisting of four mimeographed pages containing news of interest to scouts and their parents of local activities, church doings and troop progress. Troop Static is edited by Scout B. D. Moss Jr., Scout Bob Lawrence is business manager and Scout Truett McSpadden is patrol editor.

A talk on the Boy Scout movement in China was given by Dr. W. Heimburger, professor of medicine at the University of Shanghai, as an unexpected addition to the meeting program of Troop 90, of the Temple Shaare Emeth, last week. Dr. Heimburger also told of the present-day Chinese mode of life. An invitation was given the doctor to attend a fathers' and sons' meeting to be held in the near future. Rabbi Louis Witt, of the troop committee, who is moving to Dayton, O., also was a guest at the meeting. His son, Myron Witt, who has been in the troop six years, was presented a Boy Scout statuette and a pearl-handled scout knife.

A New Year's party was given Troop 98, of St. Roch's Church, by Scoutmaster Dr. F. H. Staley at the troop's last meeting. A program of games, entertainment and gifts was held. Every member of the troop was present.

SOUTH DISTRICT.

Eight new scouts were introduced to the members and parents of Troop 166 of the George Dewey School at the troop's annual holiday party, held at the school last week. The party was attended by every member of the troop, and nearly all the parents. Each patrol presented a short sketch as part of the entertainment. The John Paul Jones patrol gave "A meeting of the Smokeville Literary and Debating Society;" the Oliver Hazard Perry Patrol dramatized "An Evening in Crogan's Boarding House," and the Stephen Decatur Patrol presented "Three Weary Wanderers."

The automatic bird-feeding station maintained in Forest Park by the troop was refilled last week, just prior to the snowstorm. It will be refilled frequently during the winter, as fast as it is emptied by the birds.

Troop 178 of the Scruggs School is planning to hold an ice-skating party, to which parents and friends of the troop have been invited, as a welcome to Eddie Peabody, who has been made assitant scoutmaster of the troop. Peabody, who is master of ceremonies at a local theater, is one of the few international scouts in St. Louis, as he still holds membership in a troop in British Columbia.

CATHOLIC BOY SCOUTS' RALLY

Annual Meeting Will Be Held Feb. 3 at New Cathedral.

The annual rally of St. Louis boy scouts affiliated with Catholic institutions will be held at the New Cathedral at 4 o'clock the afternoon of February 3. Thirty-two Catholic troops will participate in the rally, which will be preceded by a parade of scouts from Lindell and Kingshighway boulevards to the Cathedral.

At the Cathedral, the scouts will be addressed by Archbishop Glennon. The rally will close with the benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. All Catholic boys who are scouts have been invited to attend, no matter what troop they belong to.

THE great group of manufacturing properties under our personal direction is hereafter to be known as Chrysler Motors.

We feel that the one and only justification for a grouping of motor car properties is to render a better public service.

Chrysler Motors is already accomplishing mutual efficiency and savings which are giving new benefits to the buyer of individual and commercial transportation in quality, service and economy. That is its sole purpose.

All of the products of Chrysler Motors are manufactured in one great group of plants and therein, we believe, rest the economic possibilities for overhead reduction, conservation of facilities and the application to all units of a common policy of engineering, purchasing and quality manufacturing.

Chrysler Motors' manufacturing facilities and financial resources are so vast and its combined distributing outlets so numerous that every price class in every country in the world is supplied with a Chrysler Motors product—and each the finest in its class.

Each of these products partakes of the advantages accruing to all the others, the cardinal principle of the grouping of these properties being the one thought—to benefit the buyer by a uniform basic quality and an enviable standard of value in every price field.

In the precise form in which it is operated, Chrysler Motors represents a new economic force in the industry because, while preserving a complete separate identity in the products and their distribution, it welds together the advantages resulting from the common policy of engineering, purchasing, manufacturing and financing under one personal head.

Thus, a quality manufacturing ideal is made practical for the first time in the history of the motor car industry.

Thus, a series of gigantic operations is made absolutely one—in research and engineering skill, in buying, in basic materials, in mutual processes and practices, in time- and money-saving machinery.

A great group of cars; all branches on the same tree and all growing out of the Chrysler root principle of standardized quality, originated and first applied by Chrysler—a principle which inevitably lifts both quality and value—each car contributing and sharing the manufacturing efficiencies of all the rest.

Chrysler Motors is the practical culmination of a long-cherished ambition which operates as an absolute guarantee of unapproached value to every motorist who buys a Chrysler-built product.

OLDSMOBILE FOR 1929

Now-finer than ever, but at a new Lower Price . . .

Oldsmobile now offers new engineering advancements that increase performance and dependability—new style refinements that result in even more vivid beauty and even more complete luxury . . . all at a substantial reduction in price!

Twelve months ago, when the new Oldsmobile Six was introduced, engineers and critics pronounced it "two years ahead." And their predictions have been confirmed. No other car in Oldsmobile's field has even approached it in appearance, performance, or luxury of appointment. Yet Oldsmobile has made definite advances in all these qualities.

Last year, Oldsmobile's unprecedented value brought unprecedented acceptance from motor car buyers. Oldsmobile has used the savings effected by this tremendous volume to give buyers even more for their money—by building a finer car at a lower price.

It has long been Oldsmobile's aim to build a car for the American family that, at moderate cost, gratifies their finer tastes, as well as satisfies their every need. This purpose has been accomplished, more fully than ever before, in the car Oldsmobile now presents to the public at new, lower prices.

The fundamentals of Oldsmobile design have not been radically changed. It is the fine car that has already proved itself by millions of miles of dependable service in the hands of thousands of owners . . . but with added refinements.

Oldsmobile's big high-compression engine now delivers 62 horsepower. The piston-pins are now pressure lubricated—an engineering feature heretofore characteristic of high-priced cars. And this is typical of the fine-car standards which have been maintained throughout the design and manufacture of this finer Oldsmobile for 1929.

Interiors have been made more luxurious. Upholsteries are richer and more costly. Seat-cushions are now deeper and softer. Further, Oldsmobile has the wonderful new Fisher adjustable front seat, which may be moved instantly forward or backward to the exact position desired, simply by turning the seat-regulator. This feature, together with Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel, provides a new order of comfort for the driver.

Style touches include headlamps of new design mounted on chromium-plated standards, a new cadet-type visor, and an unusual selection of voguish new exterior color combinations.

Come and see this finer Oldsmobile. It is the product of one of the industry's pioneer manufacturers, backed by the vast resources of General Motors. And it offers a combination of beauty, luxury, comfort, performance and value which simply cannot be matched at Oldsmobile's new lower price.

U. S. Supreme Court Unlikely To Write Valuation Formula In Deciding O'Fallon Case

Ruling That I. C. C. Did or Did Not Give Due Consideration to All Elements of Value Probably All That Can Be Expected.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.

THERE are several different ways in which the United States Supreme Court can decide the St. Louis & O'Fallon railway valuation case, which it took under advisement after the conclusion of oral arguments last week.

It is possible for the court to decide the case on a minor issue and thereby avoid a pronouncement on the great issue involved —the question, namely, of how railroad properties should be valued for rate-making purposes.

It is possible for the court to say that this valuation should be based on the "prudent investment" in the railroads. Five years ago, in his notable separate opinion in the Southwestern Bell Telephone case, which also came up to the court from Missouri, Justice Brandeis urged the application of the "prudent investment" theory to public utility valuation. The time had come, he said, for the court to disregard the old rule of Smyth vs. Ames, under which great confusion had arisen, and to lay down a new rule definitely establishing a rate base and the measure of fairness in return. Justice Brandeis was joined in this opinion by his fellow liberal, Justice Holmes. The court has not heeded the advice in subsequent decisions, nor is there any likelihood that it will do so in the O'Fallon case.

What the Railways Ask For.

It is possible for the court, taking a position at the opposite extreme from that of Justice Brandeis, to say that railroad property should be valued at the cost of reproduction. That the court will do this is quite as improbable as that it will accept the "prudent investment" theory. Although the court in the Southwestern Bell and the Indianapolis Water Company cases laid heavy stress on the cost of reproduction as an element of value for rate-making purposes, it has never said that cost of reproduction should be the sole element. Nor did the railroads in the O'Fallon case argue for the general establishment of such a principle.

They asked in effect in this particular case, that the replacement yardstick be used in determining value. Citing the Indianapolis Water case and the Southern Pacific case, where "the circumstances were such that it was held that dominant weight must be given to reproduction costs," the railroads contended through their attorneys that the O'Fallon case fell within the same description. "This is such a case," they said, "because there are no other relevant facts and circumstances to justify the rejection of replacement costs as that fair measure of value of the physical elements of property which it was taken and held to be in the McCardle (the Indianapolis Water) case."

Ten Billions Difference.

Now as has been pointed out between this theory of valuation, if applied to the railroads generally, and the theory given effect by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the O'Fallon case, there is a difference of at least $10,000,000,000.

For present purposes, the point is, that even in advancing the particular O'Fallon claim, the railroads proceeded warily. Their argument when analyzed as former Attorney-General Wickersham of Government counsel pointed out in a searching brief, came down to the claim that the Interstate Commerce Commission erred when it refused to fix the value of the carrier's property at the cost of reproduction. But they did not claim in terms that reproduction cost should have been the sole test. That would have been putting too great a strain upon even the decision of the court in the Indianapolis Water case.

What they claimed was that the Interstate Commerce Commission in fixing the value of the major portion of the O'Fallon's property on the basis of 1914 price levels, did not give due weight to the rise in prices after that time. In omitting to do this, the railroads claimed, the Commission violated "the law of the land," specifically the 30-year-old rule of Smyth vs. Ames, which named "the present as compared with the original cost of construction" as one of several elements to be "given such weight as may be just and right in each case."

In their brief the carriers said: "This court has never held that value and cost of reproduction, less depreciation, if any, are synonimous. Appellants do not so contend .... It is, however, a relevant fact to which due consideration must be given. In the majority of cases decided by this court, it is of all relevant facts that which has been accorded the greatest weight."

Pitfalls of Reproduction New.

The truth is that the railroads are unwilling to push the reproduction cost theory to its logical conclusion. If the theory were put into effect and given judicial sanction, then there would have to be, as the Interstate Commerce Commission has graphically pointed out, a revaluation of railroad properties with every marked change in general price levels. Railroad securities, now stabilized, would become highly speculative. In times of falling commodity prices, the effect of the doctrine on the railroads would be disastrous.

The railroads see this, just as they see that the application of the doctrine under present conditions would result in valuations so high that their own enlightened self-interest would prevent them from making corresponding rate increases. The weakness of the reproduction cost theory, both in law and in economics, is revealed in the fact that the railroads' contention in the O'Fallon case has been steadily whittled down throughout the proceedings before the Commission and the courts, until it now stands at the relatively mild claim that reproduction cost is "a relevant fact to which due consideration must be given."

A Fantastic Total.

Frederick H. Wood, for the railroads, presented the O'Fallon company's side of the pending case in masterful fashion. But he left himself wide open to an attack by his equally shrewd opponent, Walter L. Fisher, special Government counsel, when he conceded that the Commission, in valuing the O'Fallon for 1920, could not have been expected to take the excessive reproduction cost figures of that year. It had been shown that a valuation of all the railroads on the basis of 1920 costs would have resulted in raising the figure from the Commission's rate base of $18,950,000,000 to the fantastic amount of over $41 000.000,000. The railroad attorney would have stopped some billions short of that figure.

His admission was tantamount to saying that the reproduction cost theory is grounded on expediency; that it cannot, in justice either to the railroads or the public, be given a fixed and general application. If any further proof of this is required, it may be found in the fact that when the theory was first brought forward, in the case of Smyth vs. Ames, it was urged on behalf of the public, while the railroads contended

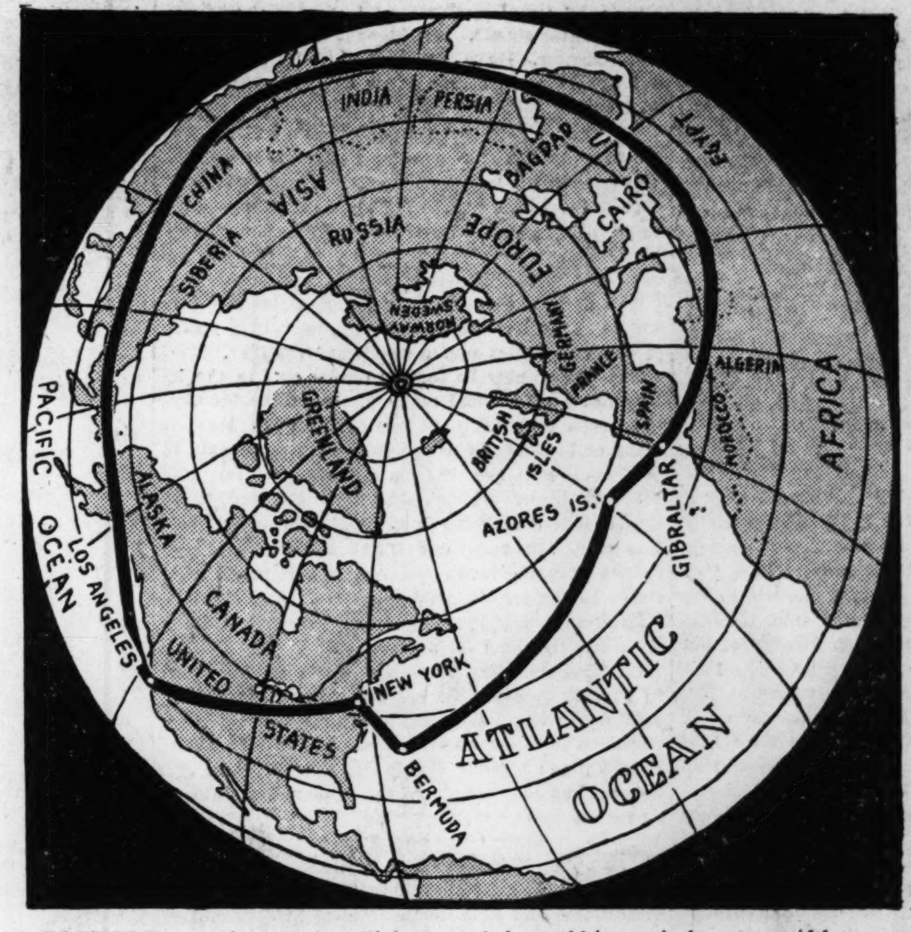
Around the World Without Stop Is Next Aim of Army Aviators



A POSSIBLE route for non-stop flight around the world in an airplane, to avoid long ocean hops. If ocean route is decided upon, officers expect to have airplane carriers stationed at necessary points to be used in refueling operations.

With Feasibility of Refueling a Plane in Flight Solved by the Question Mark, Experts Now Await Only an Improved 3000-Hour Motor and Multi-Engined Planes—Attempt Will Be Made in Three to Five Years, Heads of Aviation Departments Say.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.

THE dream of all aviators, a non-stop flight around the world, will soon be a reality. The 150-hour continuous flight of the Army airplane Question Mark proved the practicability of refueling in the air and the only matter now in doubt is when such an attempt shall be made. Competent observers in the Army Air Service state that the effort certainly will be successful within the next three to five years.

Major General James E. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Service, is enthusiastic over the possibilities of refueled flights and believes that new fields have been opened to aviation by the Question Mark's flight.

"The successful fueling experiments mark the beginning of a new epoch in flying," Gen. Fechet said, "the California flight was the first of a series the Army Air Service will conduct. A successful non-stop flight around the world will be made within five years. I believe we shall see it within the next three.

"While the army has no definine plans for an around the world flight, nevertheless our experiments will prove that such a flight is possible. If a commercial company attempted it, the army would be glad to co-operate. I am sure that the navy would also offer its help."

300-Hour Flight Over Land the Next Test.

Obviously, only one other step is yet to be taken—a 300-hour sustained experimental flight over land. With refueling an accomplished fact, Army aviators believe such a fortnight flight will be made in the near future. After a successful 300-hour flight, circumnavigation of the globe in one hop will be only a matter of organization, Army officials say.

"Around the world in 10 days" will be the slogan. This will beat the record made last June by John Henry Mears and Capt. C. B. D. Collyer when they made the trip in 23 days, 15 hours, 21 minutes and 3 seconds, by using automobiles, trains, steamships and airplanes. Until the Mears-Collyer trip, the record was held by the moon.

Ten days is the time goal set by aviators on the ground that whether the proposed route is southern or northern it would be approximately 25,000 miles. If the planes flew 100 miles an hour, the trip would take 250 hours or almost 10 and 1 1-2 days. It is thought, however, that by the time the trip is made airplanes will be so greatly improved that they will average more than 100 miles an hour. This would bring the flying time to approximately 240 hours or 10 days. The Question Mark flew 11,000 miles at an average speed of 70 miles an hour

The actual flying time of Capt Lowell Smith and his colleagues when they took the Army planes around the world in 1924 was 16 days, 14 hours and 28 minutes for a distance of 27,553 miles. Smith estimated that of this distance 1450 miles was wasted through the necessity of keeping in touch with one another and that otherwise the Army flyers would have been in the air 365 hours and 11 minutes for a distance of 26,103 miles. The flyers, however, were 175 days making the trip.

First Refueling in Air Successfully Done in 1922.

To Capt. Smith goes the credit for having thought of the refueling plan, although it was not used during the 1924 flight. In 1922 he and Lieut. Paul Richter made the first exchange of fuel in the air at one of the west coast flying fields. At that time Smith remained aloft 37 hours. The Smith plan was revived last November by Major Spatz and his fellow airmen at Bolling Field, where four short contacts were made with refueling planes. These contacts being successful, Spatz took his crew to California where they made the record of 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds for sustained flight. Until that time the record had been held by the French dirigible Dixmude which remained aloft 118 hours.

When Spatz alighted at Metropolitan Air Field after establishing the new record, he said: "Refueling was one of the simplest phases of the flight."

Air men all over the world acclaim the Question Mark's flight as the beginning of a new era in aviation. Immediately after completion of the flight, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy, said that a non-stop flight around the globe was "well within the realms of possibility." Since then, Col. Arthur Goebel, winner of the Dole flight to Hawaii, and the Paris office of the Fokker Airplane firm, have announced that plans were being made for attempts next summer and fall.

Moffett naturally looked at the proposed flight from the naval point of view and emphasized how the Navy's aircraft carriers, the Lexington, Saratoga and the Langley, could aid in the flight.

Suggests Use of Ships for Refueling at Sea.

After pointing out that refueling airplanes could easily be stationed every 1000 miles on land, he said:

"This leaves us with many thousands of ocean miles to cover. Along the surface of the sea, airplane carriers might be strung out a thousand miles apart. Refueling planes might take off from their decks, make contact with the non-stop plane, deliver gasoline and oil and return to the safe harborage of the carriers' decks.

"Radio direction finders and all the modern aids to navigation such as used in the flights of the Southern Cross to Australia would, of course, be necessary. These devices are rapidly becoming more perfect.

"It seems, of course, somewhat fabulous to think of an exploit of this sort. But the flight of the Question Mark stirs the imagination deeply and creates new standards against which to range our ambitions."

Air officials here, while they say they have made no definite plans for a non-stop flight around the world, have considerable data on the problems that would be confronted on such a trip. Like Spatz, they believe that refueling is so simple a matter that they can now devote their attention to the other problems.

First, there is the question of building motors that will run 300 hours under flight conditions without stopping. The motors of the Question Mark, officers say, were as nearly perfect as inspection could make them. Nevertheless two failed to function properly toward the end of the flight.

The three Wright whirlwind motors that powered the Fokker plane will be subjected to a rigorous "post mortem" during the next few months. One of the objects of the Question Mark's flight was to ascertain the effect of continuous running under flight conditions. One officer here pointed out that airplane motors have been run to destruction by Army experimenters and scientists at the Bureau of Standards but not under conditions similar to those of actual flight. Improvements are constantly made on airplane motors and officials think that reliable 300-hour motors will soon be commonplace.

Yet a 300-hour motor is not absolutely essential to 10-day non-stop flight, these officers explain. It is known that if a motor is given a rest—metal suffers from fatigue the same as animals—it will run much longer than if it is operated continuously.

With refueling an accomplished fact, it will be possible to have multi-motored planes in which one series of motors will keep the plane going forward while the other set or sets are resting.

Weight Bugaboo Routed by Question Mark's Feat.

Heretofore weight has been the constant bugaboo of the aviator. Motors and planes being what they are, only a limited amount of fuel could be taken aboard. For that reason a single-motored plane could stay aloft as long as a multi-motored ship—perhaps longer. As a matter of fact, most of the endurance records were made by single-motored planes.

Refueling routs the bugaboo and definitely gives the multi-motored plane the advantage for continuous flight. Now the multi-motored plane can take off with a comparatively light load, or with several relief pilots in lieu of excessive fuel, and be refueled whenever necessary. If one motor or set of motors gives out, there are others to sustain the flight. In a single-motored plane, the operations are limited by the endurance of the one motor.

The Germans are already experimenting with a 12-motored seaplane, made by Dornier-Wall, in which one set of six motors pulls the plane and the other set pushes. Commenting on this plane, an officer said:

"It is easily conceivable that a plane of this type could stay aloft for 10 days. With refueling, one set of motors could sustain the flight for 100 hours and then be rested while the other set did the work. If the first set developed trouble, such as worn spark plugs, replacements could be made during the flight. By resting the engines the duration of the flight would be immeasurably lengthened."

Another problem besetting long distance flights, particularly over the water, is that of accurate navigation. The improvements of the radio beacon and the induction compass, however, have lessened the danger of getting off a charted course.

The tentative route proposed by the Fokker Company started at Paris and called for refueling planes at Aleppo in Syria, Karachi and Calcutta, in India, Hong Kong, China, Vladivostok, Petropavlosk and Kamchatka, Russia, and a flight across Canada from Prince Rupert or Vancouver to St. John's, N. F., with a refueling plane at Winnipeg.

Army officers here think the cost of organizing an around-the-world flight of an adequate scale of co-operation is almost prohibitive to a private company or an individual.

Briton Finds Cow-Town Days And Wild West Only a Memory To Kansas City and Denver

Conventions, Autos and Sky Scrapers Seen by Visiting Journalist Where Buffalo and Plainsmen Roamed.

UNDER the heading, "The Heart of America: Modern Townships of the Prairie States," Collinson Owen of the Daily Telegraph (London) wrote as follows of his visit to Kansas City and Denver as a member of the party of British journalists which recently toured the United States as guests of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace:

THE train jerks to a stop which finally brings me out of that condition of morning torpor which for some of us is the normal slow transition between sleeping and awaking. I pull up the blind, look out, and am thrilled into utter wakefulness.

I am looking at nothing more extraordinary than a small station shack. But on it in large letters are the words "Kit Carson." Smaller lettering informs me that Kansas City is more than 600 miles behind, that Denver is 150 miles ahead, and that the altitude is something over 5000 feet. Kit Carson, one of the old names of boyhood, perhaps second only to Buffalo Bill!

This tiny township is named after the great plainsman. Here are the plains where once buffalo roamed. There is barbed wire to be seen now. Here, for all I know, is the only monument to one of those men who helped to make America that never dreamed of the radio, baseball, or big business; an America that had its bad men, but was innocent of gunmen.

A tiny place Kit Carson; a few shacks, a telegraph office, and a store, but also a filling station and a garage. Tracks run off over the khaki-colored earth to the near horizon, leading to God knows where. There is nothing to be seen but Kit Carson. The short grass bends before an energetic wind, which I feel by the general pinched look of things is also a bitter wind.

Sees Autos Everywhere.

There are perhaps a dozen motor cars to be seen. But one almost ceases to notice motor cars in America. They swarm in the big places and spill over into the little ones. They are like feet, everywhere, and just about as noticeable; some beautiful and glittering, others very badly in need of a shine.

We jerk out of Kit Carson and roll across the prairie. A quite good road runs alongside the railway track. Here and there we pass motor cars on it. Some of them are sedans (or, as England would say, saloons), and inside them they have cigar lighters Kit Carson, with his long rifle, never thought of these things.

Still in pajamas, I think over what I saw in Kansas City which the night has left over 600 miles away. I was very tired when I left there and have had as good a sleep in a train as a man could hope to have.

What would one expect to find in Kansas City? I had not the slightest idea. I visited it in company with an Anglo-American who knew it as a cow town over 40 years ago, and had never seen it since. With him it was something of a sentimental journey, but he had no more idea of what he was going to see than I had. He was even more surprised when we did get there.

From Cows to Conventions.

No longer a cow town, but a very thriving, modern city, with a population in and around it of over 600,000. Kansas City has 13,169 hotel rooms, 8922 of which are provided with a bath. (This is mentioned, in case you ever wish to hold a convention there, which is something that is always happening in America. If you enter a hotel and find it thronged with earnest men all wearing their names in their buttonholes, then you know that up on the twelfth or the seventeenth a convention is being held. Fortunately we found no convention in Kansas City, but a hotel excellent from every point of view.)

Kansas City not only calls itself "the heart of America" (it is almost the geographical dead center), but "America's most beautiful city." This is a touch of hyperbole which need not be taken too seriously in a country where civic pride can become almost a religious ecstasy. There are men in America who would die for their cities, just as there used to be men who would die for a faith. Kansas City presumably bases its claim to surpassing beauty on the development of its suburbs, and one that I explored, known as the Country Club district, is certainly an astonishing example of how a very large estate may be developed for residential purposes.

There are hundreds of beautiful houses, Spanish, Italian, English and Colonial in design, and the whole is an outstanding example of what real estate can do when animated by real idealism. This idealism, by the way has to be paid for; £10,000 ($50,000) would be a modest enough price for a home in the best sections of this region.

Kansas City's Memorial.

One met very pleasant people in Kansas City, all very keen on their city's progress. There is something that stands outside the railway station which may be said to be the embodiment of the city's desire to make the very best of itself. This is the Liberty Memorial, the main feature of which is a column, 280 feet high, rising from the top of a hill. If you approach Kansas City by night you see issuing from this column a flame itself many feet high. So does Kansas City commemorate its heroes of the Great War.

The money for this towering memorial was raised in a week. It was inaugurated by Foch, Beatty and Pershing. I forget how many of the fallen the memorial records, but it is fair to presume that Kansas City did not lose so many of its men in the war as, say, Folkestone, England Yet in all the British Empire there is no memorial so majestic as this: not even in London where our modest Cenotaph stands for the British Empire's 1,070,000 dead.

It is notable, by the way, that the total of British dead is recorded in one of the two halls that flank the monument. So does contemporary Kansas City, the beginning of the old Santa Fe trail, insure that its history is preserved.

So to Denver and the Rockies. What do they know of Denver who only think of New York? Nothing. And what do we find when we get there? Excellent stores, a skyscraper or two, well laid-out streets, very fine parks, pleasant suburbs, a most striking natural history museum, and every sign of modernity and progress. Everything except the good old roaring days, traces of which a visitor from afar rather wistfully hopes to find.

Finds a Modern Denver.

Denver is modern. It also stands a mile high, and people who go there to die remain on for decades in the best of health. The city is most salubrious and is determined to become even more modern. In Denver one almost forgets that one is in Colorado—that evocative name which sounds so wild and romantic from afar. Denver, in a way, is even subduing the Rockies. It has secured splendid natural parks up there, so that some day the "realtor" will find that there are no more building sites to be had.

Even so, one approaches these enclaves of wild nature by means of excellent motor roads. One such road takes you up Lookout

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

England and the War.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN his new book purporting to expose war myths, Arthur Ponsonby, British M. P., is found to be himself a liberal contributor to the list of "whoppers" he is supposed to puncture. No British Government would dare declare war without feeling that national sentiment sanctioned their course in addition to the parliamentary majority they would have to command. The bulk of the English people approved entrance into the war because they had faith in the judgment of statesmen like Gray and Asquith and believed the honor of England involved by treaty in the violation of Belgium neutrality. The English nation has a high and abiding respect for treaties as sacred national obligations of which we have little conception.

But to the men at the helm of state there were reasons for action more imperative than broken treaties. By every principle of self-protection England could not afford to see a German military autocracy triumph over France or even Russia. The hegemony of any military Power in Europe was a threat to English freedom and could no more be tolerated in 1914 than in the time of Philip II of Spain, Louis XIV of France or Napoleon. It takes little imagination to picture the plight of England with the Kaiser standing astride of Europe. It would have meant destruction, and although the eyes of our foreign policy have never been raised to so distant a horizon, it is time Americans realized that any military Power strong enough to threaten the subjugation of England, is a threat to us.

The proximity of England to the continent places her in the first line of resistance to a dominant European Power, but just as surely are we in the second line and whatever force breaks the first line will eventually collide with the second.

Unfair Tactics in Wrestling.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HAVING spent considerable time on the mat, I am taking the liberty to censure some of the grapplers for what I call unfair tactics. The wrestling game, as it is intended, is to pin your opponent's shoulders to the mat long enough for it to be seen by the referee, and the more cleverly this is done, the better the job. Butting, striking, gouging and consistently trying to throw each other from the ring is not sportsmanship. Wrestlers insisting on using these methods should forfeit their bouts. Wrestling is the most scientific of athletic sports. More public interest should and will be taken if it is properly conducted. I will go so far as to say that I have seen leniency shown in the execution of hammer locks and toe holds to prevent the dislocating or breaking of bones. The audience's remarks were that they were square shooters.

Scientific Inferiority Complex.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PROF. HARRY ELMER BARNES holds, as most thinking people must, that we have heard too much of the low estate of man, emphasized by some theologians, who have placed man on the plane of the worm. Man began, as to his body, as a worm, but has progressed until his mind can grasp such astounding concepts as Prof. Barnes deals with in his statements regarding astrophysical science.

Yes. A certain branch of theology has induced the inferiority complex in many who accept it. On the other hand, the higher theology dignifies man as a child of a Divine Parent. As such, he may be properly humble, but cannot suffer from an inferiority complex.

But are we not liable to feel a terrible inferiority complex if we accept Prof. Barnes' view that man is merely "a highly temporary chemical episode on a most petty plane?" The body of man may be just that and no more. But, mechanical as the body appears, it is not the real man, any more than that an automobile is the driver. Prof. Barnes' profound knowledge of science cannot be merely a chemical output of his brain cells. Can a battery understand itself? The shortness of mortal life, the size of our planet compared with the universe, the concepts of infinity and eternity should not daunt us or make us feel inferior. The fact that we can create and hold such concepts should prove to us that we are no mere chemical episodes, but in some sense one with what Herbert Spencer called "the Power that works for righteousness."

"Happy Tacoma."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial under the caption "Happy Tacoma," was most interesting, one might say illuminating, though not electrically generated.

Ye gods, think of buying current at ½ cent per kilowatt hour. We know, without asking, that the Power Trust does not own Tacoma. Tell it to "the cavaliers of Cities Service Co." and let them sing of the glories of "Seattle."

Tell us—we ask with fear and trembling—is the plant at Tacoma municipally owned? Then—tell us what "The North American" charges the people of St. Louis.

If you like to answer questions, get the financial editor to tell us why the common stock of "Service Cities" is selling on the curb in the neighborhood of 90—more than four times par value?

TARIFFS AND GOOD WILL.

It is admitted that tariff walls raised between the nations of Europe since the World War have been an obstacle to peace and amity between those countries, and it is so everywhere.

Let us take Mr. Hoover's admirable effort to win the good will of Argentina. That is a great country, one of major power and influence among the Latin Americans. Its welcome to Mr. Hoover as President-elect of the United States was punctilious enough to have suited the fastidious. Yet Argentina is by no means so friendly to the United States as she would like to be. She cannot be so because Argentina is an agricultural country whose chief exports are meats, hides, corn, wheat, linseed, etc. She cannot export any wheat to the United States, and does not expect to do so, since our own country has wheat for export. She could export meats, hides, corn, linseed, etc., to the United States, and does so upon a limited scale. Like New Zealand and Denmark, both of whom export butter to the United States, she finds it possible to sell some of her agricultural products in this country despite the tariff. This is particularly true of corn when there is a short crop in the United States.

Argentina therefore likes our tariffs against her products. She is at an economic disadvantage with a country which is at once industrial and agricultural. She regards with disquiet the prospect that in an effort to do something for the farmer Mr. Hoover and Congress are going to increase the tariffs against her agricultural products. So, too, does Canada contemplate this probability with dismay. After pointing out that we credit Canada in the United States for a large part of our trade expansion, Sir John Aird, president of the Canada Bank of Commerce, said in his inaugural address:

> It seems at least unneighborly that under these conditions the threat of higher tariffs, which will at least exclude our agricultural exports, should have been made during the recent election campaign and indorsed by the people of the United States.

If not unneighborly, it certainly is not the way to friendship among nations. The United States is rapidly growing as an industrial nation. As it does so, its need for foreign markets increases. Both Canada and Argentina, however disposed they are to buy American manufactures, would still find the balance of trade with us against them because of our tariffs against their agricultural products. In 1926, for instance, Argentina sold us goods valued at $80,169,993, whereas she bought from us goods worth $148,758,606. In 1927 the figures were $80,137,205 and $143,574,682. Canada, thanks to the liquor traffic, is better off than that. She sold us goods worth $454,235,409 in 1926 and bought from us goods valued at $648,767,503, whereas in 1927 the figures were $525,060,719 and $738,474,772. It is for this reason that there is a growing disposition all over the world to question the wisdom of tariffs. Our own country, so far addicted to them as to disqualify at the polls any party that would even discuss the question, cannot be always blind to the rising antipathy between agricultural tariffs and industrial markets.

Mr. Hoover and his party are placed in the anomalous position of championing industry while still promising the farmer higher tariffs against foreign agricultural products. It is a contradiction of which we are bound to hear more.

F. Langworthy, Chicago clubwoman, who advances the interesting social theory that the wage earner has the first right to the bath tub; Charles Erickson, not satisfied with a plastic nose made from a kangaroo bone, who said to the judge: "Look at my beak now!"; snow, which fell yesterday while the sun was out; William G. Lynch of the Boston City Council, who says Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, is "a racketeer, blackmailer and blackjacker" and Judge Fuchs, who re-replies that Lynch is a bloody rat and is trying to ruin his life, and it does seem that somebody ought to speak to the boys before they get nasty.

McGUFFEY'S RENAISSANCE.

The movement originating in Indiana to perpetuate the fame of William Holmes McGuffey and his series of six "Eclectic Readers" is to become national. The millions of men and women over the country who studied his books in their childhood will be eligible to become members of the McGuffeyites, as the Hoosier State admirers of the nineteenth century educator have styled themselves.

At last the part played by McGuffey's readers in opening the gates of literature in an important phase of the nation's development is being realized. Henry Ford several years ago, in the course of his investigations into Americana, issued reprints of the volumes, and these have been widely circulated. Mark Sullivan, in preparing his history of twentieth century America, entitled "Our Times," wrote to hundreds of outstanding personages for information as to their early education and impressions. Almost unanimously they replied with praise of McGuffey's readers. "I still have a copy of the sixth," which is the foundation of what I know of literature," wrote Senator Walsh, and other views were similar.

Students in the little red schoolhouses read well-chosen moral tales and simple ventures into literature in the elementary volumes of the series. In the fifth and sixth readers, lads in corduroys and copper-toed boots first met the Turk at midnight in his guarded tent, the boy who stood on the burning deck, the awakened Rip Van Winkle, Franklin entering Philadelphia, and other classic figures.

From his wide knowledge, McGuffey chose his eclectic readings wisely, and they stuck in the memories of his students. Many a reference in modern writing and speech harks back to reading lessons of 30 to 60 years ago. Upwards of 80,000,000 of the books were printed, but the compiler's remuneration was modest. He received a royalty of 10 per cent until $1000 was reached, and then the books became the property of the publishers. They paid him a fee for preparing the various revisions, but that was all. The McGuffeyites can achieve a worthy task by inspiring a renaissance of his work.

THE ROCKEFELLER-STEWART FIGHT.

The Rockefeller-Stewart fight may not be ballyhooed as "the battle of the century," but it is bound to command a good deal of public interest. John D. Rockefeller Jr., as is generally known, wants Col. Robert W. Stewart removed from the chairmanship of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana for these reasons: because of Stewart's connection with the unsavory Continental Trading Co.; because of his participation in that clandestine company's profits; because, finally, of his evasive testimony before the Senate committee concerning his knowledge of the disposition of Continental's bonds which resulted in two charges—contempt of the Senate and perjury.

True, Mr. Stewart was acquitted—on the perjury charge by the lack-of-a-quorum verdict. Anyhow, the acquittal stands. Mr. Stewart points to it with righteousness. He will fight Rockefeller to a finish, and Col. Stewart, be it said, is a first-class fighting man.

Were an opinion as to the outcome to be hazarded, the "dope," in the pungent argot of the sports world, would make Stewart the favorite. The rugged Colonel has fought his way to the top through the rough-and-tumble of life. There can be little, if anything, in the strategy or the tactics of the strife that he does not know. In fistic phrase, he "can take it and give it." This Spartan tutelage Mr. Rockefeller has been denied. It is a match, so to speak, between a votary of business ethics and a two-fisted walloper.

The "dope" may be further drawn on. In the interminable oil scandal many giants of the industry have been involved. Not one of them has been socially or industrially ostracised. They all remain in good standing. Los Angeles has wreathed Doheny's generous brow. Sinclair has been certified to by the National Petroleum Institute. Though they fled into exile, Blackmer and O'Neil have always been spoken of with esteem and affection by their associates in the inquisitorial narrative. And Stewart, we are told, has the support of powerful banking houses in this duel for a kingdom.

On form, therefore, Stewart should win. But down in Florida is a mellow old gentleman and enthusiastic golfer whom the biographers may describe as a Napoleon that met no Waterloo. And if John D. Jr. should prove himself a chip off the old block Mr. Stewart and the "dope" and the bankers are all headed for an upset.

MISSOURI GAME REFUGES.

Former Gov. Frederick D. Gardner, addressing the State Game and Fish Commissioner, Keith McCanse, makes the excellent point that while Missouri has an admirable program for game reserves it is doing nothing of this sort for waterfowl, one of the prime recreational assets of the State. He suggests that it establish refuges for ducks and geese, and points out that if there were such a refuge in St. Charles County, where duckhunting is conducted upon an extensive scale, it would greatly improve the sport in that region.

This is true, and it is a project to which the State could well address itself. The Federal Government will likely get in the next Congress an appropriation for such refuges as Mr. Gardner has in mind, but it is a matter in which the states can very largely help themselves. The mass of migrating waterfowl coming down the Missouri, Mississippi and Illinois rivers, is greeted by a leaden hail that hurries it through. Except for the refuges maintained on a few large marshes by sportsmen, there would be no waterfowl left in the State after this greeting. Not even the rivers themselves afford sanctuary, since despite all the Federal game wardens can do the armed motorboat is busy in all these waters while the game is here. It is not a work, however important to sport all over the river bottoms, in which the states often distinguished themselves. Even the Illinois River, one of the great shooting areas, has only recently enjoyed prevention by the State of wholesale motor boat shooting. Missouri has never seriously tried to stop it.

A considerable part of the funds which the State Game and Fish Department has come from duck hunters. They are a large and enthusiastic tribe, and as soon as the State can get around to them it should do precisely what Mr. Gardner suggests. There is a great deluge of ducks. Thanks to the farseeing policy which stopped spring shooting 16 years ago, and protects by treaty with Canada their principal breeding grounds in the North, the birds have increased until there is no state in the Union without them. In favored regions they are literally myriad. They have been preserved to meet the reasonable requirements of sport, and Missouri sportsmen ought to have their full share of the game.

BLURBAGE.

The use of good English and correct pronunciation is a quality worthy of cultivation. But as we twist the dials of evenings, we cannot help feeling that one punctilious class is abusing the attribute. Certain radio announcers indicate they cannot do their stuff properly unless the mouth is crammed with mashed potatoes, this state imparting the desired finesse to their diction. It gives us the impression of waspish suits, lavender handkerchiefs and cologne. We may be wrong.

At any rate, the Piccadilly delivery leaves us fairly writhing in the consciousness of our own humble palaver. Perhaps it is because we of St Louis speak exemplary United States. And the way the announcers pronounce foreign languages leaves us verdant with envy. We don't know what to call their enunciation, but if Lewis Carroll were alive he'd probably term it "blurbage" and write a poem about it. The poem might go something like this:

'Twas guffy and the microphones
  Did glob and globber in the wave,
All blurbage were the potatotones,
  And the broad A's outrave.

The surprising thing is that some fitting term has not been adopted to succeed the banal "announcer"—etherologist, for instance, or ozonosifer.

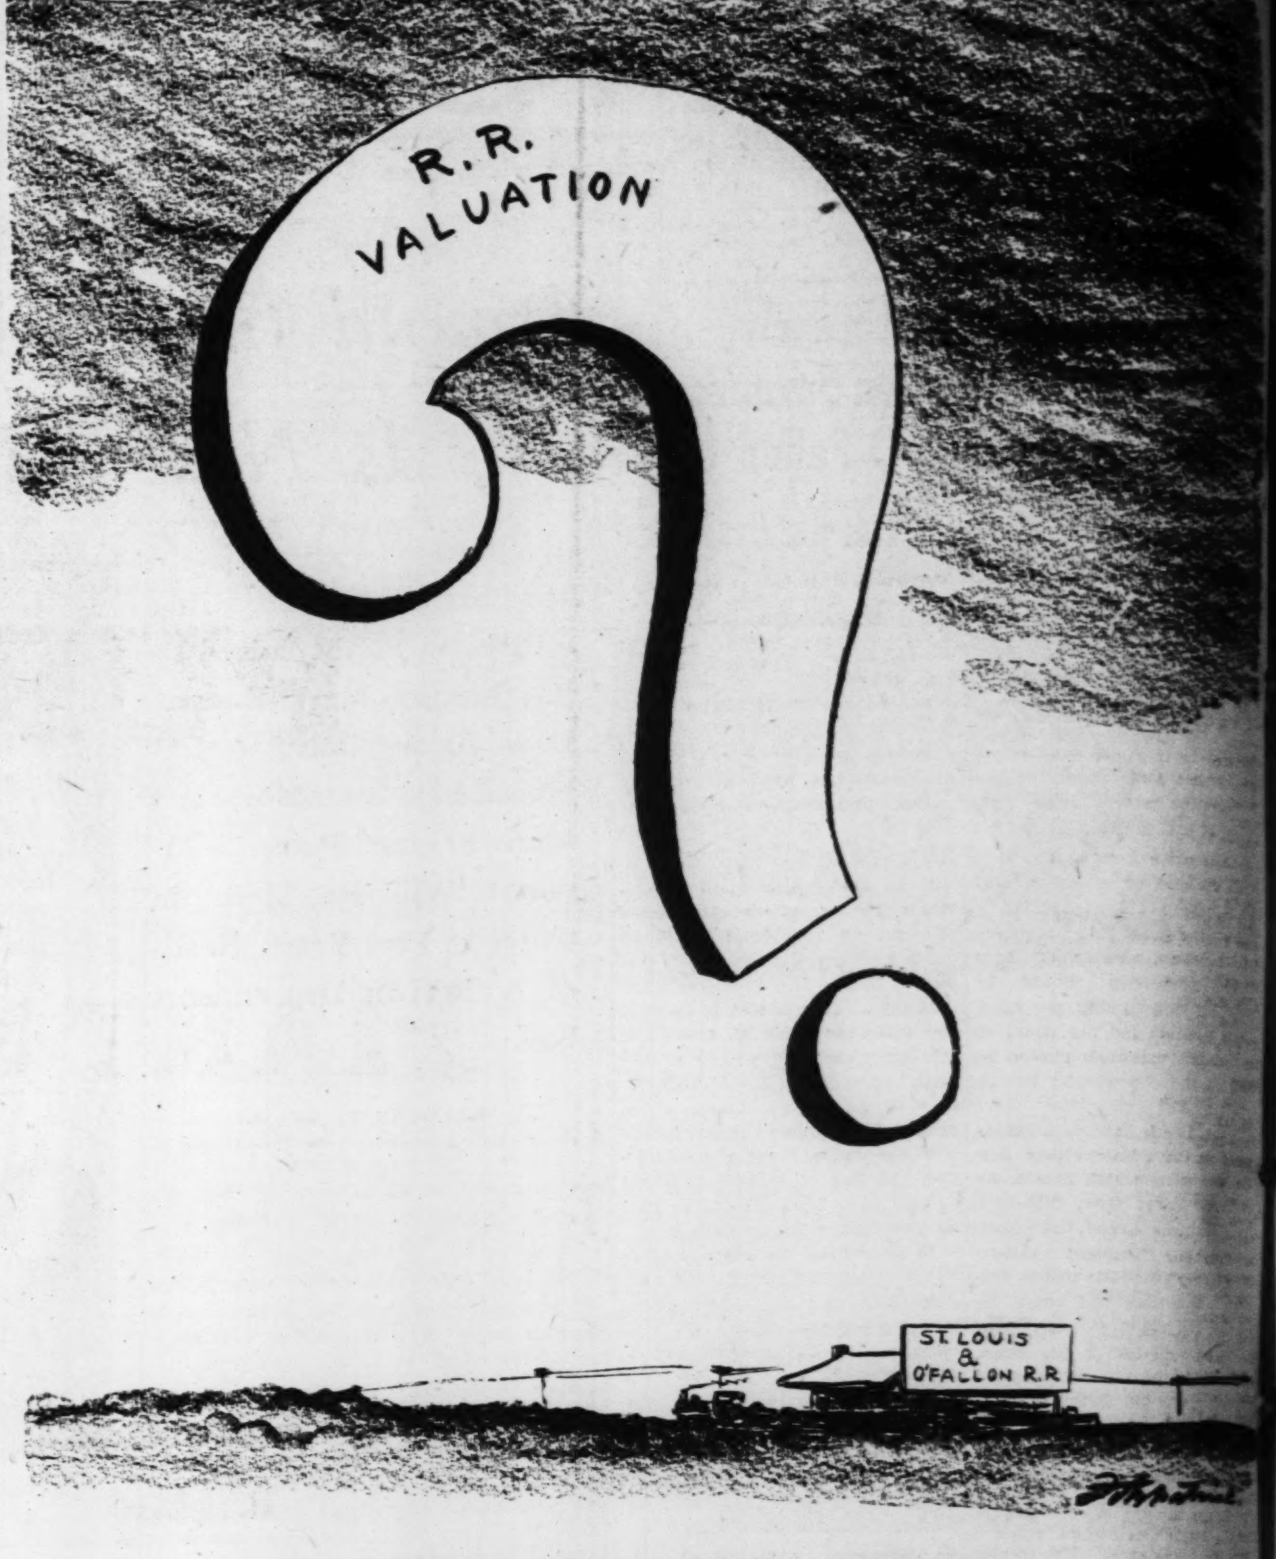
If the marines have finished in Nicaragua, why not have them teach Oklahoma how to govern herself?



A BIGGER QUESTION MARK IN THE AIR.

Missouri Dialect

To Early Missourians, Creek Was "Branch;" the Ice on It Was "Slick," Not Slippery; When the Missourian Says "I Know What I Knows," He Is Falling Into the Argot of Elizabethan Days; Words Like "Axed" and "Mought" Have Long Genealogy; Missouri Speech Influenced by the Bible.

WALTER WILLIAMS in "Missouri."

THE Missouri dialect is the finest flowering of the English language. It was with no surprise, therefore, though with proper appreciation, that I read in the St. Louis newspapers that a resident of Missouri's metropolis had been voted by an Eastern observation committee to be the best speaker of English in the United States. Those who do not comprehend the beauty of the Missouri dialect may not agree with the decision, but those who know it in its purity, power, and persuasiveness will cordially approve the decision. It might well become the language universal. It is less mechanical than Esperanto and more graceful than Volapuk.

The Missouri dialect may be acquired through hard labor, and association with good people, but it comes naturally and without effort to those who are to the manner born. In the genuine Missouri dialect, the name of the State is pronounced "Miz-zou-rah" or "Miz-zou-ry." It is never "Mis-sou-ri" to any genuine Missourian, early or late, unless he gets his pronunciation from the mis-information of the dictionary makers. The hissing sound of "s" does not appear in the Missouri dialect in the name of Missouri.

To the early Missourians who made the dialect, the creek or "crick" was a "branch." Upon it in winter the ice was "slick" not "slippery." The Missouri dialect is a social dialect, and is used at "you all's" house. No, "you all" is not a corruption, but the best of English. The Missouri dialect does not get its phrases from the darkey, or from any degenerate mode of speech. It comes in large measure from the King James version of the Bible, that "well of English undefiled." When the Missourian "went to meetin'" he heard the apostolic benediction "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all."

The early Missourian invented the Missouri dialect, and we who are trustees of the wealth inherited from him are the temporary custodians thereof. The Missouri dialect is neither coarse nor rough. In it one may swear, but only as a gentleman swears; shout, but only as a gentleman shouts. The letter "r" has small place in the alphabet of the original Missouri dialect, though a wicked and perverse generation has drilled it into our children's speech along with the omission of "sir" and "ma'am." When the letter "r" was employed at all, it was for "ohnament" rather than for use. Even the stranger within our gates (he should not long remain a stranger in so hospitable a commonwealth) when he hears the Missouri dialect as it was before the old-maid dictionary makers of both sexes robbed it of much of its distinctive charm, marvels at its surpassing beauty. He may not be able at first to understand it, any more than he understands classical music, but if honest with himself, he will rave over its delightsomeness as some persons rave over grand opera. There is fame and fortune awaiting the opera company that will sing "The Girl of the Golden West" or some real grand opera in the original Missouri dialect. Of course, it would not be "The Girl of the Golden West" at all, but the gyurl."

There is a picture in a single word—"gyurl"—not a young lady," not even, save the mark, a "kid." "Gyurl" suggests a wholesome, dimpled, vivacious, slender figure, who could wear a ball dress or a gingham apron with equal grace. And she made the likeliest "courtin'" though she said "do'" and "flo'" and "wah." She "weaved" and spun. Did you ever hold a hank of yarn? Perhaps there is no other occupation on earth more tiresome when done for your grandmother. But if you held the hank of yarn for the right "gyurl," that was different.

And in the Missouri dialect, no Missouri "gyurl" preferred a "finicky" man. "Finicky" antedates "sissy" and "mollycoddle" and is, as Uncle Remus would say more "servigorous" than either. Nor has the race of "finicky" men, I regret to say, who know no the Missouri dialect, perished from the earth.

Archaic though the Missouri dialect was and is, where it survives in any degree in its original simplicity, it had high-born origin. The early Missourian brought his English speech from the south of England, the speech of Cambridge and Oxford and of Stratford-on Avon. He fed it with books of the eighteenth century, the library of yesterday in the Missouri homes. There were not many books in the first Missouri homes, but they were used books. A book in the hand is worth a thousand in the Carnegie Library. A single running stream enriches the land more than all the reservoirs.

The expressions used in the Missouri dialect in the simplest Missouri speech, which seem odd to the over-cultured, may be and often are survivals of English used three centuries ago. They are not corruptions, but continuations. An old Northern dialect of England added "s" to the present tense. It survives in "says I" and "thinks I." The Missouri boy was reviving Shakspeare's days when he said "I know what I knows." Geoffrey Chaucer, whom everybody talks about and nobody willingly reads, makes two of the Canterbury Tales heroes say, "I is" and "you was," then the common speech. It is a mere survival not a corruption, when, in excited phrase, the Missouri dialect slips from "you were" to "you was." And even "axed" and "mought," uncouth expressions, have classic origin, and are not base born. From the south of England through the same descent comes the quaint and wholly charming pronunciation of "gyurl," "gyarden," "gyarter," and "Kyernel Cyarter of Cyartersville."

The Missouri dialect is neighborly talk, and neighborliness is the greatest need of state, nation and world today. Some of it, fortunately for picturesqueness, survives, journeying upon provincial borders, and thereby adds life to language. The good Missouri housewife, when her sweetcakes were praised (sweetcakes, not cookies — "sweetcakes" are delightfully Missourian) modestly replied, "they are not as nice as common."

Perhaps no single cause served more to keep the English of the seventeenth century in the Missouri dialect than the early
Missourian's reading of a certain
From thence comes much of the speech that we call Missourian, wrought into the very fiber of the dialect.

Supreme Court Unlikely to Write Valuation Formula

for a valuation based on original cost.

It may be taken for granted, then, that the Supreme Court will not support the reproduction cost as the sole test of value. It is equally certain, in the light of the Southwestern Bell and the Indianapolis water and other cases, that it will not accept the Brandeis "prudent investment" doctrine.

Other Cases Held Back.

With these possibilities eliminated, what is the court likely to do? It may, as has been suggested, evade the valuation issue entirely by upholding the O'Fallon's contention that it should have been valued with the commonly owned and controlled Manufacturers' Railway, in which case the manufacturer's deficits would have offset the O'Fallon profits and there would have been no recapturable excess. If the court does this, it will simply postpone the day of decision on the valuation issue. Ultimately, it will have to meet the issue. Other cases under the recapture provisions of the transportation act—the provisions which enable the Government to recover one half of the earnings of a carrier in excess of 6 per cent—are being prepared by the Interstate Commerce Commission. These cases have been held back in order that the commission might have the guidance of a decision in the O'Fallon case. In some of them, at least, the question of valuation methods will be put squarely up to the court without extraneous issues.

It is possible for the court to say, as did the majority of the three-Judge Federal Court which passed originally on the case, that the issue of confiscation is not raised in the O'Fallon case, since even under its own showing of values it received a fair return, and that hence it is not necessary for the court to approve or disapprove the commission's valuation methods. A decision of this sort, like any decision based upon the "single system" issue, would simply defer the day of judgment with regard to valuation. One or more of the cases to be filed by the commission will certainly raise the confiscation issue.

Again, it is possible for the Supreme Court to over-rule the District Court simply on the ground that the latter erred in declining to admit new evidence. This result, as in the other hypothetical instances, would leave the court confronted with the necessity of meeting the main issue in some future proceeding.

No Valuation Formula Likely.

Let us suppose that the court decides to go to the heart of the O'Fallon case. If it does this, the decision must run either for or against the valuation result reached by the commission. Having regard to the fact that the argument before the Supreme Court was narrowed down to the question of whether or not the commission observed the "law of the land," specially the "fair value" rule announced in Smyth vs. Ames, it is a fair assumption that if the court decides for the commission, it will simply say that the commission fairly applied the law within its discretionary powers, and that if the court decides against the commission, it will say that the commission failed to give due weight to reproduction cost.

The Supreme Court, in other words, is not going to write a valuation formula. All reasonable probabilities, based on the nature of the O'Fallon argument, the decisions of the court in previous cases and the known predilections of the several Judges, point to a decision to the general effect that the commission did or did not give "due consideration" to all "elements of value" and "all relevant facts." The court is likely to say, as it did 30 years ago, that these elements must be given "such weight as may be just and right in each case."

What would be the practical effect of the court's decision along these lines? If for the commission, the result would be to affirm the O'Fallon rule, and in that case the commission would continue to value the railroads as it is now doing. The result would be to leave the total railroad valuation at about the figure where it was tentatively placed by the commission in giving effect to the Transportation act. In other words, a decision upholding the commission would take nothing from the railroads that they now possess. As pointed out by Government counsel, it would not disturb a condition under which the railroads have attained a marked degree of prosperity.

A Vista of Endless Litigation.

If the decision is against the commission, it will have to enter upon a redetermination of the O'Fallon value, and thus the whole question of railroad valuation for recapture and rate-making purposes will again be thrown wide open. Again, the commission will be called upon to say what weight should be attached to reproduction cost, and if the assigned weight is again held to be too low, still another revaluation will be necessary. Given a commission that continues to think as the commission thought in the O'Fallon case, and a Supreme Court inclined to insist upon reproduction cost as a controlling element of value, and there is opened up an endless vista of judicial reviews of valuation orders.

Likewise, there is certain to be litigation by other railroads if the Commission is upheld in the O'Fallon case. The extent of this will depend on the nature of the court's decision. It is within the power of the court greatly to discourage it by a clean-cut pronouncement upholding the Commission as a body of rate-making experts, with wide discretionary powers conferred upon it by Congress. The Government would like for the court to say, as it said in the Minnesota rate cases: "The rate-making power is a legislative power and necessarily implies a range of legislative discretion. We do not sit as a board of revision to substitute our judgment for that of the Legislature, or of the Commission lawfully constituted by it, as to matters within the province of either."

Whichever way the decision goes, it will have an effect within the whole field of public utility regulation. Public service commissions at present are influenced greatly by the Indianapolis Water case, in which dominant weight was given to reproduction cost. The tendency to be guided by this case will be strengthened if the O'Fallon's contentions are upheld It will be weakened if the Supreme Court permits the Interstate Commerce Commission's rule to stand.

Speculation on the Division.

There is naturally no end of speculation as to how the Supreme Court will divide. Eight Judges will decide the case, Justice Butler, who wrote the Indianapolis opinion, having taken himself out of it because of his previous connection as a railroad lawyer with valuation cases.

Since it takes a majority of the court to overrule a judgment, the decision of the District Court in favor of the Interstate Commerce Commission will stand if as many as four Justices vote to affirm. The pected, from their opinions in previous cases, to vote on the commission's side, are Holmes, Brandeis and Stone. That they will so vote is, of course, an assumption merely, and it is based solely on their records. None of the three gave any indication of his views during the arguments in the O'Fallon case. If they do, indeed, join themselves to sustain the commission, only one recruit from the other five sitting members will be necessary to achieve that result.

The decision may be reached before the summer recess of the court beginning in June. If not then, it cannot be handed down until after the reassembling of the court for the October term.

Kansas City and Denver as Seen by British Writer

Mountain to Buffalo Bill's grave, near which is an attractive log hut museum devoted to his memory. It is a beautiful spot. One wonders what sort of shrine it will become to the America of 100 years hence. There are no limits to what it may come to mean of chivalry, romance, adventure. Here lies America's Chevalier Bayard, in spite of the fact that he went round the world with a Wild West show.

Beyond Lookout Mountain rolls range after range of the Rockies. Colorado is still Colorado, in places. But I do not find those places, not even at Colorado Springs, 50 or 60 miles away. This is an inland watering place, very well-known and quite charming. It is laid out with spacious streets, and no building is particularly high. I stay in an hotel which might be in Buxton, Harrogate or Torquay. Behind it rises Pike's Peak, over 14,000 feet high. I am told that I cannot be driven to the summit as the motor road is blocked by snow.

Up Mountain in Auto.

There is wonderful scenery round Colorado Springs. The Garden of the Gods, for instance, a fantastic region with rose-red rocks of amazing shapes glowing against a sky of cobalt blue, is worthily named. Somebody invites me casually for a mountain ride. Knowing nothing of what is coming, I accept. We start up Cheyenne Mountain.

The fine motor highway remains a motor highway, but it performs the fantastic feats of a goat-track. We got up and up by fantastic hairpin bends. I look down—good heavens! I look up—it is worse! Round and round we climb. The great plain below grows flatter and flatter. So we arrive at the plateau, the restaurant and the observation windows nearly 10,000 feet up.

Think of it. A millionaire buys a mountain, builds a splendid $3,000,000 motor highway up it, puts up a toll bar, charges motorists $1 a head—and does well on it! The thing is unbelievable. Yet as I watch the twilight die out on the plain beneath, and Colorado Springs emerges, twinkling, an immense cross of thousands of points of light, I feel that it is worth it, except that having motored up one has to motor down, in the dark Round and round, hairpins by the score, and Eternity calmly waiting below. . . . I try to console myself with the thought that after this, motoring in Devon should hold no terrors for me.

BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR TO OPEN FEB. 18

Exhibition at London and Birmingham to Be Largest in History.

Announcement of the fifteenth British Industries Fair, to be held concurrently at the White City, London, and Castle Bromwich Exhibition Buildings, Birmingham, from Feb 18 to March 1, has been received by the British Consulate in St. Louis.

The fair will be under the general auspices of the Department of Overseas Trade, which will organize the London section, devoted to lighter trades, while the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce will organize the other section, devoted to heavier trades.

The fair will be on a larger scale than ever before, more than 500,000 square feet of exhibition space having been let. In London, more than 280,000 square feet have been let, while at Birmingham the whole of the 200,000 feet available within the buildings has been let and the authorities have added an open-air section for exhibits of heavy outdoor machinery.

Features of the London section will be in pottery and glassware, sporting goods, furniture and basketware, toys, leather and leather goods, stationery and printing, fancy goods, clothing and textiles, foodstuffs, chemicals, radio and jewelry.

At Birmingham, the engineering, hardware, electrical apparatus and crude oil engines will make up the larger part of the exhibition.

The Department of Overseas Trade has been campaigning to bring overseas buyers to the fair from all parts of the world. A large attendance from the United States, Canada and Holland is expected.

To co-operate with the foreign buyers, arrangements have been made for a corps of interpreters to assist them in language difficulties, special club rooms have been set up for them, and British Consular Officers have been instructed to grant free visas in countries where this privilege is not normally accorded.

CAMELLIAS ON SHOW AT SHAW'S GARDEN

Primroses, Too, Are Blooming and the African Cone Flower, New to St. Louis.

Showy camellias and delicate primroses—which, like Collette, are "shy as any violet"—are on display for the remainder of the month at Shaw's Garden.

The camellias are coming rapidly into bloom in the Linnaean House, the red brick building at the north side of the garden. Some of the shrubs are covered with flowers, and the profusion of buds on others promises an even richer display.

Three distinct forms and all the colors from pure white to deep red have been developed from the "wild" red single variety, native to Japan. Near it may be seen the rosette of the semi-double type; the imbricated type, with a ruff of overlapping petals surrounding an unopened group of petals like a rosebud, and the full-blown double type.

Camellias, among the oldest flowers in European cultivation—they were taken to the Continent from the Orient by Joseph Kamel, a Moravian traveler, in the seventeenth century—have been overshadowed for some years by gaudier and more durable flowers, but are rapidly returning to popularity in this country. North of the path in the Linnaean House are scores of profusely flowering plants, recently imported from France, which represent the finest camellias of Europe.

Thousands of baby primrose blossoms are a cloud of vague lavender in the floral display house. About the fish pool below the entrance balcony are grouped selected strains obtained in England last year by Dr. George T. Moore, director of the garden.

Obviously they are finer than even the favored "Fairy Princess" primroses surrounding the central fountain. The blossoms are larger, of deeper lavender and form a fuller and more symmetrical group. The plants grow more robustly. and are less subject to the damping-off disease—the tendency of primrose leaves, if the sun is hidden for a few days, to mildew.

The deep blue of a blossom new to St. Louis, the African cone flower, may be seen at the rear of the primrose display. This is its first public appearance here. It is of special interest to Superintendent Pring, since it was discovered in the Congo by a former fellow-student at Kew.

TRACES OWNERSHIP OF STREET CAR HOLDING CO

Attorney Priest Says North American and Newman, Saunders & Co. Control.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12.—The statement that the City Utilities Co., which is seeking permission to buy more than 10 per cent of the stock of the St. Louis Public Service Co., owning and operating the street railway system in that city, is owned by two New York corporations, the North American Co. and Newman, Saunders & Co., Inc., was made by Henry S. Priest, counsel for objecting stockholders, in a brief filed here today with the State Public Service Commission.

Priest made this statement on the basis of information furnished to the commission by one of its accountants, who was permitted to examine the books of the City Utilities Co. after attorneys for the company had refused to produce them at a public hearing.

Refused to Show Books.

At the hearing Priest had sought to determine who were the actual owners of the City Utilities Co., a holding company incorporated under the laws of Delaware. The only officer of the company who appeared as a witness in response to subpena was A. T. Perkins, formerly manager of the old United Railways under the receiver, and now vice president of the holding company at a salary of $25,000 a year. Perkins testified that he did not know the distribution of the stock.

When Priest demanded the books be produced, the attorney for the City Utilities Co. refused, saying: "You are not going to get a look into those books" The attorney then offered to permit an accountant for the Public Service Commission to examine the books. A copy of the accountant's report was furnished to Priest by the Commission.

How the Stock Is Held.

The accountant's report showed the company had outstanding 126,464 shares of no par value common stock held as follows:

Edwin Gruhl, T. K. Newman and George W. Davidson, voting trustees, 76,000; Newman, Saunders & Co., Inc., 24,972; J. K. Newman, 10; Thomas C. Turnbull Jr., 24.,982.

Priest points out that Turnbull, who is treasurer of the City Utilities Co., is connected with the financial department of the North American Co., and that Newman is head of Newman, Saunders & Co. From this he argues the control of the City Utilities Co by the North American Co. and Newman, Saunders & Co., Inc., is shown.

At a hearing Dec. 4 it was brought out that the City Utilities Co. now owns 10,725 shares of the preferred stock of the St. Louis Public Service Co., and 28,772 shares of the common stock, and has agreements to purchase 84,265 more shares of the common stock if permission is granted by the Public Service Commission. The City Utilities Co. then would hold more than 38 per cent of the outstanding voting stock, a block which in view of the wide distribution of the remaining shares would give it control of the company.

Priest sharply questions the motives of the City Utilities Co. in seeking control of the street car company. The holding company offers to provide managerial and financial service and advice to the operating company, but Priest declares these are not needed because the street car company has its own corps of competent managing officials and has assets far in excess of those of the holding company.

Luther Ely Smith Appointed.

Luther Ely Smith, St. Louis attorney, has been named a member of the National George Rogers Clark Commission by President Coolidge. The commission will have charge of the 150th anniversary celebration of the Battle of Fort Sackville, the key engagement in Clark's campaign to drive the British out of the Northwest Territory. The celebration will take placeat Vincennes, Ind., Feb. 25.

BOY SCOUTS NOT CONNECTED WITH SCHOOL SAFETY PATROLS

Executive Writers' Board of Education Member Who Protested; Movement Not Criticised.

The St. Louis Council of the Boy Scouts has written through its executive, Earle W. Beckman, to Harry R. Schroeder of the Board of Education, who protested against the organization of safety patrols at Dozier School, to make clear that the Boy Scouts have no connection with the safety patrols.

Beckman, who referred to a report of Schroeder's protest which appeared in the Post-Dispatch Jan. 9, said that the patrols were formed by the Safety Council and the Automobile Club. He said it was unfortunate that the Boy Scout movement should be implicated in criticism of the safety patrols, but that this was not to be construed as lack of sympathy "with the thing that the Safety Council and the Automobile Club of Missouri are endeavoring to do, as we believe very thoroughly in the ability of boys of 'teen age."

Real Estate REAL ESTATE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH SECTION For Sales

LEASE INDICATES DOUBLING IN VALUE OF OLIVE ST. SITE

Childs Co. Sublets 614-16 Olive to Rossman, Inc. at $12,500 Yearly Advance on Rental It Pays.

SETS NEW HIGH MARK FOR THIS BLOCK

Largest Commission in City's History, $435,000, Paid in Syndicate Trust and Century Deal.

By Berry Moore.

The value of the leasehold of the three-story building, including the site, at 614-16 Olive street, was enhanced about 100 per cent yesterday when the Childs Restaurant Co. subleased the property to Rossman, Inc., a chain store clothing concern, for 25 years.

The sublease is at an annual rental of $27,500 for the first 10 years and $30,000 for the remaining 15 years. This is approximately 5 per cent on a valuation of $600,000. Annual rentals for the entire 25-year term will aggregate $715,000.

The Childs Restaurant Co. holds the property under a 99-year lease, which it acquired 33 years ago at an annual net rental of $15,000, or about half the rent stipulated in the sublease, or 5 per cent on a valuation of $300,000.

Negotiations for the sublease were handled by Perles & Stone, real estate agents, with offices in the Central National Bank Building, assisted by E. Siegel of the agency's organization.

New High Mark for the Block.

Florence M. Louderman is the owner of the fee, and the beneficiary of the rental under the 99-year lease, which has 66 years to run. The sublease gives Rossman, Inc., a renewal privilege for 41 years—the remaining portion of the 99-year lease. The rental under a renewal is at the rate of 6 per cent per annum on a valuation to be made by appraisers.

The site has a frontage on Olive street of 40 feet with a depth of 88 feet. The sublease gives the property a valuation of approximately $12,000 a foot for the Olive street frontage, establishing a new high basis for ground values in this block.

Childs cafeteria occupies the first floor of the building, which is connected in the rear with Childs Restaurant on Seventh street just south of Olive. The Olive street building is to be vacated for the Rossman concern, which will occupy the entire three floors.

Perles & Stone handled the negotiations through which the Well Clothing Co. purchased the 99-year leasehold of the southeast corner of Seventh and Olive street, having 22 feet 3 inches on Olive and 58 feet 3 inches on Seventh, held by the Gill estate.

Recent Olive Street Deals.

Recent deals in Olive street property east of Twelfth boulevard, have been a distinguishing feature of the real estate market. These included the Syndicate Trust and Century buildings, covering the block from Ninth to Tenth and Olive to Locust streets, purchased by the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. for $8,000,000. This deal apparently has aroused new interest in property in the downtown district on the part of life insurance companies and estates with large surplus funds available for investment. It was engineered by Richard A. Boyle, in connection with W. J. Holbrook of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Co. and W. H. Bixby of G. H. Walker & Co. Incidentally, the commission in this instance was approximately $435,000, the largest in the history of the St. Louis real estate market, which was divided equally among Boyle, Holbrook and Bixby. It was swollen by commissions on property in Kansas City and farms, which were taken in part payment for the Syndicate Trust and Century buildings.

Other recent transactions included an eight-story building at 513 [illegible] street, owned by the Pulitzer [illegible] which was purchased by Waldheim, Platt & Co., through Cornet & Zeibig. As has been told, Waldheim, Platt & Co., which recently purchased a membership in the New York Stock Exchange, plans to occupy the building.

Several months ago the Boyd-Richardson Co. acquired a 25-year lease of the six-story Tower Building at the southwest corner of [illegible]th and Olive streets. Martin & [illegible], in connection with the Isaac Cook Co., negotiated this lease. The Boyd-Richardson Co. has occupied the first floor and basement of this building for the last seven years, but will occupy the entire building with the expiration of existing leases of the upper floors.

'DAILY RECORD' BUYS SITE FOR BUILDING

Publication Firm Now Owns Two Corners on Tenth and Market Streets.

The southwest corner of Market and Tenth streets was purchased yesterday by the Daily Record Co., publishers of the "Daily Record," a legal record publication.

Plans have been made for a new building for the Daily Record and construction is to be started as soon as Market street has been widened, it is announced.

The purchase has a frontage of 60 feet on Market, with a depth of 135 feet on Tenth, which will be reduced with the widening of Market street. A four-story building now occupies the site. A. L. Shapleigh was the grantor in the transaction. The price paid was not disclosed.

The Daily Record Co., of which H. B. Morse is president, recently purchased the southeast corner of Market and Tenth streets, which is being held as an investment. This parcel has a frontage of 125 feet on Market with a depth of 131 feet on Tenth street. It is occupied by old buildings under lease to the Evens-Howard Co.

Plans have been made for several large buildings for Market street, which, it is announced, will be begun as soon as the thoroughfare has been widened as provided for under the bond issue.

A 16-story hotel to be known as the De Soto was recently started at the northeast corner of Eighth and Market streets, but has been halted pending plans for a larger structure should the Twelfth and Market street corner be acquired for the new Federal Building.

Several years ago Charles Cella acquired the northwest corner of Sixth and Market streets, embracing a quarter of a block, for an addition to the American Hotel and Theater building at the northeast corner of Seventh and Market streets. The latter is owned by the Southern Realty Co. of which Cella is president. Construction of this project awaits only the widening of Market street, it is understood.

The Buschman Co., which has been located for several years in the Tivoli Building, has leased the storeroom and basement, 30 by 89 feet, at 627 North Kingshighway, just south of Delmar boulevard, and in close proximity to the new United Cigar Stores Co. luncheonette store, which was leased through the Weisels firm. BUTLER BROS. LEASE SITE FOR FIRST CHAIN STORE

Take 5673-75 Delmar Blvd. for 20 Years; Unit Will Feature Merchandise Ranging in Price From 5 Cents to $1.

Butler Bros. have taken a 20-year lease of the property at 5673-75 Delmar boulevard as a site for the first unit of their recently announced Scott Stores chain. Negotiations were conducted by Forest K. Woodduff, manager of the real estate department of the First National Co. The Scott Stores will feature merchandise ranging in price from 5 cents to $1, although they will not necessarily hold to the $1 limit.

The front, fixtures, and equipment in all Scott stores will be uniform in design and color. The new Delmar boulevard store will be constructed and laid out to serve as a pattern for stores which are to follow in Greater St. Louis and the territory tributary to Butler Bros.

"It may be of general interest," stated S. E. Wilkinson, sales manager, "that contrary to common belief, Butler Bros. are the originators of the 5 and 10 cent business and the variety stores which developed from it.

"In 1878 before there was such a thing as a 5 and 10 cent store, Butler Bros., then a firm only 1 year old, developed a 5-cent and 10-cent assortment of merchandise which proved so popular with their trade that they prevailed upon Mr. Jayson Bailey to open the first store in the country featuring 5 and 10 cent goods.

"We will make every one of our stores a laboratory for our independent merchant friends to visit, to study and to work in," Wilkinson added.

The Delmar boulevard store, which is at the head of De Baliviere and just west of Woolworth's store, will have a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 156 feet. A stockroom 25x56 feet, will be available on the first floor with a main stockroom, 56x75 feet, on the second floor. The front of the building will be faced with terra cotta. It is expected that the contractors will deliver the building for occupancy on April 1.

The property is owned by the Weinberg Construction Co. Ben J. Shapiro, the architect, has drawn the plans for the Delmar boulevard store.

HARTWIG DISCHINGER CO. SELLS FACTORY BUILDING

The Wm. L. M. Clark Co., manufacturers of art needlework specialties, have purchased through the Hartwig-Dischinger Realty Co. the A. H. Driemeier Storage & Moving Co.'s building at the southwest corner of Nineteenth street and St. Louis avenue. This factory site will give the Clark company more than twice the space they occupy at present at 1324 Washington avenue. They will employ about 75 operators when alterations are completed. Hartwig-Dischinger Realty Co. represented both parties.

PLANS FOR $1,400,000 INSTITUTION FOR BOYS

Preparatory School for Priesthood to Be Adjunct of Kenrick Seminary.

The new boys' preparatory seminary for the archdiocese of St. Louis, a $1,400,000 structure, is to be built on the Kenrick Seminary grounds, south of the Watson road and east of the Laclede Station road. This seminary is an institution where boys from 14 to 18 years of age receive their preliminary training for the diocesan seminary.

The style of this group of buildings is modified Spanish monastic architecture. The massive tower in the center of the main facade will be the predominating feature, rising to a height of 160 feet and terminating in a dome covered with polychromatic tile. The entire group will be built around a court, with a chapel between two flanking wings, and accessible by a cloister connecting the high school and college sections.

Jacob Shank, men's tailor, occupying the store room at 1018 Locust street, in the City Club Building, has signed a new lease for a long term of years.

New leases have been entered into in the Leather Trades Building with William M. Taggart & Co., Boston Machine Works Co. and H. C. Korndoerfer.

The building at 2914-16 Washington avenue was subleased for R. M. Hollingshead Co. to Lindeman-Hoffer, Inc., wholesale distributors in St. Louis for the Zenith Radio Corporation.

The Polk-Gould Directory Co., occupying 6000 square feet on the eighth floor of the Sesame Building, has signed a lease for an additional floor to take care of business expansion. TRUE LIFE STORY

"I am sorry, Mr. B., the rule of the hospital is that all bills must be paid before the party leaves the hospital; you cannot take your wife and new baby home today." Mr. B. was one of our customers; he didn't have the $45 necessary, but he would have it a week later. Instead of lending Mr. B. the money, we called the hospital and insisted that Mr. B. be able to take his wife and baby home that day, and by reason of the previous credit standing Mr. B. had with the Public Loan Corporation, this hospital agreed to wait for their money 30 days.

Another beneficial service that the Public Loan renders.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope.

ANXIOUS.—Not all Indians, but certain tribes, were entitled to Government land. Write the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Washington, D. C.

OLD READER.—The Agricultural Department, Jefferson City, Mo., Mr. Jewell Mayes, secretary, will give full advice on what to do about the insects on Sycamore trees. If necessary to refer the question to the United States Department of Agriculture they will do that, or advise you.

WESTMINSTER.—News items do not give the names of attorneys of Beorge Campbell Carson, who recently won in the long litigation connected with his invention of a copper smelting furnace. Dispatches of the kind by authorized news agencies do not necessarily include all details. If you write him at Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles, perhaps he will give the names. No better address is at hand.

TOM.—The corner stone of the original Capitol at Washington was laid on the 18th of September, 1793, by President Washington with Masonic ceremonies. It is constructed of sandstone from quarries on Aquia Creek, Va. The original designs were prepared by Dr. William Thornton and the work was done under the direction of Stephen Hallett, James Hoban, George Hadfield and B. H. Latrobe, architects. The north wing was finished in 1800 and the south wing in 1811. A wooden passageway connected them. On the 24th of August, 1814, the interior of both wings was destroyed by fire, set by the British. In 1818 the central portion of the building was commenced, under superintendence of Charles Bullfinch. The original building was finally completed in 1827, its cost being $2,433,000. The extension was started on July 4, 1851, the corner stone being laid by President Fillmore, Daniel Webster officiating as orator.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

HOWARD J.—The law, authorizing a State police force, has not yet been passed and we do not know what it will provide. Watch the newspapers.

F. H. L.—The present Constitution of Missouri, adopted in 1875, provides that the term of office of the Governor shall be four years from the second Monday in January next after his election or until his successor is elected and qualified. The Constitution of 1865 apparently has no provision relative to this, although it provides that the General Assembly shall meet on the first Wednesday in January and that the Judges of the Supreme Court and certain other officials shall take office on the first Monday in January.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

CONSTANT R.—Sore mouth and gums might be due to either local or systemic causes, or both; hence if possible, as a primary step for relief and cure, find out the cause and remove it. Among the possible causes are pyorrhea, diseased tonsils or teeth, sinus trouble, catarrh. General causes might be digestive disturbances, toxemia, infection, constipation. Examination by a physician or dentist, may be necessary. A very good mouth wash and gargle is made by dissolving a teaspoonful of the chlorate of potash in a pint of water, and using this two or three times daily.

WONDERING.—Symptoms of cancer of the stomach are manifestations of indigestion from the start. Most cases have nausea and vomiting immediately after eating if the disease is located at the cardiac orifice, and some hours later if located at the pylorus, if much dilation of the stomach develops, the vomiting may occur after several days. The rejected matter is food in the various stages of digestion, associated frequently with black grumous masses of blood tissues. Spitting up blood is frequent, rarely profuse, usually oozing of blood altered into a dark brown or black color "coffee ground vomit." Pain is constant, but dull and heavy in character, increased by pressure and food and may radiate to the back. A tumor in the stomach region is present in most cases. Also swelling of the ankles with debility, emaciation and anemia.

A. B. C.—Little if anything can be done for the relief of your trouble by home or self treatment. For safety and best results a case of enlargement of the prostate gland should be under the care of a physician or specialist. A certain measure of relief from conditions you mention may be had by taking Sanmetto in one or two teaspoonful doses, in a wine glass of water, three or four times daily before meals and at bedtime, correcting constipation and abstaining from tea, coffee, and all alcoholics, using instead, as a beverage, a tea made by placing a large "pinch" of an herb called Triticum Repens in a teacupful of hot water. If you wish a physician recommended send stamped, addressed envelope with the request.

MRS. D. M. O.—The following may answer the purpose of reducing the breasts to better advantage than the preparation mentioned: Aristol, two drachms; white vaseline, 30 drachms; essence of peppermint, three drachms; mix and rub on the tissues nightly, then cover with compresses wet with the following solution: Alum, two drachms; acetate of lead, 30 drachms; distilled water, 400 drachms. Such compresses are cloth, folded several times to make thick. Cover the compresses with oiled silk and allow to remain on all night. Oiled silk can be bought at drug stores and serves to keep the moisture in, as well as protect whatever clothing is worn at the time. Wearing a brassiere which you ask about should be continued for the benefit of pressure and support, both of which are indicated. Such glands as the breasts have a great deal of lymphatic circulation, and firm pressure, not too tight, is an aid in controlling this. This is noticeable when a nursing mother for any reason has to resort to the brassiere or binder. If the object in reducing the breast is merely to get rid of avoirdupois, it is of course aided by a general reduction of the body weight.

SALES MANAGER

A national corporation which has been in business for a number of years desires the services of a young high-class LIVE WIRE SALES MANAGER. He must be between 28 and 40 years of age and married and have unquestionable references.

We are interested in a man of executive ability because if he proves within a short time that he is a real go-getter, we will give him an opportunity to cash in by making him manager of one of our branch offices. That position pays upwards from $6000. We will teach you our line and will give you an opportunity to prove your ability in the sales field; we do that because we cannot honestly ask any man to teach a sales force something he hasn't done himself. If you can prove to our satisfaction that you are the man we want, you will be given a sales force of 10 or more men, a fully equipped office and working crew and a business to operate established well enough to write $100,000 annually without investing any of your money.

You will be required to keep your sales force up to standard at all times, and will be given such help as may be necessary from the main office. We employ a large sales force and continually promote men of proven ability. Our company is the leader in its line, in a field only 10 per cent covered.

Our product is the best that science can produce; our business is very pleasant and staple in every-day use and it has a market all the year around.

We sell ready roofing applied to home owners on time payments. It's an easy business to learn. If you qualify you will be taken to our main office and factory in Chicago at our expense for educational purposes. We are not interested in "has beens" or advance artists, but want clean-cut business men.

Read this ad again. If you measure up to our standard then come in Monday, 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., and sell yourself to us.

See Mr. Trepel at 4545 De Tonty st.

A "surprise" program is promised by David Mendoza for the Capitol Family concert over KSD at 7 o'clock tonight.

Fred Patton, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, has been substituted for John Powell, the pianist, in the Atwater Kent concert at 8:15 tonight over KSD. He will share the program with Nina Morgana, soprano, also of the Metropolitan Opera, and the Atwater Kent orchestra. Nina Morgana is of Italian parentage, but was born in Buffalo, N. Y. After study abroad, she won an engagement at the La Scala Opera, Milan, and has been with the Metropolitan for eight years.

Patton was born in a small Connecticut town. He studied and sang in choirs in New York City while in business as a sales and advertising manager. In 1918, when a soloist in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, he decided to devote his time entirely to singing.

Application to a concert manager brought an engagement on short notice with the festival of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir. In 1918 he learned 34 oratorios, and has since sung in all the big festivals and with the more prominent oratorio societies and symphonic orchestras.

He made his operatic debut as Monterone in "Rigoletto" and later sang the Herald in "Lohengrin" with the Zuro Opera company. He was engaged to sing at the Metropolitan Opera in January last year.

Nina Morgana's solo numbers tonight are announced to include: "The Windflowers," Josten; "Ballade of Colleens," Vaiden; "Sylvelin," "Sinding; "Song of Love," La Forge; Waltz Song from "Romeo and Juliet;" "Song of Marie Antoinette;" "Girometti," Koechlin; "Tarantella Sincera," Sibella; "Una Voce Poco Fa," from "The Barber of Seville."

The orchestra is to play "Marche Russe," Luigini, and the overture to "Die Fledermaus," Strauss.

Few Listeners Complain About Small Stations

Jam of 50 to 100 Watt Transmitters Causes Little Interference.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Although more than 250 small broadcasting stations are crowded on six wavelengths, comparatively few of the interference complaints sent by listeners to the Federal Radio Commission are directed at these little stations.

Operators of the low-powered stations also are apparently more satisfied with conditions under the new allocation, as there is less complaint of interference by the big stations with their programs, says Capt. Guy Hill, broadcasting engineer of the commission. Some of the 50 to 100 watt stations give better programs, have more modern apparatus and keep on their frequencies more accurately than some of the 500 to 1000 watt stations, he declared.

A few of the 100-watt stations have been heard a distance of 700 miles. While the commission put widely separated stations on the same channel in order to prevent interference, transmission of several hundred miles is likely to cause serious interference, Capt. Hill said. The function of the small station is to serve a purely local audience within a radius of 10 to 20 miles, he explained.

General conditions in the broadcast band are improving steadily, as station owners obtain crystals to control their frequencies and other modern apparatus, Capt. Hill says. Some rough spots remain, notably at Seattle, where a Los Angeles station is said to cause heterodyning, and there is cross talk interference at Minneapolis, Cleveland and New Orleans.

More than a dozen stations cited by Capt. Hill for radiated deviations from their assigned frequencies have been notified that renewal of their licenses will be held in abeyance pending a hearing before the commission.

Phil Cook to Star In Eveready Hour

Phil Cook will make his first appearance in an Eveready Hour over KSD next Tuesday evening.

Comedian, composer, humorous sketch writer and guitar player, Cook is scheduled to serve as master of ceremonies for a program of light and popular music. Cook, who began as an artist, switched to song writing and then to radio.

Jack Scholl and Kel Keech will do ukelele and song duets. They are well known for their work in radio and vaudeville. Keech formed the first American jazz band in Paris under the name of the "White Lyres."

"Fixing" the New Receiver.

Should a manufactured set refuse to work, do not tinker with it. Disconnect it from the light socket and wait until a service man can be obtained. Never attempt to "fix" a new receiver that is inoperative. The guaranty will not only be broken, but, in view of the fact that the trouble may be caused by one of a thousand things, the chances against an amateur finding its source are overwhelmingly great.

Antenna Installation.

Keep the antenna as far away as possible from metal smoke stacks, metal roofs, metal gutters, drain pipes, telephone, telegraph and electric power lines or any other obstructions. The close proximity of the antenna wire to such obstructions will tend to shield it from receiving the radio waves. Only one receiver should be operated from one antenna.

Not "AC" Current.

It is "AC" or "alternating current." Not "AC current." The reason is obvious. And the same with "DC" (direct current).

Radio Telegraph Circuit Of 11,538 Miles Operating

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—Shooting radio impulses with the same speed as light, 186,000 miles a second, messages are being transmitted more than 11,000 miles through the air.

This long-distance sending is taking place across the Pacific and is due to rapid growth of commerce.

To meet the demands for speedy communication, radio companies are enlisting science and engineering skill of high types in the struggle for supremacy.

As quickly as one can wink an eye, North America is joined with Australia and the Far East by radio 24 hours in the day.

The longest regularly operated wireless circuit in the world is maintained for commercial transmission between Montreal, Canada, and Melbourne, Australia. The signals across North America, undeflected by thousands of radio streams, cross the Pacific and are caught by the apparatus set for their reception. They travel 11,538 statute miles, following the curves of the earth in its upper atmosphere. Simultaneously traveling in the opposite direction, another stream pours as a "free energy" into Montreal from the Antipodes.

Large Stations Opposing Move To Limit Power

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Representatives of the big broadcasting stations are preparing to combat the attempt in Congress to reduce station power to a maximum of 10,000 watts.

If the efficient high power stations are supplanted by a large number of "weak local plants," rural listeners will be deprived of good programs, the big broadcasters declare.

Owners of the successful, high power stations are of necessity competent judges of the value to listeners of power in transmitting programs, they assert. F. Clifford Estey, representative of WLW, Cincinnati, which is operating with 50,000 watts, says that station is run primarily to build good will for its owners and that no station owner is going to do anything that will have a tendency to destroy that good will.

"One must not overlook the fact that when super-stations such as WJZ, KDKA and WGY opened a storm of protest arose because of their apparent broadness, but it soon died down," he said. "A station of this type cannot be broad; it may only appear broadly tuned on obsolete sets or those improperly designed. Many cases of apparent broadness is due to aerials too long for selective operation.

"Present objectionable whistles and squeals are due to the fact that many stations do not, and many cannot stay on their wavelengths because of inadequate equipment. A station with crystal control cannot get off its channel. Another important step which would help clear up the air would be for all stations to be required to use 100 per cent modulation."

Five Composers On Damrosch's School Program

Music by Wagner, Beethoven, Saint-Saens, Delibes and Mendelssohn will be played in the RCA education concert for school children at 10 o'clock next Friday morning, over KWK.

The orchestra directed by Walter Damrosch will open with a polonaise for strings by Beethoven, to demonstrate the roles of violin and 'cello in an orchestra.

"The Swan," from Camille Saint-Saens' descriptive suite, "Carnival of the Animals," is a placid picture of the graceful bird as it glides across the smooth waters of the lake. The melody is sustained by the cello, with piano or harp accompaniment, depending upon the arrangement.

Delibes, who is perhaps best known for his ballets-pantomimes which have survived since the nineteenth century, is represented by a little polka pizzicato, from "Sylvia."

An excerpt from the prelude to Richard Wagner's beautiful lyric opera, "Lohengrin," first produced at the Court Theater at Weimar on Aug. 28, 1850, will open the second half hour of music. The latter part of the prelude has a fortissimo passage sustained by trumpets, trombone and tuba, returning to the high violins and flutes in a pianissimo ending.

The prelude has been likened by William Foster Apthorp to the career of the hero of the opera: "It begins in the clouds, descending until it embraces all the lowest tones of the orchestra, then returns to the clouds again."

Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," one of the best known pieces of music, is taken from the incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream." After a trumpet opening, the processional proper is taken up by full orchestra.

Wagner is drawn upon for the Ride of the Valkyries, from his opera, "The Valkyries." After an instrumental introduction to act III, the curtain rises, showing a terrific scene. Lightning flashes and thunder rolls. The winged horses of the Valkyries dash over the dark storm clouds, and the Valkyries, each with slain warrior hanging over saddle, shout to one another in the tumult. The wind whistles, and the pounding of the horses' hoofs is heard in the brass choirs, particularly trombones and tubas.

The program follows:

Polonaise for Strings...Beethoven
The Swan, from "Carnival of the Animals" ......Saint-Saens
Pizzicato, from "Sylvia"...Delibes
Second half, "Trombone and Tuba."
Excerpt from Prelude to "Lohengrin" .... Wagner
Wedding March .....Mendelssohn
Ride of the Valkyries, from "Die Valkyrie" ....Wagner

Hoover Shown By Navy How Use Short W

Communication With H Ship Constantly Maintain- ed on Good Will Tou

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—President-elect Hoover, who as an engineer and communications expert is intensely interested in the development of radio, had an opportunity on his South American trip to observe the efficiency of short wave transmission as developed by the navy.

Thousands of miles away on the South Pacific and South Atlantic, Radio Central of the navy or some other station in the network, was in communication with him and his party hourly.

To maintain this contact and handle thousands of words daily of press dispatches, navy communications made elaborate plans to clear channels for traffic and to maintain relays in the event of breaks in the "line."

On the southward trip the battleship Maryland one night was unable to maintain communication with San Diego. This condition was detected by the "be watch" at the Navy Department here. He notified Radio Central which established communication with the ship. A few nights later the Maryland talked with Brownsville, Tex.

Later the ship routed all traffic through the station at Balboa, Canal Zone. To guard against possible breakdowns in communication, the U. S. S. Rochester was ordered to the Galapagos Islands and in far-off Honolulu navy radio operators stood watch for emergency service.

Communication with the battleship Utah, bringing the party north from Buenos Aires, demonstrated the effectiveness of a new high frequency transmitter with the comparatively low power of 1000 watts navy radio men say. A few years ago 100 times more power was required to send messages 4000 miles on the low or intermediate frequencies.

How to Detect Commoner Types Of 'Interference'

Variety of sounds heard in a radio set is so great that often it is difficult to determine what is causing the disturbance. In many cases the disturbance may be set up several thousand feet away, yet create as much interference as if it were next door.

It is plain to be seen that if one is to locate and suppress these disturbances, one must be able to determine what is causing the trouble, and where it is located.

This is not so difficult as it may seem, as one soon becomes familiar with the peculiarities of sound set up by various pieces of apparatus.

About the easiest type of interference to detect is that caused by universal type motors. This interference is generally heard as a high-pitched whine or singing tone either running steadily or varying in intensity. In other cases it is heard as a buzzing sound, rapidly built up in intensity as the motor starts, then remaining constant in pitch.

The disturbance set up by a generator or DC motor is similar to that described in the preceding paragraph. However, it is considerably rougher in tone and steady in character, with a slight crackling sound mixed with the steady buzzing.

The disturbance set up by the ignition system of oil burners is heard as a steady rough buzzing with a wavering intensity and crackling sounds at frequent intervals.

The disturbance set up by an electric refrigerator is heard as an intermittent crackle. Sometimes it also is steady and coarse in tone for several seconds at a time.

The disturbance set up by battery chargers of the bulb type is a low-pitched buzz, generally very steady and without fluctuations.

The disturbance set up by heating pads is heard as a rough crackling noise occurring at intervals of one to five minutes. Sometimes the sound suggests code heard indistinctly.

Aunt Jemima on Columbia Network

Aunt Jemima and her retinue of musical Negroes are to be heard over KMOX and 20 other CBS stations Thursday nights, beginning Jan. 17.

This will be Aunt Jemima's first appearance on the Columbia chain. The original Aunt Jemima was once a cook on Col. Higbee's plantation in the South. She and her husband, the butler, known to the Higbee children as Uncle Ned, lived in a little house in the rear of the Higbee mansion. There, on warm evenings, the Higbee children gathered to hear Aunt Jemima sing and Uncle Ned tell stories. Other Negroes gathered round with their musical instruments, others to sing Spirituals.

Radio Trade Notes

An all-electric AC tube receiver, with pushpull audio amplification, a new type dynamic speaker and Louis XIV console, is the feature of the Philco 1929 line just announced.

An exclusive range control device, great sensitivity in daytime and absence of AC hum are claimed for the new Philco sets. Models are a console, a highboy and a lowboy. Mechanically and electrically, all are the same.

Extra sharp tuning on distance, and silencing or very close tuning of local stations, is said to be another feature. Use of the range control grounds the grid of the first radio frequency tube and feeds two cascaded tuned circuits into the second radio frequency transformer and tube, providing a highly selective system of reduced amplification. By that means a careful graduation of volume is possible on a station that except for the range control could not be softened without detuning and consequent loss of quality.

The dynamic speaker uses a seamless fabric cone instead of the usual parchment. The duplex voice coil is firmly mounted and simple and rugged. "Paper rattle" on high notes is said to have disappeared, as also the "rain barrel" effect, bass and soprano notes being brought out in their natural proportions.

Construction generally is especially massive and solid.

New Steinite radio sets and speakers were shown to distributers at a convention in Chicago the past week. L. A. McLean represented the Campbell Iron Ct., St. Louis distributers, and L. J. Horan and J. J. Horan, factory representatives, also attended the meeting.

At a banquet at the Stevens Hotel, Harry Alexander, the company's advertising manager, said Steinite planned to spend $1,500,000 on advertising this year. F. W. Steinite predicted that 1929 would be the Steinite Laboratories' best year. Alfred Crossley, formerly a noted navy radio engineer, who has become chief engineer for Steinite, explained details of the new receivers.

Lester Abelson, production manager, said there would be prompt deliveries as soon as the supplementary plant at Fort Wayne, Ind., was completed.

Jacob Abelson, president, said it was the Steinite Laboratories' intention to do a business of $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 this year. He said Steinite stock soon would go on the New York Curb, and that later application would be made to list it on the New York Stock Exchange.

Oscar Getz, general sales manager, discussed the new sets and the organization, and announced appointment of H. A. Hutter as export manager.

Four new Fada receiver models have just been introduced—three for AC tube operation, the other for DC operation. New table models come in wood and metal, while the consoles all have dynamic speakers. Each of the new sets has push-pull audio amplification and real one-control tuning.

Model 16 uses the 227 type of AC tube and 171A power tu push-pull in the final stage. T is no extra control for se "fine tuning." Instead, the provision inside the cabinet permanent adjustment to co sate for antenna length. Th unit and chassis are of heavy body steel to prevent warping construction generally is m and solid. Promptly o'clock, as Gene Strauss of Strauss Co., distributer, was ing, a Model 38, which stood hind the speakers' table, b broadcast the Kolster concert KMOX. So accurately had it b set, that the diners heard the op ing announcement, "This is Kolster radio hour." For minutes the concert was broad by the Model 38, then was au matically cut off.

Curtis Institute Concerts Tuesday Nights Over CBS

First From Philadelphia Conservatory Scheduled for 9—10 P. M. on Jan. 5.

Musical programs of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia are to be broadcast over the Columbia chain, according to William S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Josef Hofmann, the pianist, who is director of the Institute. These concerts are to be broadcast on alternate Tuesday nights from 9 to 10 o'clock, the first next Tuesday night.

Efrem Zimbalist, Leopold Auer, Felix Salmond, Emilio de Gogorza, Marcella Sembrich, Carlos Salzedo, Arthur Rodzinski and Rosario Scalero are co-operating with Hofmann and their pupils will be heard in this series. They will be presented as soloists in programs with the Curtis Institute Symphony Orchestra and chamber music groups.

The Curtis Institute of Music was founded by Mrs. Mary Louise Curtis Bok, wife of Edward Bok, the publicist, to develop young musicians of exceptional talent. It was named in honor of her father, Cyrus H. K. Curtis. Mrs. Bok has permanently endowed the institute, there being no charge for tuition and financial aid being given to certain students.

The first broadcast from the Curtis Institute will present, as soloist, Tibor de Machula, 'cellist, who will play Lalo's Concerto in D Minor.

At the Kolster Club meeting, E. E. Bruns was re-elected president. Edward Reden was chosen as vice president and T. J. Crabb was re-elected secretary.

The Brown & Hall Supply Co. held a three-day sales conference from Jan. 3 to Jan. 5, inclusive. The entire sales organization attended these meetings, which were held at the Marquette Hotel. Selling talks were given by Norman S. Brown, president of the Brown & Hall Supply Co., by Fred A. Wiebe, vice president and sales manager, and by P. L. Lessard. An open conference was also held, salesmen giving their views as to how best co-operation could be given to dealers. A dinner was held the evening of Jan. 3 at the University Club, where a credit talk was given by V. C. Eggerding.

Arthur W. Weis and Robert W. Weis have opened a radio sales and showroom at 3541 Arsenal street under the name of the Radiocraft Laboratory. They are to handle Bosch receivers and speakers. For the past four years the Radiocraft Laboratory has specialized in radio service work. This is the first time it has been a retailer. The new showrooms are done in walnut and buff and draped with special regard to accoustical effects.

The Duc Radio Co., maker of the Duc receiver, is moving from 3940 Olive street to 4545 Delmar boulevard. Opening of the new quarters is set for Tuesday.

Radio testing apparatus so accurate that it might well be used to determine the difference in breadth of a blond, red or black hair is being used in the inspection department of the Crosley Radio Corporation to pass upon measurements to one hundred thousandths of an inch. The scale of the instrument is graduated into five one hundred thousandths (.00005) of an inch and smaller fractions can easily be estimated.

This machine, the Carl Zeiss Optimeter, is accurate in measurements to one one hundred thousandth parts to be used in building receivers.

This unit of measure may not seem so very small until it is considered that the average black hair is three one thousandth (.003) of an inch thick and that blond hairs are subject to variation, running from two one thousandths (.002) to twenty-five ten thousandths (.0025) of an inch thick. The graduations on the optimeter are 60 times finer than a red hair.

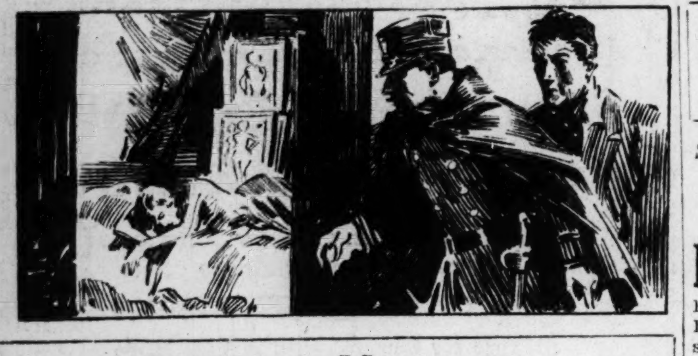
WHO is GUILTY?

HERE is the outline of a baffling crime. The reader is invited to make his own solution of the mystery, and then compare it with the correct answer which will be published next Sunday, at which time another outline will be printed.



A Murder in Montmarte

GRETTA PALMER

ALL his life Ted Gregory had dreamed of going to Paris. He had never really believed that the dream would come true, and here he was sitting on the terasse of a cafe indulging in the unheard-of dissipation of a vermouth.

Aunt Edith Grimsby's death, leaving him $2000, had savored of the miraculous. Usually, if the son of a professor in a small Southern university has yearnings to become a great painter, he finds little to promote his career save his own native genius.

It may be stated at once that Ted would not have gone very far on his share of genius. His only talents were a gift for wiggling his ears and an amazing ability to believe what he read in novels. His inclinations toward "art" were based solely on the notion that a young man had only to go to Paris, live in a small room in a nebulous district known as "the artists' quarter," and wear odd clothes, and he would emerge a Fellow of the Royal Academy.

To Ted, that was the pinnacle; he considered Turner a daring modern, and would undoubtedly have defined Picasso as a brand of tooth paste if the subject had arisen.

Ted had been in Paris three days, and although it was not exactly like the stories of DuMaurier, he was not yet daunted. In fact he felt that the new life was actually about to begin in about 15 minutes. He had dreams of flowing ties and a society of genteel but vivacious persons who lived in the general atmosphere of Manon and drank champagne and painted nude young ladies with furious abandon.

These dreams he had confided to an affable stranger on the boat, a stranger who villainously encouraged the garrulous and trusting Ted in his Victorian fantasies, and then, deciding that his old friend, Duroc, was in need of some comedy-relief, gave Ted a letter of introduction to the famous painter. And now in 15 minutes Ted was going to Duroc's studio. He had sent the letter of introduction, and in reply, had received a scrawl asking him to drop in around 9. Fifteen minutes later Ted knocked on the door of a tiny one-story house that leaned confidingly against a larger building. The door was opened by a rotund gentleman in extremely soiled but perfectly correct morning coat with all the proper accoutrements. Ted discovered to his dismay that this was indeed Mr. Duroc.

Mr. Duroc's impassioned devotion to these garments had lasted several months. During that time none of the original garments had ever been cleaned except the shirt, which had been replaced by others by Mr. Duroc's more sensitive friends.

This was only one of the minor shocks of the evening as Ted was to discover. The company assembled in the living room consisted of a great poet whom Ted considered to have the appearance and conversational powers of a farm hand, an extremely plump and mature young woman evidently wearing nothing but a single tunic-like garment, who, Ted discovered to his horror, was the dainty model of his dreams, a sculptor who looked like a successful small town banker, and a girl who might easily have been one of the coeds at the little Southern university. She was an anarchist, he found, and had been a Captain in the Russian Army when she was 17.

But after all, things did not turn out according to the humorous plans of the perfidious stranger on the boat. Duroc was unable to conceive of a naivete of the order of Ted's; such ingenuousness was impossible, yet it was evident that Ted was not playing the part of a fool. He was palpably incapable of deception. Duroc decided that he was an originale—a quaint innocent genius, untouched by the things of the world. He accepted the ironic note of introduction he had received quite literally. The entire company treated Ted with great deference, and, explained their work and theories to him, and beamed on him encouragingly.

Duroc described how he had gone through experiments with Vorticism and Surrealism and Cubism, and produced examples of his work at various stages that left Ted in a state of bewildered narcosis. Duroc was quite happy believing that the child-mind of his guest was instinctively grasping his rapid proclamations, and happily led the unresisting Ted across the little entrance hall to his studio—explaining that his latest period was a return to Renoir, a naturalistic penance for his triflings with Surrealism, which he now felt were affected and unsound.

Ted felt a little better when he saw his host's latest work. The big bare studio contained no furnishings except an empty easel and one kitchen chair. The walls were whitewashed, and besides one or two empty frames leaning against the wall, there was nothing but the paintings which hung on the walls of the low ceilinged room.

These paintings were all life-size studies of the distressingly plump young woman in the other room—nude or far too slightly draped for Ted's tastes. Except for what Ted felt was an unfortunate choice of model, they were amazingly restful to the poor boy's shattered nerves. They were warm, natural, and if Ted had known, extremely strong studies of the adipose young woman in various poses. Ted returned unwillingly to the Vorticist nightmares in the living room.

When they entered, the others were drinking absinthe. This was the only feature of the party which Ted felt was entirely according to Hoyle for a studio party. Ted sipped the innocent-tasting pepperminty stuff gratefully, feeling that one of his illusions had been salvaged.

Soon he began to feel curiously animated. Heretofore, he had been languid and melancholy. Now when his host and the peasant-like poet rushed into a fiery argument over the artistic conscience, he interposed and took the poet's side. The lady anarchist lined up with Duroc, and the matter became extremely acrimonious.

It ended with the poet's rushing out of the building, while the lady anarchist screamed after him that he needn't expect to see her again, that her emotions were loyal to her intellect, and that she could have nothing further to do with a man with such distorted theories. She collapsed hysterically into Duroc's arms, while Ted vaguely noticed that the anarchist and the peasant poet were not quite the type of young innocent young consumptive lovers that he had expected to find in Montmartre.

At this point Elise, the model, furnished a dramatic interlude. She rose to her not negligible height, made some remarks in French that Ted did not understand, although he had majored in French at the university, rushed ponderously upon the anarchist who was biting Duroc's ear and singing Russian revolutionary songs, and felled the little anarchist with an elephantine blow. Elise left accompanied by the sculptor, and peace was finally restored. Ted and the sculptor restrained the anarchist from retaliating by main force.

She finally resumed her drinking of absinthe with incredible zeal and had all the evidence of an amazing constitution, for the entire company was in a state of mind as volatile and curious as his own, had the innocent Ted but known.

At this point Ted dozed off, lulled, apparently, by the shouts and scufflings of his host and the anarchist, who had evidently found a difference of opinion that was a matter of life and death.

A little later, Ted suddenly awoke with a start. He could have sworn that he heard shots. He sat up, fully sober again. There was a scream, then another report, then another. It was unmistakably the sound of a gun, and it was close by. He looked around. He was alone in the living room.

He rushed to the only door in the room, the door leading into the front hall. As he reached the hall, there was a pounding on the front door. He rushed to open it and found an agent de police standing there.

The agent explained that he had stopped in front of the house to smoke a cigarette, and had heard the screaming and shots. No one had come out of the door. Would Monsieur kindly account for the excitement. Ted summoned up his French and explained that he had been asleep and had heard the shots, too. The agent looked politely incredulous, glanced in the living room, which was obviously empty, and tried the one other door in the hall, the one leading into the studio. It was locked.

After a good deal of difficulty, the two men managed to break down the heavy old-fashioned door. The agent hastily glanced at the lock while Ted pushed it. The key was in the lock on the studio side, he later testified.

The gas was lighted, although it was turned low, and it was obvious at a glance that there was nothing behind which any one could hide, so the agent and Ted made for the only doorway in the room.

It was covered merely by a thin curtain and led into a tiny bedroom. On the bed lay Duroc and the lady anarchist——. They were both dead. Duroc had been shot through the temple at very close range. He lay in a peaceful natural position.

The doctor later said that he had indubitably died instantly. His companion wore a look of terror, and had evidently tried to rise. She had been shot twice, through the head, from a distance of about four feet. The room was in great confusion and strewn with clothes, some masculine and some feminine.

There were no apparent clews to the invader, and no gun. The gun was later found under the one window of the bedroom. The finger-prints had been wiped off.

The curious part of the whole affair was that there was absolutely no other entrance to the building except the front door, and that the windows were all barred in such a way that no one could possibly have squeezed through one. There were no doors or openings of any kind in any of the rooms, and only one closet. That was in the bedroom, and the agent searched it before leaving the room.

No further evidence was found. The peasant-poet, Elise and Ted himself were all three arrested. Who was guilty, and how did the murderer make his escape? Was Ted's story true?

Where the Jewels Were Hidden

Solution to "The Tale of the Dead Man" in Last Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

HISTIAEIUS of Susa was a tyrant of the sixth century before Christ. He is famous for having once sent a message to his lieutenant at Miletus by cutting the significant words into the skin of the scalp of a slave. By shaving the head of the slave, his lieutenant was able to read the message. With the reference to this story "the Glim" hoped to communicate to his wife the idea that she should look on the scalp of his dead body for the secret of the hiding place of the emeralds.

The night before the electrocution "the Glim" occupied himself in his cell with puncturing his scalp, between the hairs, in the tattooed design of a golf club. He used the pen-point to make the punctures, which he had rubbed with charcoal from the end of his burnt matches. This is the method of tattooing employed by all primitive peoples.

His wife, when she received the body, shaved off his hair in accordance with the hint of his final letter and understood that the emeralds were hidden in the golf clubs, which she searched. She found the jewels hidden in the heads of two of the wooden clubs, inside the weights which had been hollowed out to admit the jewels, and then refilled with lead. The reason this hiding place eluded the customs inspectors is that lead does not admit the X-rays, and the jewels could not be seen.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

It's Not Catarrh! It's Sinus Trouble

An early morning accumulation of mucous secretions in the throat is a sign of infected sinuses. Don't neglect it. Clean out the nasal cavity with SinuSeptic. Wash away the foul secretions before they poison your system.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell Was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Do give it a trial to prove how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours.

Vanity Betrayed the "Jack o' Diamonds"

Swashbuckling Hold-Up Man Who Laughed at the Denver Police Captured at Last.

DENVER

THE Desk Sergeant yawned and scratched his ear with a pencil. He yawned again, a great, unguarded, manly yawn, for there was nobody to observe him but a careless driver, "32 years old, single, born in Norway," waiting for a friend to rustle up a bond. The Sergeant rubbed his thumb nail over a coffee stain on his sleeve, and looked up at the clock. 10:30. As quiet a night as you could expect at headquarters. Let it stay quiet for about another hour. His watch would be over then; he needn't give a damn if they took the City Hall.

Brrrrrr. Tingggg. Brrr. "Hello. No ews for the press. Everything quite. Say, n't you birds walk in here if you want see the reports?!! No, no whisky raids. Nothin' startling, kid. Everything quite."

The Sergeant hung up, and settled him elf on his high stool. He glanced at the ot crew across the hall. One was puffing a cigar, his eyes closed, his chair tilted rilously. The other's chin caressed a rass button on his breast; he frankly mbered.

His environment was too much for him; e Desk Sergeant blinked his eyes, he osed them, he dozed. Tingggg. Brrr. Brr. r Br Brrrr. "Hello. Hello. Yeh. EH! Fifty-two-oh-one East what? Col x! Fifty-one-oh——— I said Fifty-two h-one." Bang. Click. Click-click-click ck. "Give me the detective bureau, girlie, ake it up, this call ain't in my district, nyhow. Hello! Fifty-two-oh-one East Col x. Filling station. Stick-up. Kicked ll out of somebody. The boy friend n, 'Jack of Diamonds.' Yes, sir."

Bang-bangle-bang went the riot crew's rm. A head jerked up from a blue st, a cigar stood at attention. Shouts, ers, feet, turmoil. And the Desk Ser t ran to the window to watch touring filled with riot crew and detectives, h tear bombs and sawed-off shot guns, wisting round the corner as they split quiet of the Denver night.

"Hass dere bane holdop?" inquired the careless driver from the Scandinavian peninsula.

The Sergeant looked at him. "No, Svenska," he replied. "The boys are having a fire drill."

When the detectives and the riot squad, the policeman on the beat, a patrol wagon, two Lieutenants, a Captain, and three motorcycle officers arrived at 5201 East Colfax avenue, they heard a story which, with the exception of a new name and a new address, bore striking repetition to so many, oh, so many, that had graced their official ears before. The "Jack o' Diamonds" was at it again, steadily, consistently adding to his string of oil station holdups, threatening and beating the attendants, and always leaving in the empty cash register his "calling card," a crisp Jack of Diamonds from a fresh deck.

THE man promised to become legendary. For months he had operated, now, the boulevard gas stations his especial dish. It became so that each time a car innocently drove up to take on an allotment of petrol, the attendant suspected every move of his patron—a hand put to a trousers' pocket in search of bills for payment was always believed guilty of grasping a revolver until proved innocent, a driver alighting from his car to examine the pressure in his tires was ever suspected of potential banditry.

It was a most unpleasant experience for the police of Denver, from Chief down to lowliest turn-key. Here was one lone bandit and here were hundreds of patrolmen and detectives. And the criminal roamed at will, a blustering, bristling pirate. The citizenry grumbled, the oil company executives cried for blood, the station attendants begged protection. The police, angry, irritable, frustrated, continued to hunt their prey; all they ever found was his "calling card," his Jack of Diamonds, the stamp upon his latest deed. It was enough to give a copper an inferiority complex.

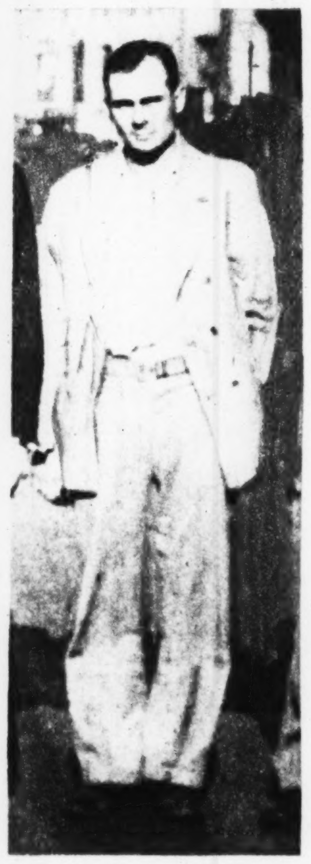
As for the job on Colfax avenue on this particular night, it had been accomplished in the Jack's usual and not-too-gentle manner.

One Alfred Wise, employe at the place, was alone in the gas station, resting in his chair. A man walked in—Wise considered him rather well dressed—and the attendant got to his feet, ready to do his customer's bidding.

Wise did it with alacrity for the request was accompanied by the appearance of a revolver whose muzzle sought the attendant's ribs. The bandit then advised Mr. Wise that it would be well for him to stretch out upon the floor, which Wise did, and the bad man added—he hereupon flourished his gun—that the prone employe would be the recipient of his weapon's entire magazine were he to make any movement that would lead to the impression he was about to take the offensive.

The bandit then called out the door, "It's all right, Pete." There was no reply from Pete, but the gentleman with the gun, apparently ignoring the snub, went on to inform Pete that he would be with him "pronto." He could not have left too "pronto" for Mr. Wise.

The industrious intruder now began transferring all the bank notes and coins in the cash register to his pocket, and had just about completed this work when Wise, whose position was unduly cramped, shifted himself slightly with no thought in mind but to ease his body.



Paul McNess, alias the "Jack o' Diamonds."

It was then that the bandit hastened over to Wise, booted him in the face, and placing a foot upon the attendant's head, ground that portions of Wise's anatomy against the concrete floor.

The stick-up man then yelled to "Pete" again, ordering him to watch Wise for an hour, and took himself off, richer by some fifty dollars.

Wise heard the roar of a speedily departing motor. Several minutes passed. There was no sound from the unperceived "Pete." Wise cocked up his bruised and battered head. He saw no one, he heard no one. He got to his feet, and went to the cash drawer. It was empty—but for a Jack of Diamonds.

Jack had added another scalp to his string. As for "Pete," he was but a mythical desperado.

The police of Denver gnashed their teeth. And then—then when their misery was keenest, came the crowning insult. For one day, by way of the mails, Chief of Police Reed received two Jacks of Diamonds and Captain of Detectives Clark—it must be admitted the bad man made a nice distinction for rank—got one in the same manner.

Let us for the moment leave the harassed gendarmes of Denver to work out their problem as best they can, and journey to a poolroom in an inauspicious neighborhood of this Western city.

A YOUNG man of 28 years, by trade a brick layer, is engaged in a game of pool. His name is Paul McNess, and he has two dollars wagered on his ability to win. But he loses. He plays another game. And loses. He plays again and again, and every time he meets defeat. Now, everyone knows that McNess has for some time past had plenty of money in his pockets, and this night is no exception. It doesn't make much difference to his financial status if he does lose a considerable number of two-dollar games. But it sorely hurts his pride.

Suddenly in a fit of temper at losing again, he whips out a revolver. He trains it on the players and spectators in the room, he orders them to line up against the wall, yelling that he is a "tough hombre." (Hombre! It reminds you a bit of the oil station bandit who said "pronto." It makes you think a bit of a bad man of the Mexican border, a sort of contemporary "Billy the Kid.")

And they all line up against the wall except one man, who laughs and shrugs his shoulders and tells McNess his gun is loaded with blanks.

"Blanks," roars McNess. "Blanks!" And he fires several shots into the floor to prove his weapon is filled with the real stuff. Then suddenly his temper dies away, he puts his gun in his pocket, he tells his companions to go on with the game.

But these revolver exhibitions, as the days go on, become rather frequent. So does his swaggering, his bravado, his bad-man attitude. He is always armed, he is always ready on the draw, he is forever blustering, bullying, and he sets his friends to gossiping.

"Where does he get all his money?" they ask each other. "What the hell makes him so hard?" they want to know.

THERE is one person that doesn't know he has much money. She is his wife, Dollie. He doesn't exhibit his wealth to her; she might ask him where he got it. And he leaves their home at a quite respectable hour every morning, for, so he says, he must go to his brick-laying work on a construction job. He's a good man, thinks Dollie, even if he does drink a little bit too much every once in a while.

But at the poolroom his braggadocio increases. He boasts about his prowess as a "tough hombre;" there is an all too constant fingering of his gun. He wants to impress the boys with the kind of a guy he is. Finally his self-esteem becomes so pronounced he has to tell somebody about it. He announces to a friend: "I'm the eleventh card in the deck."

"The eleventh card in the deck," thinks his friend. "Ace, deuce, tray——— Hmm. Must be the Jack."

This fellow tells another, who, it would appear, has the ability to add two and two together and arrive at four. One night in a small restaurant this second man jokingly comments on Paul McNess who says he is the eleventh card in the deck. Someone at the lunch counter overhears, and relays the news to a friendly detective. The detective wastes no time in reporting to Captain Clark.

Let us return to police headquarters.

The intelligence brought to the Captain perks the fellow up considerably. But this time there is no bangle-banging of the riot crew's bell, there are no loud orders, no screeching whistles tear the air. Even our friend the Desk Sergeant, contentedly perusing the sport page, is unaware of the

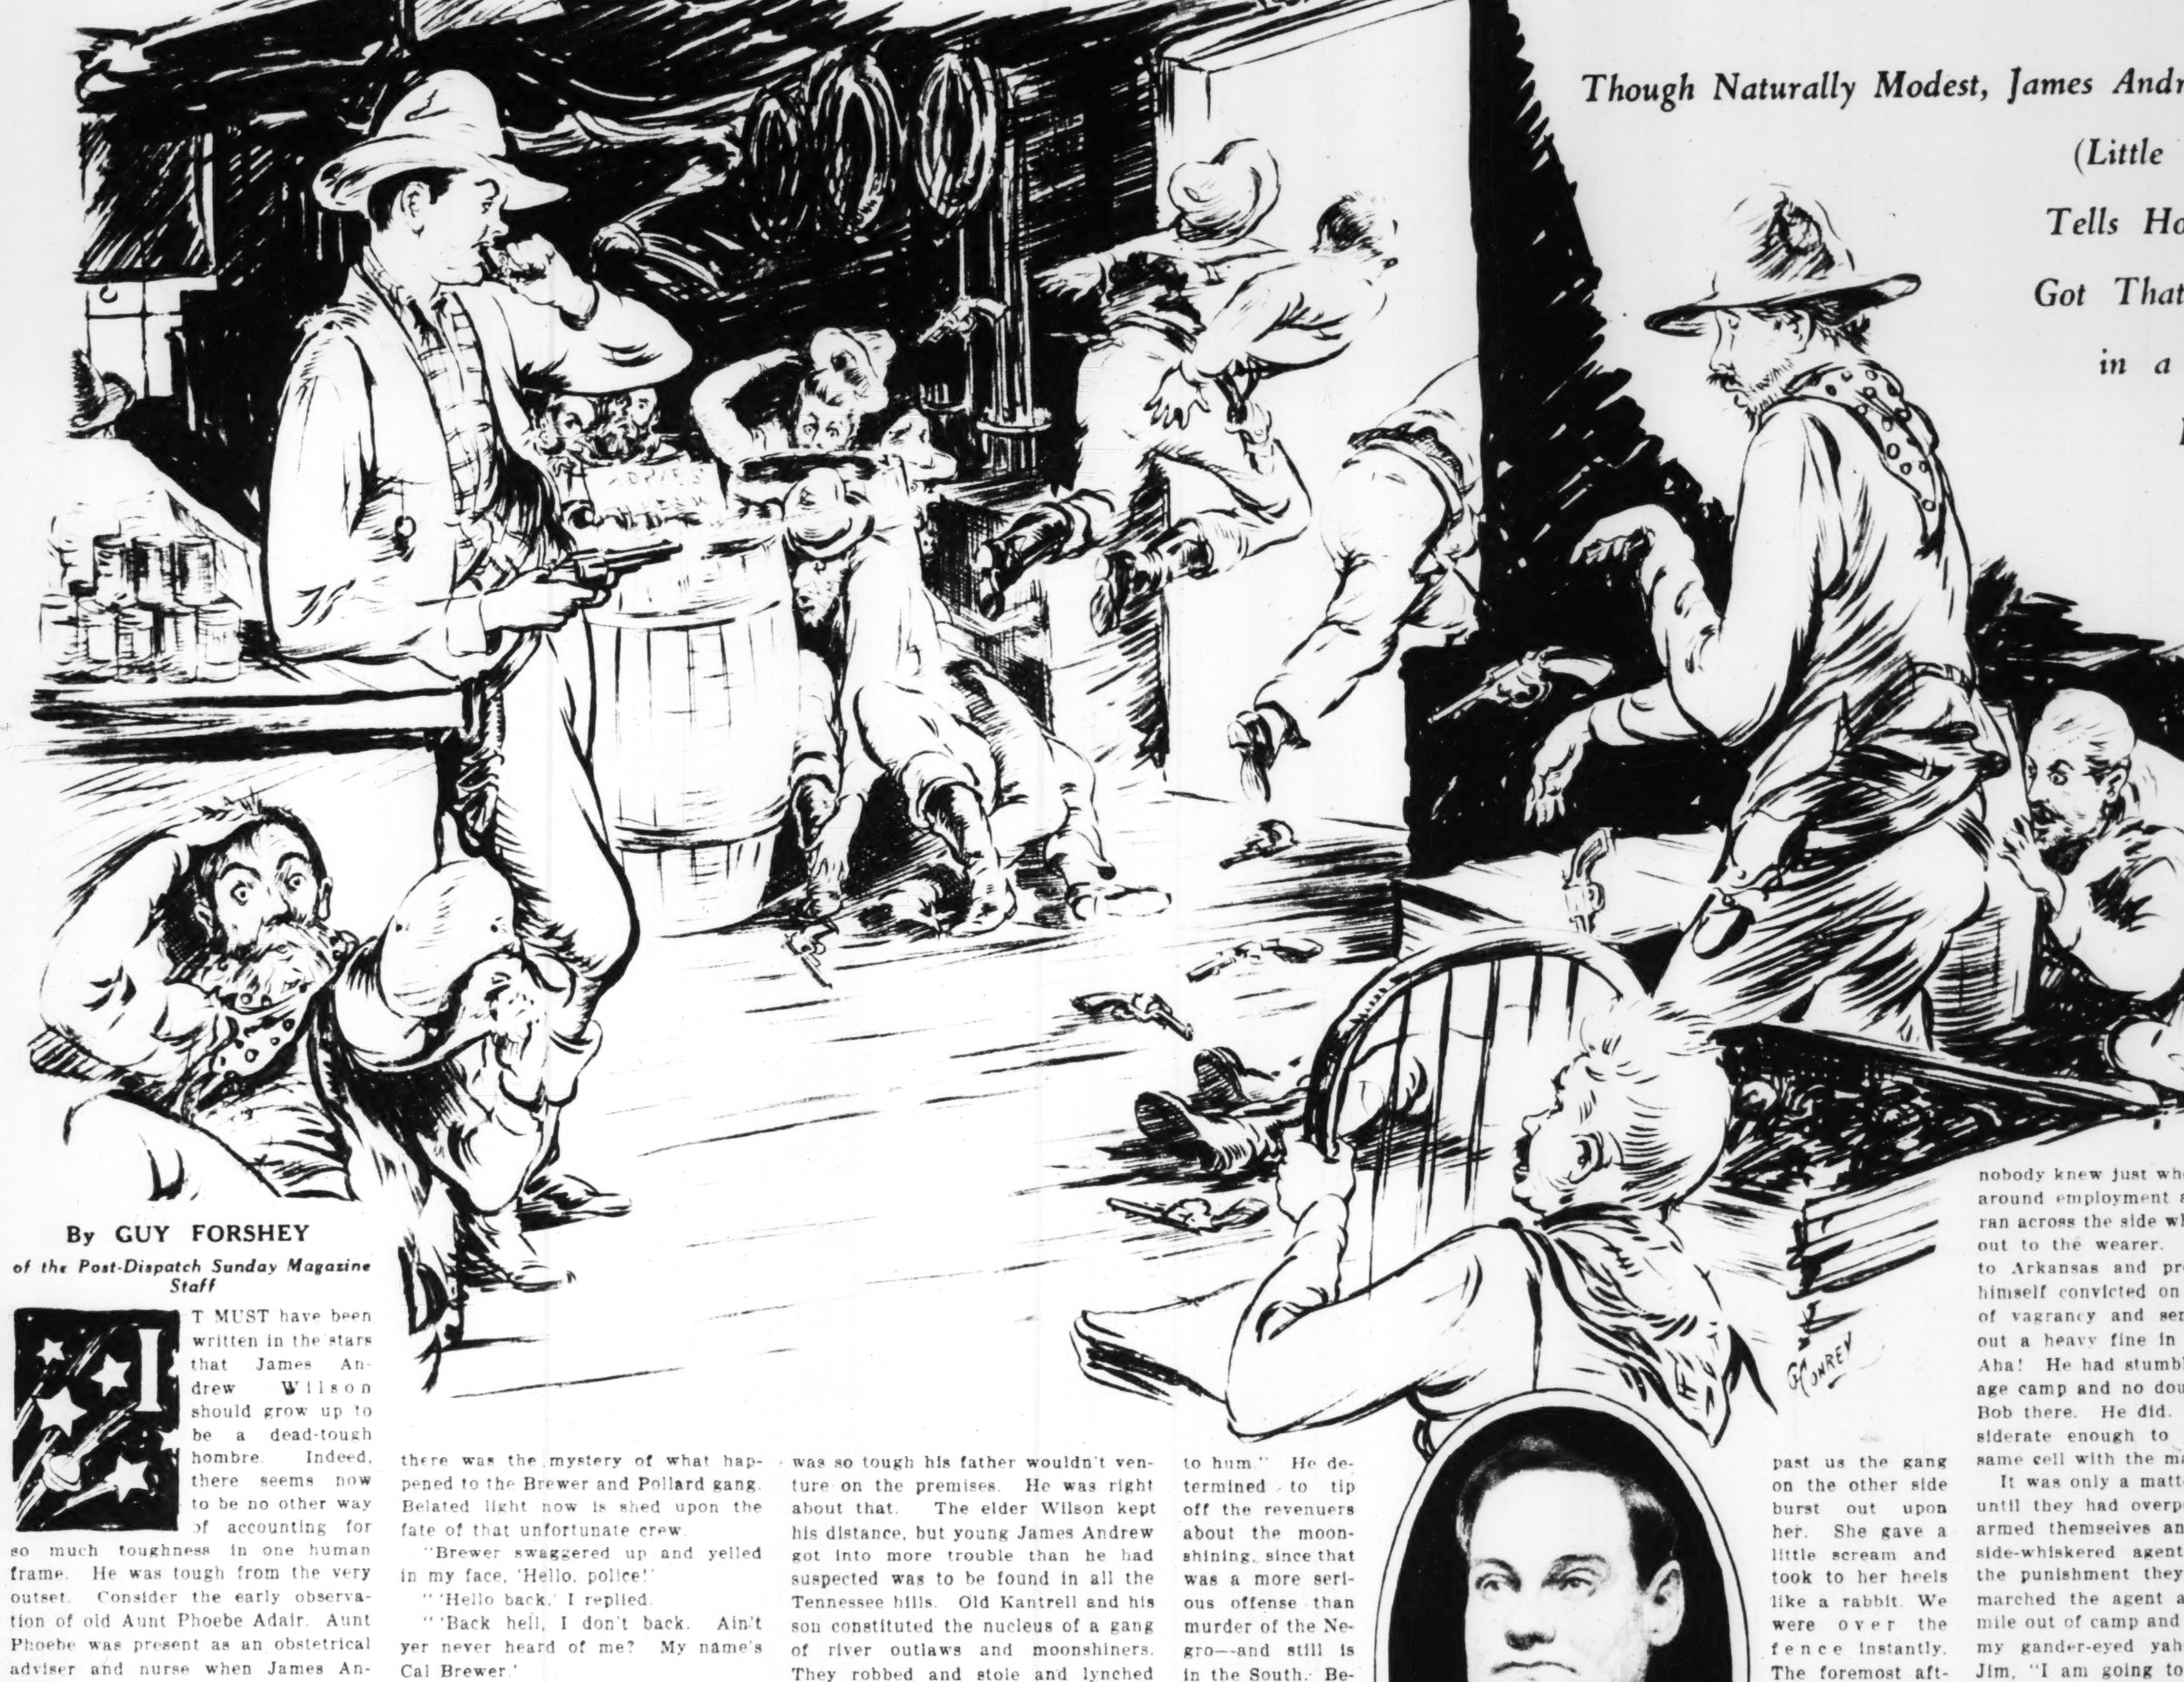
"THE BRAVEST MAN IN TEXAS"

—He Admits It Himself

Though Naturally Modest, James Andrew Wilson (Little Jim) Tells How He Got That Way, in a Recently Published Book.



By GUY FORSHEY

of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

IT MUST have been written in the stars that James Andrew Wilson should grow up to be a dead-tough hombre. Indeed, there seems now to be no other way of accounting for so much toughness in one human frame. He was tough from the very outset. Consider the early observation of old Aunt Phoebe Adair. Aunt Phoebe was present as an obstetrical adviser and nurse when James Andrew came into the world some 60 years ago down in the hills of Tennessee and she could readily discern that he was destined to be a "bad un" because, as she afterwards related, "he cussed and bit me whilst I was dressin' him."

From this robust beginning, he went on getting tougher every minute and, fortunately for civilization, kept his genius for depopulation working on the side of righteousness. The way he could absorb bullets while righting wrongs and filling cemeteries leads inevitably to the conclusion that he was the instrument of an all-wise Providence sent in direct answer to the prayers of oppressed widows, orphans and innocent maidens. During his powder-grimed career as a peace officer, it would appear, he killed a bad man for breakfast about every morning, not to mention those slain for heavier meals. But those days are over now and James Andrew, perhaps becoming a little mellow as a justice of the peace, turns to "retro-reminiscence back through bygone events." Wherefore, we are privileged to become acquainted with "the bravest man who ever lived in Texas." The valiant one tells all about himself in his new book just published—"Life, Travels and Adventures of James Andrew Wilson."

THE modest claim as to bravery is made right out in bold type on the cover, and if some other aspiring Texan feels inclined to dispute it personally, let him look first at the fly leaf and take warning therefrom. He will observe that the author also freely admits he is the greatest fighter living in the Lone Star State right now.

It isn't quite clear why the courageous Mr. Wilson neglected so long to write his autobiography—his foregoing autobiography, as he calls it in the introduction—but the fact that he did neglect to do so earlier is to be regretted. His modest silence for these many years has denied history some mighty sensational homicide records which appear to have been made during his term as marshal of Allenscreek, Tennessee. For one thing, there was the mystery of what happened to the Brewer and Pollard gang. Belated light now is shed upon the fate of that unfortunate crew.

"Brewer swaggered up and yelled in my face, 'Hello, police!'

"'Hello back,' I replied.

"'Back hell, I don't back. Ain't yer never heard of me? My name's Cal Brewer.'

"'Well, have a seat, Mr. Brewer.'

"'An' I got a bad rep, I have.'

"'Well, have two seats, Mr. Brewer.'**

"Then the Pollards began to curse.  I told them they were forty sorts of liars and to get out of town while they were all in one piece. At this they all started to draw their guns and each of them got shot as fast as I was capable of shooting."

THE main reason for his long silence about this and other exploits, it seems, was his modesty. Although he conservatively guesses that he had "more real adventure than any two of the old heroes of the frontier ever experienced," he is not "proud" of his reputation as a scrapper and dislikes the use of so many I's in telling his story. Indeed, he declares, he "would much rather it had been written in the second person."

But since that course seemed to involve too many grammatical difficulties, he had to content himself with use of the first, explaining meanwhile his hatred for personal publicity.

"I have not written this book to beget for myself any sort of fame or notoriety," the author assures us. "One fellow said of me, 'He don't give a damn for his rep. I don't believe he even knows he's a bad guy to trifle with'— Well I never considered myself a bad guy. The trouble was, I never would take a thing off of a so-called bad guy. I had less patience with those than any other gentry. I did not fear them or anybody. * Most of my strife and adventure was with so-called bad people. The scenes of my turbulent career were Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama."

When James Andrew was a boy in Tennessee, they called him "Little Jim." That was to distinguish him from an uncle, "Big Jim," himself widely celebrated as a scrapper. In 1885, when Little Jim was 16 years old, he ran away from home because of his father's annoying practice of hiring him out to the neighbors and collecting his wages. For protection, he ran to old Rube Kantrell's and hired out there because he thought old Rube was so tough his father wouldn't venture on the premises. He was right about that. The elder Wilson kept his distance, but young James Andrew got into more trouble than he had suspected was to be found in all the Tennessee hills. Old Kantrell and his son constituted the nucleus of a gang of river outlaws and moonshiners. They robbed and stole and lynched and murdered. Before he had worked for the Kantrells a week, Little Jim made a revolting discovery.

"I wondered what sort of goods they delivered over the river late every evening. The first trip over I learned it was wildcat whisky and a few days later I learned that the liquor was made on a farm in a cave not a mile away. The river being the county line, this liquor was put over and distributed all over West Tennessee. Here I was aiding in illicit traffic against the laws of the State and Government. Then I began to study ways and means to break up this buzzard's nest of iniquity. So I worked on and 'seemed' to like it.

"One morning after I had been here five or six weeks, a steamboat landed and put off a sick Negro.

"AS I came down from the house I saw old Kantrell jerk the Negro to his feet and march him up the river bank. When they were out of sight behind a large boulder, I heard a pistol crack. I walked along the bank to the boulder and saw old Kantrell rolling the Negro into the river. I never had such revolting thoughts of a man as I had for this old scoundrel then. He straightened up from his finished job as I came up and said, 'What are you doin' nosin' around here?'

"'What did you murder that Negro for?'

"'Why, he had the smallpox, that's why. You get on about your work or I'll sling you in after him, do ye hear me?'

"'No, you won't, Mr. Kantrell. You might start something with me, but you are not certain how able I am to defend myself and what I might do to you.'

"My hand was in my pocket on my gun and he knew it, but he didn't know just how quick I could kill him. He smiled a sickly, artificial grimace and started on, saying, 'Aw, Jim, go on to work. We ought to be able to get along better than this. I can help you to real money if you let me.'"

It appears further bloodshed was averted on this occasion, but Little Jim's "generator of plans was starting to hum." He determined to tip off the revenuers about the moonshining, since that was a more serious offense than murder of the Negro—and still is in the South. Before the time was ripe for the raid, however, other exciting events took place. He saved a sick Irishman from a fate similar to the unhappy Negro's; he saw a mill employe murdered by his employer to get back a week's wages; he met Sola Powers, who was young Kantrell's sweetheart, and promptly alienated her affections—this for a motive no less noble than to save her from the tragedy of marriage to a Kantrell. The Kantrells, however, couldn't see the nobility in it. They bound and gagged our hero and set off with their gang to kidnap poor innocent Sola on her way home from church. In this the villains failed to reckon with the Wilson nemesis. The rescued Irishman set Little Jim free; together they rounded up a revenue officer and prepared to mete out grim retribution. It was like this:

James Andrew Wilson (Little Jim) himself.

"WE PROCURED double-barreled shotguns at the store with some buckshot shells and formed our plans of procedure. Late in the evening of the next day, which was Sunday, we three slipped off into the glades and made our way to the vicinity of the church. On the right of the road running from the Powers residence to the church ran a field fence lined with plum bushes. On the left of the road was a line of woods. I knew the abductors would attack from the woods. Just after dark we secreted ourselves behind the fence. Pretty soon Sola went tripping along toward the church, whistling. Half an hour later we heard the rustle of horses' feet in the dry leaves across the road. A muffled cough and all was quiet. In about an hour the lights at the church went out and presently Sola came along singing low and sweet, 'Nearer My God to Thee.' I thought grimly—yes, for some. When she was a little past us the gang on the other side burst out upon her. She gave a little scream and took to her heels like a rabbit. We were over the fence instantly. The foremost after the girl was about 20 feet behind her when we fired, each taking his own man. Neither fell at the first volley, but turned and began shooting haphazard at us. We kept loading and shooting till they were all down.

"When I walked up to the house," the account continues, "Sola met me at the step of the veranda, laid her arms around my neck and said, 'Oh, Jim, you saved me! They nearly had me. Did you know they were after me? Were you laying for them?'

"'Yes, we were laying for them. I overheard them plan to kidnap you. I got help and defeated their purpose.'

"'Are they dead?'

"'Dead and dying, dear girl, but they deserved it. Look back at the unpunished crimes they have committed and what they aimed to do to you, little one. I couldn't stand by and allow them to go on with their cussedness any further.'"

And so they were betrothed, Little Jim and Sola.

But there were other scores to settle before they could be married and live happily ever afterward. In 1887, when Jim was working for a distant lumber company, he received an urgent appeal from Sola to come back.

HER brother, Bob, with whom she lived, had disappeared, leaving a wife and three small children. He had gone away months before to find work and they were sure he had run afoul of villainy. Jim generously turned over his bank roll to the sufferers and set out to find Bob.

Arrived at Somerville, where Bob had been last heard from, Wilson found his prospective brother-in-law had hired out to a labor agent with side whiskers and gander eyes, and that he had been transported with a lot of other laborers down the river—nobody knew just where. Jim knocked around employment agencies until he ran across the side whiskers and hired out to the wearer. He was shipped to Arkansas and pretty soon found himself convicted on a phony charge of vagrancy and sentenced to work out a heavy fine in a lumber camp. Aha! He had stumbled upon a peonage camp and no doubt would find Bob there. He did. They were considerate enough to put him in the same cell with the man he sought.

It was only a matter of a few days until they had overpowered a guard, armed themselves and kidnaped the side-whiskered agent. Terrible was the punishment they exacted. They marched the agent and the guard a mile out of camp and stopped. "Now, my gander-eyed yahoo," said Little Jim, "I am going to pull your sideburns off." Whereupon, our hero "reached up with both hands and picked him like a goose." Not content with this, they went down to Helena and beat up the police judge who had sentenced them. Needless to say, Bob soon was restored to his family.

COUNTLESS other adventures may be omitted here, but a word must be said about that battle with the Barnstrom gang. Even in this sanguinary saga, it looms forth as a classic.

It appears that old Rufe Kitchen and his son, George, both law-abiding citizens, had been drawn into a feud with the rowdy and murderous Barnstroms. Hearing of Jim Wilson's prowess with shooting irons, they appealed to him for aid and Jim magnanimously responded. His presence kept things quiet for a time, but finally affairs came to such a pass as to demand immediate and drastic action. George Kitchen asked Jim for a suggestion. Jim demurred.

"'No, it's up to you to suggest an open and above-board he-man's plan of action and I am with you.'

"'Of course then, there is only one plan left and that is to go down there and thrust the hive, get as many as we can and get away if possible.'

"*When 1 o'clock came we slipped away armed with two pistols each. We detoured and came up behind the store.Opening the door, we both stepped in together. As I faced forward, George motioned old Barnstrom, the boss, to come to us. All seven of the gang had been sitting around the stove, but as we were recognized they all jumped to their feet. Old Barnstrom came straight toward us till he was in springing distance. As he sprang at George he yelled, 'Get 'em, boys, no witnesses.' The others in front went for their guns and began shooting. They were surprised and rattled, and evidently shot haphazard without much aim at first. Both of my guns were popping. A side glance showed me the awfulest tussle between George and old Barnstrom anybody ever saw. George had

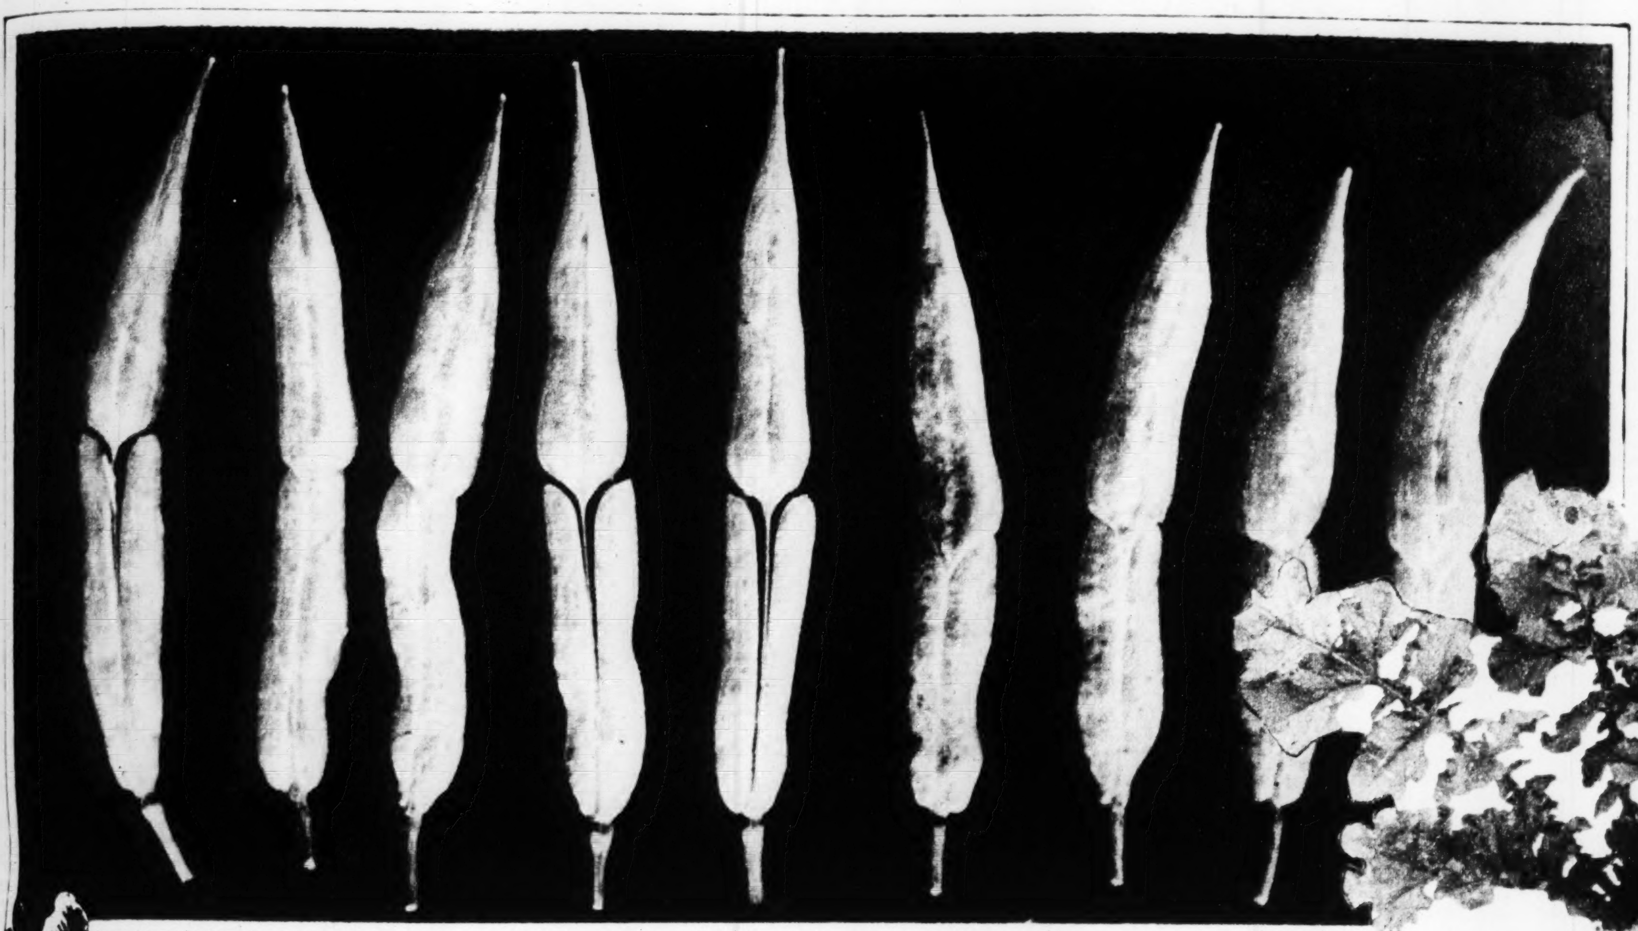
SCIENCE WEDS a CABBAGE to a RADISH

Experts Believe That the Joining of Two Members of Different Vegetable Families Will Have an Important Bearing on the Study of Evolution.



Specimens of the "raddage," a cross between cabbage and radish.

Georgii D. Karpechenko.

The leaves of the hybrid plant.

ONCE upon a time there was a little radish. She lived in a garden of a Russian scientist, who, quite contrary to popular notions, did not look like either Santa Claus or Emil Jannings. He was young, smooth-shaven, and good-looking enough to turn other heads than those of radishes. His name was Georgii D. Karpechenko, which doesn't sound any queerer in Russia than George D. Carpenter would here.

But it wasn't for the young Russian scientist that the heart of the radish fluttered. She was mated to a big round cabbage, a distant cousin of hers, and Dr. Karpechenko was merely the squire who officiated at the wedding. And afterwards, when the babies began to arrive (thousands of them!) he kept official record of the posterity of this strange wedding.

A queer posterity it was, too. For in our neighbor world of plants and animals, there seems to be a prejudice against marrying too far out of the family. Mate a donkey and a horse, and you get nothing but mules. Mate a carrot and a beet, and you get—nothing at all. The relationship is too remote.

For the breeder the rule is always, make your matings relatively close; the more distant the cousinship the less chance you have of obtaining offspring, and the less chance the offspring you do get have of amounting to anything.

There are a few good hybrids that have become standardized—the mule, for example—but for every success resulting from these out-of-the-family matings there are thousands of failures. The great majority of hybrids are worthless.

It was so with the radish-cabbage wedding that took place under Dr. Karpechenko's hand in the garden of the Institute of Applied Botany of Detskoe Selo, near Leningrad. The offspring were neither cabbages nor radishes, but merely queer rosettes of leaves.

They did not make cabbage heads above the ground nor radish roots beneath. In fact, they resembled, outwardly at least, the tufty little ancestral cabbage plants that still grow wild on the cliffs along the North Sea shores. That is the fate of many hybrid crosses; they produce what look like "throwbacks."

YET in spite of the unpromising looks of the radish-cabbage children, Dr. Karpechenko cultivated them carefully, saved such seed as they formed, and took tender care of the grandchildren plants also, though they turned out no better than their parents from a gardener's point of view.

Why? What good reason could a geneticist in a Government Institute of Applied Botany give visiting officials who were not scientists for using good ground to raise such weeds?

Well, for one thing, Dr. Karpechenko had done a thing rated as almost impossible; he had made an "intergeneric cross." And no matter how useless they may be, the offspring of an intergeneric cross are such great scientific curiosities that their mere existence is sufficient justification in itself.

They are scarcer than two-headed calves or mathematical horses. Only once before in the history of plant breeding do we come upon a record of a cross between a radish and a cabbage. That was made by an American, Dr. G. F. Gravatt of the United States Department of Agriculture, back in 1910; but unlike the present hybrid it was completely sterile and left no descendants. So on the basis of rarity alone the job was justified.

To most of us, a hybrid between a radish and a cabbage may seem no more remarkable than that commonplace cross that provides us with mules. But there is a difference, and a big one. For the donkey and the horse are distinct species, to be sure, but nearly related and belong to the same genus; whereas cabbages and radishes, though still related to each other, are at best quite distant cousins and belong to different genera.

According to the naturalists, a species is made up of individual plants or animals quite similar in hereditary makeup, and usually also in appearance, unless breeding and selection have split it up into distinguishable varieties. Thus, all black oaks belong to one species of oak, and all white oaks to another; and in nature all black oaks look more or less like each other, as do the white oaks.

ALL dogs are of the same species, but here artificial breeding has split the species up into separate varieties or breeds, ranging all the way from Pomeranians and Mexican Hairless to St. Bernards and Newfoundlands.

Similarly artificial breeding has split up the original cabbage stock into Brussels sprouts, kohl-rabi, cauliflower, and several distinct varieties of true cabbage; but these are all children of one species, all varieties of the original stock, known to botanists as Brassica oleracea.

Each genus is made up of a number of independent but related species. Thus, all dogs and wolves are included in the genus Canis, and all species of oaks in the one genus Quercus. Included in the cabbage, or Brassica, genus are species that we know as turnip, rutabaga, kale, and the two Chinese cabbages pe-tsai and pak-choi.

Crosses between separate species within a genus are easy enough to make; our old friend the mule comes into the picture here, and many varieties of our domestic poultry. The table grapes of the Eastern United States are most of them interspecific hybrids, and many of our new and choice Western wheats seem to belong to this category.

Of course, crosses between varieties within a species are even more abundant; see any mutt dog or alley cat or scrub shote if you want to study the subject.

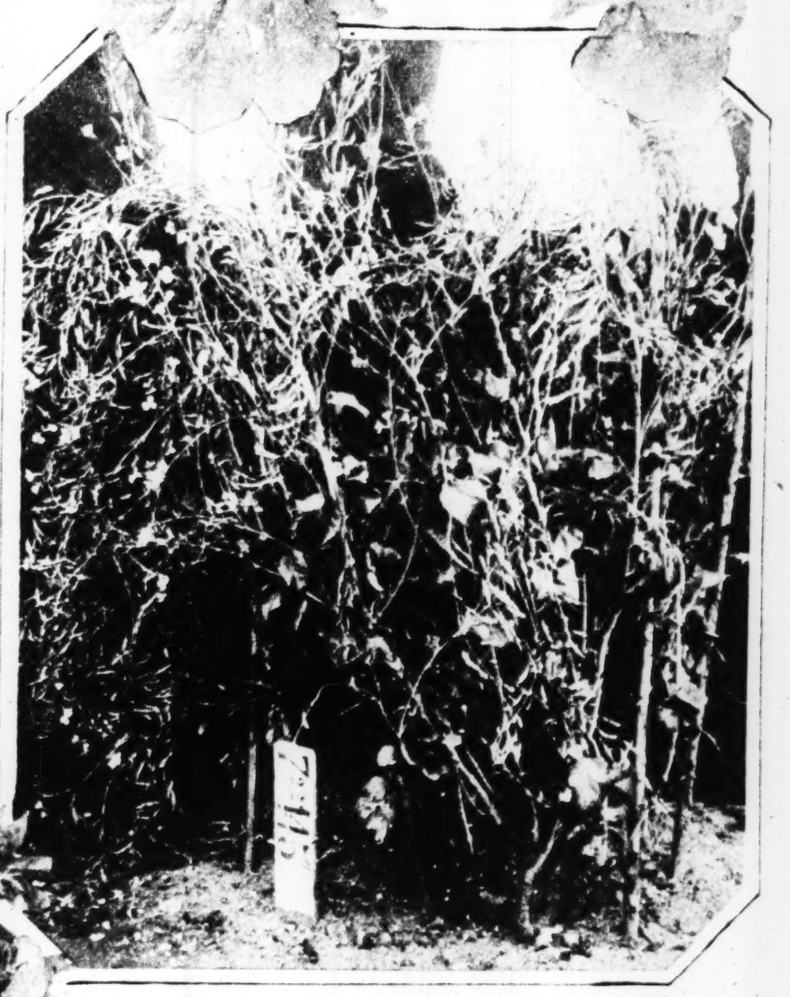
As species are grouped together to form genera, so related genera in turn are grouped together. Oaks, beeches and chestnuts, for example, are grouped in this way; cats, lions and tigers, and cabbage, radishes, mustards and cresses. But hybrids between separate genera are exceedingly rare, and it is in having secured such a cross that Dr. Karpechenko's scientific triumph lies.

Another value in the work of this young Russian may be found in its possible bearing on the study of evolution and the origin of species, still much debated questions.

There are in existence a considerable number of plant species that resemble related forms in general shape and growth habit, but are so much larger and more vigorous that they are usually considered quite distinct—they look alike yet are not alike.

Coupled with the larger general growth habit is an internal difference that can be found only with a microscope; the bigger plants sometimes have two, three or four times as many chromosomes in a cell as the smaller ones. For this reason some students of plant life believe that the larger plants are nothing but hybrid forms—small plants multiplied internally, as it were.

Chromosomes are specialized bits of denser protoplasm, the "bearers of heredity," according to most biologists, that are to be found in every actively living and dividing cell.



One of the first cabbage-radish plants.

In any given species each cell of every individual contains exactly the same number of them as all the other cells. At a certain stage in the reproductive process the number is reduced one-half, but soon thereafter the original number is restored. Biologists have therefore come to look upon its chromosome number as one of the marks of a species, quite as constant as size of seed-pod or shape of flower, and much more dependable as a means of identification than flower color or leaf shape.

By crossing a radish and a cabbage, Dr. Karpechenko has succeeded in doubling, trebling and otherwise changing the number of chromosomes in the cells of the hybrid children and grandchildren of this odd pair, and thereby gives the students of heredity something more to work on in their pursuit of the ever-elusive riddles of evolution.

So even though the descendants of the cabbage that married a radish will never appear on any dinner table as salad or sauerkraut, they will figure in the dry but important tables of figures compiled by geneticists.

After we have come to realization of the commercial uselessness of the new hybrids and their sharply contrasting importance in the scientific field, they may be looked upon from a third angle, as objects of great curiosity and interest to the ordinary, nonspecialized, average citizen, although he knows they will not satisfy his hunger.

The marks of their double parenthood stick out all over them. You can put your finger down on almost any part of one of these hybrid plants—should one call them "raddages" or "cabbishes"?—and pick out, here a radish character, there something of unmistakable cabbage origin.

THE leaves, for example, have more of the radish shape and arrangement. They never try to head up, but remain as a loose rosette rising a little above the ground. The nearest they come to being a cabbage is to look like their old wild ancestor.

But though radishy in shape, they are a little cabbagy in texture, being less hairy than typical radish leaves. This habit of forming only a rosette of leaves near the ground persisted into the second generation, or grandchildren of the original cross, even though these were again crossed with head-forming varieties—cabbage and Brussels sprouts.

The roots of the hybrids were plainly enough hybrid roots. They were not thickened up into the nice edible globes or spindles that radishes make, but neither were they so strictly thin and fibrous as the roots of regular cabbages. Even in the second generation crossings with cabbage, this trace of the radish in the roots still persisted.

When they came to produce their flowers, the hybrids again favored both sides of the house. They produced big, bushy growths of stalk, rather more than either parental type usually grows, and these stalks were heavily burdened with white flowers, intermediate in size and shape between cabbage and radish flowers.

Inside, the stalks tended to be like those of the radish, for they were hollow, and the cabbage stalk is typically solid—so solid that it is discarded as inedible.

One unusual feature about the flowers in the hybrids with extra chromosome counts was the tendency to produce extra stamens. The normal stamen number in both radish and cabbage is six, but in these plants, so unlike their type, there were sometimes eight stamens.

PERHAPS the oddest thing about the structure of these cross-bred plants, and at the same time the most easily noticed, is the way the seed pods are put together. Cabbage seed pods are long slim affairs, opening on the sides with a pair of trap doors running down the whole length, and shedding their seeds through these openings. Radish seed pods are thick and stocky, with a tapering tip; they have no natural mode of opening at all, and release their seeds only when crushed or after they lie on the ground and decay.

The pods of the hybrids are of about the same size and shape as radish pods. They have trap-door openings through which the seeds escape, cabbage fashion; but these run only about halfway from the bottom to the top, and the rest of the seeds are left inside the pod to get out as best they can, like the radish.

The American predecessor of this Russian radish-cabbage hybrid was described fourteen years ago in the Journal of Heredity, but did not attract much attention at the time and, since the strain died out for lack of seed, was lost sight of and pretty well forgotten.

The description then written by Dr. Gravatt, its originator, tallies fairly well with that now given by Dr. Karpechenko, but differs in some respects. For one thing, Dr. Gravatt's hybrid had leaves more like a cabbage, but they were much larger than the leaves of either parent.

It grew into a tremendous bush, filling one end of the greenhouse where it was set. Before it died of a bacterial root rot, it had grown out of the ventilator of the greenhouse and part way down the roof on both sides. It bore huge numbers of flowers, but never set a single fertile seed.

A recent issue of the Journal of Heredity contained an account of a strange cabbage hybrid originated by a Polish experimenter, C. Moldenhaver. This was a cross between cabbage and Brussels sprouts. It grew a tall, erect stalk, after the fashion of a plant of Brussels sprouts; only the stalk was much taller than its parent variety.

On this, at each place where the small budlike "sprouts" usually grow appeared a great, loose rosette of leaves, obviously trying to be a cabbage.

A cross between the cabbage and the Brussels sprout.

NEW YORK.

MOST success stories have a rags-to-riches theme. This has become a stereotype — almost a necessity—just as once all the Presidents of the United States were born in log cabins. Even successes on Broadway follow that pattern. But this one is different.

It is the story of Fanny Todd Mitchell, formerly of St. Louis, and it might be called—as a variation of the other phrase—from debutante to playwright. Or, perhaps, from the Junior League Follies to the big-time Follies.

Two of the plays that Mrs. Mitchell—she is known as Miss Mitchell on Broadway—has adapted and one that she wrote have had marked success this season. Which is considerable of a record for any playwright and particularly for one as young and with as little experience as Mrs. Mitchell.

As one outcome of her success she signed a five-year contract with the Shuberts recently. They gave her work a try and now they have agreed to pay her a very large salary, the exact amount of which she will not disclose, to write more plays for them. She also has an important position in the department of the Shubert organization that has the task of selecting new plays. She has to read a number of manuscripts every week and pass on them.

Mrs. Mitchell is of an old and distinguished St. Louis family. She was born Fanny Todd Clark. Her mother was Mabel Slayback and her grandmother, Mrs. Hinman H. Clark, was Fanny Todd. She was given the most careful upbringing, and to complete her education she was sent abroad for two years with a chaperone. She studied French, German, Italian and music under tutors at Geneva, Switzerland.

In 1915 she made her debut. Even as a young girl she had been interested in writing. She rather rebelled against the concept that there must be nothing before her, after her debut, but a successful marriage. Long before this time she had begun to write short stories. But, of course, she did nothing with them commercially.

With her election to the Junior League in her debut year and her active participation in the society of St. Louis, she began at the same time to consider her literary endeavors more seriously. She had a great desire to see her things in print and sent them round to a number of magazine editors, but with no success whatever. She even took a course in short-story and scenario writing.

ALL this time, of course, she carried on a number of social activities. She put a great deal of work into the "Follies" that were then staged annually by the Junior League of St. Louis. She painted scenery, worked on the script, played various roles, directed and cast, all of which was excellent experience, but it was only later that she was to come to appreciate its value.

The war inevitably made changes in the social life of St. Louis. It not only dulled and sobered it, but it put a very high premium on young officers attached to nearby posts. The attractive Fanny Clark now met Lieutenant Malcolm M. Mitchell who was in the balloon school that was started by Major Albert Bond Lambert even before the United States entered the war.

These two were very much attracted to each other from the first. Miss Clark's parents objected that she was too young to marry even though she had been "out" two years. They were quite positive in their opposition to any relationship as serious as an engagement. But all objections were overruled when Miss Clark eloped to Omaha and married the young Lieutenant, after having known him only a very short time. Lieutenant Mitchell was then stationed at Omaha in the balloon school there. Less than a week after the marriage he was sent overseas and it was not until two years later that she saw him again. As she remarked at the time, it was almost as though they had to be introduced again.

They returned to St. Louis to live, where Mitchell was connected with an advertising firm. Later they moved to New York, upon Mitchell's receiving a more favorable offer. It was here that their son was born. Even after this Mrs. Mitchell attempted to keep up her literary interests. She wrote a great deal, accumulated a whole trunkful of manuscripts, but again had little luck in placing them. For the most part she was able to sell her stories only to minor publications. Aside from being a hobby, however, it did not much matter whether she sold her manuscripts or not, since her husband made a comfortable income.

But after a brief illness Mitchell died. When she had somewhat recovered from the shock of this, Mrs. Mitchell came to the realization she was now on her own. Not only this, but she had her son to support as well. Her husband had left a very small estate and it so happened that at this particular time her father had had business reverses. It was no question of need—in the more literal sense—but a matter of whether or not she would have to alter her way of living very greatly to meet the changed condition.

There were a great many things she could do but none of them of a very practical nature. She could be charming in a drawing room. She was an excellent horsewoman, clever at golf and tennis and awfully good at bridge. But people are not very often paid for doing these things.

She finally recalled that she had once had small parts in the movies. When she had spent part of a winter in Los Angeles with her mother, she had taken a minor part or two, through the influence of a friend who was a director, more or less as a joke. This seemed to offer a possibility. She is an ideal type for the stage—a striking blonde, tall, slender and with fine poise and carriage. With letters of introduction she went to the Shuberts and told them she wanted a part in one of their plays.

J. J. Shubert cast her in "A Night in Spain." It was a small part, with a little singing to do, but she regarded it as a beginning. Rehearsals did not go very well. After the play opened on Broadway Shubert told her frankly that she had no acting ability. He said she would be kept on in the part, but advised her not to seek a career on the stage.

Mrs. Mitchell was naturally depressed by this. She had really hoped that the theater might hold a future for her. She took up her writing again. One day she happened to be scribbling in the wings—she tried to take advantage of every moment—when one of the Shuberts noticed her. He asked what she was writing.

"It's a short story about a theatrical producer," Mrs. Mitchell answered, in part jokingly. "And you're the prototype."

Shubert asked to see it, and some days later Mrs. Mitchell brought him the finished story. Two or three days afterward he found time to read it, hunted her out, and said:

"You're wasting your time on the stage. You have ideas that are good. You ought to be writing."

HE FIRST gave her a chance to adapt a play from the German. Her background here proved invaluable. The years she had spent abroad had given her a working familiarity with the language. She made the adaptation and the play was produced under the title, "Music in May." It is an operetta of the "Student Prince" type, retelling the story of love between a prince of the blood and a daughter of the people. This play opened in Philadelphia and was taken to Newark before its Broadway opening.

The other adaptation was made from the play, "The Royal Family," which was popular in 1900 and is not to be confused with the play of that name about a theatrical family that was one of the hits of last season. This piece Mrs. Mitchell adapted with the title of "The Queen's Taste," but its title was subsequently changed to "Angela."

The play which she herself wrote, called "Boom-Boom," will prove a hit, it is believed. It has not yet had sufficient opportunity to prove itself. Critics who saw it in tryout generally gave it praise.

"'Boom-Boom' lives up to its name in the hilariousness of its action," wrote one. "After a rather warm and affectionate prelude, in which a beautiful moon warms the hearts of two lovers, the entire cast starts making whoopee (call it 'Boom-Boom' from now on). And there is no end to it until the finale. All take part in the contest and it seemed to this referee it was a draw. Everybody wins—there are no blanks.

"The play deals with the multitudinous love affairs of Worthington Smith. Unknown to his son, Smith marries Jean, to whom the son had previously made love. Upon the son's return from South America, the state of affairs becomes known and the son, still enamored of the beautiful stepmother, sets about creating disharmony en famille. With the efforts of Reggie Phipps, who is not an accomplice, the inevitable result is obtained, the devoted father pronouncing blessing and rushing to the telephone to arrange a party to celebrate his deliverance."

More than ever before in her life Mrs. Mitchell's days are now filled. She has an apartment and a nurse for her son and other servants besides. She spends, of course, most of her time at the Shubert office, where the door of her own private sanctum is neatly lettered, "Miss Mitchell." She has a hand in the casting of new plays as well as in their selection. Moreover, she has already become something of a figure on Broadway. Her striking yellow head is made out among the crowds at first-nights and at the smarter night clubs. Already, too, she has the air of success, quiet, calm, efficient, and it is the general opinion that she is at the beginning of a career, that her work that has so far been seen will be overshadowed by what she does later.

GROSS EXAGGERATIONS

The Wreckers

IT WAS the Courthouse rickety
Of the City Hall renown.
And the Mayor appointed a wrecking crew
To tear the darned thing down.

Cracked were its walls like the frozen mud,
And the holes admitted the weather.
The rats had eaten the stairs away
And the cobwebs held it together.

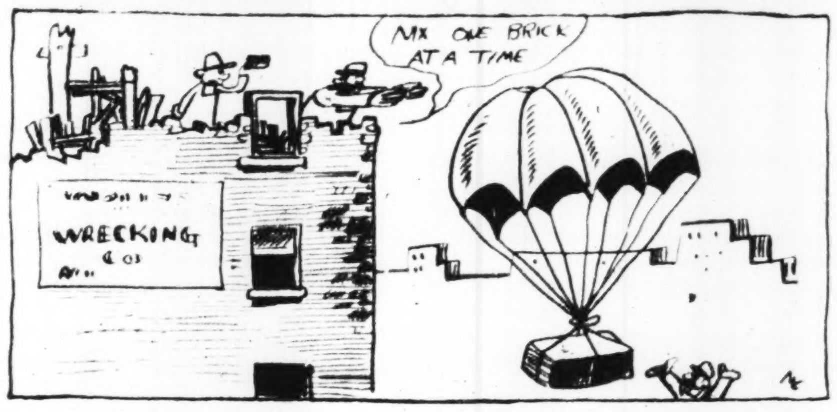
The skylight clattered down to the ground
When the workmen coughed a cough,
And the skipper blew a whiff from his pipe
That knocked the chimney off.

Then up spoke an old contractor
With a rubber crowbar, "Gee!
Last month the roof had a rim of tin,
Tonight no roof we see."

"There'll be a WRECK," replied the boss,
And an awful laugh he laughed.
"If I lay my mitts on the son of a gun
That's trying to queer the graft."

The foundations shuddered and trembled
And chilled them all to the bone.
"For the luva Mike!" yelled the Skipper,
"Who kicked that corner-stone?"

And so with safety pins and forks
They started on the roof
And the skipper had brought his little child,
A smiling, three months' goof.



MIX ONE BRICK AT A TIME
WRECKING CO

She prattled in her cradle
Soft as a feathered goose.
But she learned to walk and could talk New Yawk
By the time a brick was loose.

"Oh, father, I hear the church bells ring,"
And she grabbed him by the sleeve.
And the Skipper loosened another brick
And said: "It's New Year's Eve."

"Oh, father, I hear the sound of guns
That boom away to the north."
And he balanced the brick in his mitt and replied:
"They're celebrating the Fourth."

"Oh, father, I see a gleam of light, Yellow and red in the dark."
And he brushed the snow from her cheek and said:
"It's the Christmas tree in the park."

"Oh, father, I'm old enough to vote.
When will the job be done?"
And the Skipper said: "I've made my will
And bequeathed it to my son!"

Such is the wreck of the Courthouse,
For months a familiar sight.
They knocked a board off during the day
And nailed it back at night.

And the buildings around will totter
And crumble in dusty shrouds,
But the wrecking crew and the Skipper
Will still be up in the clouds.

If It's in Paris, It's in France

Splitting Infinitives With the "Intelligentia" on the Left Bank

Sam Hellman.

"THERE'S one place here in France," remarks Minnie Mellish, "that I'm all a-twitter to see."

"What's that?" I asks. "The Grand Canyon of the Colorado?"

"No," says Minnie, who's the kind of girl that brains forget. "I have seen that in America. I'm talking about La Belle. All my life I've heard of La Belle, France. It must be just wonderful there, mustn't it, Ira?"

"I don't know," scowls her husband. "I'll take it up with the freight agent of the B. & O. when I get home."

"La Belle, France," I offers, "is spoken of highly by the clergy, but there are those who claim it is not to be compared to Sturdy, England, or Classic, Italy."

"Polish propaganda," growls Joe Davis, who I'd dragged over to Europe with us. "There's really only one place that's fit to be spoken of in the same breath with La Belle, France."

"Go on," I urges, passionately. "You know me and suspense."

"Bonny, Scotland," says Joe. "It has a much meaner average temperature than Sturdy, and manufactures more left-handed monkey wrenches than any city except Heroic, Belgium. Or am I thinking of Sunny, Spain?"

"That's the trouble with Europe," I sighs. "You can't go anywhere without running into geography."

"How long," snaps the wife, "does this flow of half-wit go on?"

As far as I'm concerned, it's going on indefinitely at least. No one can take me abroad with impunity and the Mellishes, and the more I'm able to make the frau suffer the sooner is the trip likely to be over. Davis feels the same way about it, in spades.

"Where," inquires Minnie, "are you boys planning to take us this evening?"

"What would you like to do?" I asks. "Climb an Alp or throw rocks at Napoleon's tomb?"

"I should love to see some Apaches," confides the Mellish mess. "You can't just say right off you want to see some Apaches," I tells her. "You got to make reservations for Apaches. Even the American Government has to do that."

"SWELL chance," growls Joe, "of us taking you among the Apaches. A beautiful wench like you would be kidnaped as quick as they got a flash of you. It has been estimated by the Lost Article Department of the Erie that 90 per cent of the American blondes who land at Cherbourg are stolen by French Apaches."

"Joe's right," says I. "Ordinarily I'd take you there, but tonight I just don't feel like shooting my way through a bunch of bandits with a charming matron slung over my shoulders. Do I, Ira?"

"Let's go over to the Latin quarter," suggests the misses, a trifle wearily.

"All right," I agrees, "but is there anyone in the crowd that can talk Latin?"

"Ira's never tried," says Minnie, "but he, no doubt, could if he wanted to. Is it necessary?"

"Not exactly," I returns, "but all the intelligentia over on the left bank talk Latin and you'd want to split an infinitive or two with the intelligentia, wouldn't you?"

"What," inquires La Mellish, "is an intelligentia?"

"An intelligentia," I explains, "is a youngster, still wet behind the ears, who thinks that his father is a boob because he works all day, sleeps at night, and doesn't know the difference between esoteric expressionism and a neofuturist painting of a Nude Descending from a Dumb Elevator in Search of a Keg of Nails."

"Not a keg of nails," declares Davis. "She's after an armful of square pianos."

"You're wrong," says I with some heat. "If the gal in that painting isn't keg-of-nails conscious, then I'm"——

"Whatever you may be," cuts in Joe, angrily, "the fact remains that the look in her eyes is one of hunger for a armful of pianos and I'm prepared to prove I'm right if you'll go with me tonight."

"You comedians will do nothing of the sort," shrills the wife. "We're going and we're going right now."

In half an hour we're over on the left bank, cluttered about a sticky table in the Cafe du Dome. All around us are messy dressed bimbos, playing hookey from the ribbon counter back home and solving the problems of life with vin ordinaire and corduroy pants.

"Are all the people great writers and artists?" asks Minnie.

"Everybody you see," I returns, "is a household word like gosh and darn. Isn't that Bernard Shaw over there talking with Jascha Schmintz?"

"Sure enough," says Joe. "My old pal, Bernie. He's not as young as he used to be, but then he never was."

Along about this time a young fellow in a velvet coat and a Basque beret stops in front of our table and peers intently at Minnie.

"Aren't you Zoe Hoofenfelz?" he asks her.

"Er—no," mumbles Madame Mellish."

"Sit down," I invites cordially, "and have yourself measured for a drink."

The boy squats and keeps his gaze fixed on Minnie.

"You look so much like Zoe," says he. "The same torture of world-birth is in your eyes, there is that about the droop of your lips that's like a stricken tree crying out"——

"Who," inquires Davis, "is this Zoe baby?"

"SURELY," comes back the toast of Montparnasse, "you know the triolets of Zoe Hoofenfelz!"

"I'm afraid not," returns Joe. "I did know a lad named Claus Hoofendyke, who used to be in the glue business down in Shamokin, Pennsylvania, but he could hardly be the girl you're speaking of."

"Zoe," says the Latin Quarterist, "is God's gift to the world awry. If everything on earth was destroyed, if the heavens themselves fell and the waters of the sea gasped their last and died, yet if there but remained a fragment of one of Zoe's triolets the creation would have been justified. What the color is to the rainbow"——

"What," I interrupts, "is your line? Do you paint or sculpt or etch or itch"——

"I?" exclaims the youngster. "Why should I create for an age of materialists? Why should I take my proud soul and heave its iridescence under the feet of the trampling herd?"

"No reason at all," I assures him. "I've felt that way myself when I have sold a bill of crotcheted pickaxes and then got a cancellation. If it's a fair question, what do you do for your chops and flops?"

"The soul of a poet in flight," comes back the Bologney of the Boul' Mich', "laughs at food and slumber. You, madame," he goes on tensely and leaning over close to Minnie, "belong among us. Leave your home and husband and joint us about the Pierian Spring. Be a free spirit, be a"——

"Say," yelps Mellish, "how do you get that way? Come on. Let's beat it."

As we rise Zoe's boy friend takes his departure—a rather hurried departure, it seems to me.

"Isn't he wonderful!" thrills Minnie.

"He is indeed," I returns, "but didn't you have a purse when we started?" At the same moment I catches a flash of the velvet kid plunging through the doors of the Rotonde across the street. There's a glitter of silver mesh under his arm.

"The soul of a poet in flight," murmurs Davis.

(Our happy little group now proceeds to Italy, where a most thrilling adventure befalls it. Though the narrative has been passed by the censor, efforts are still being made by private agents of Mussolini to have it suppressed. You'll be in luck if they're successful.)

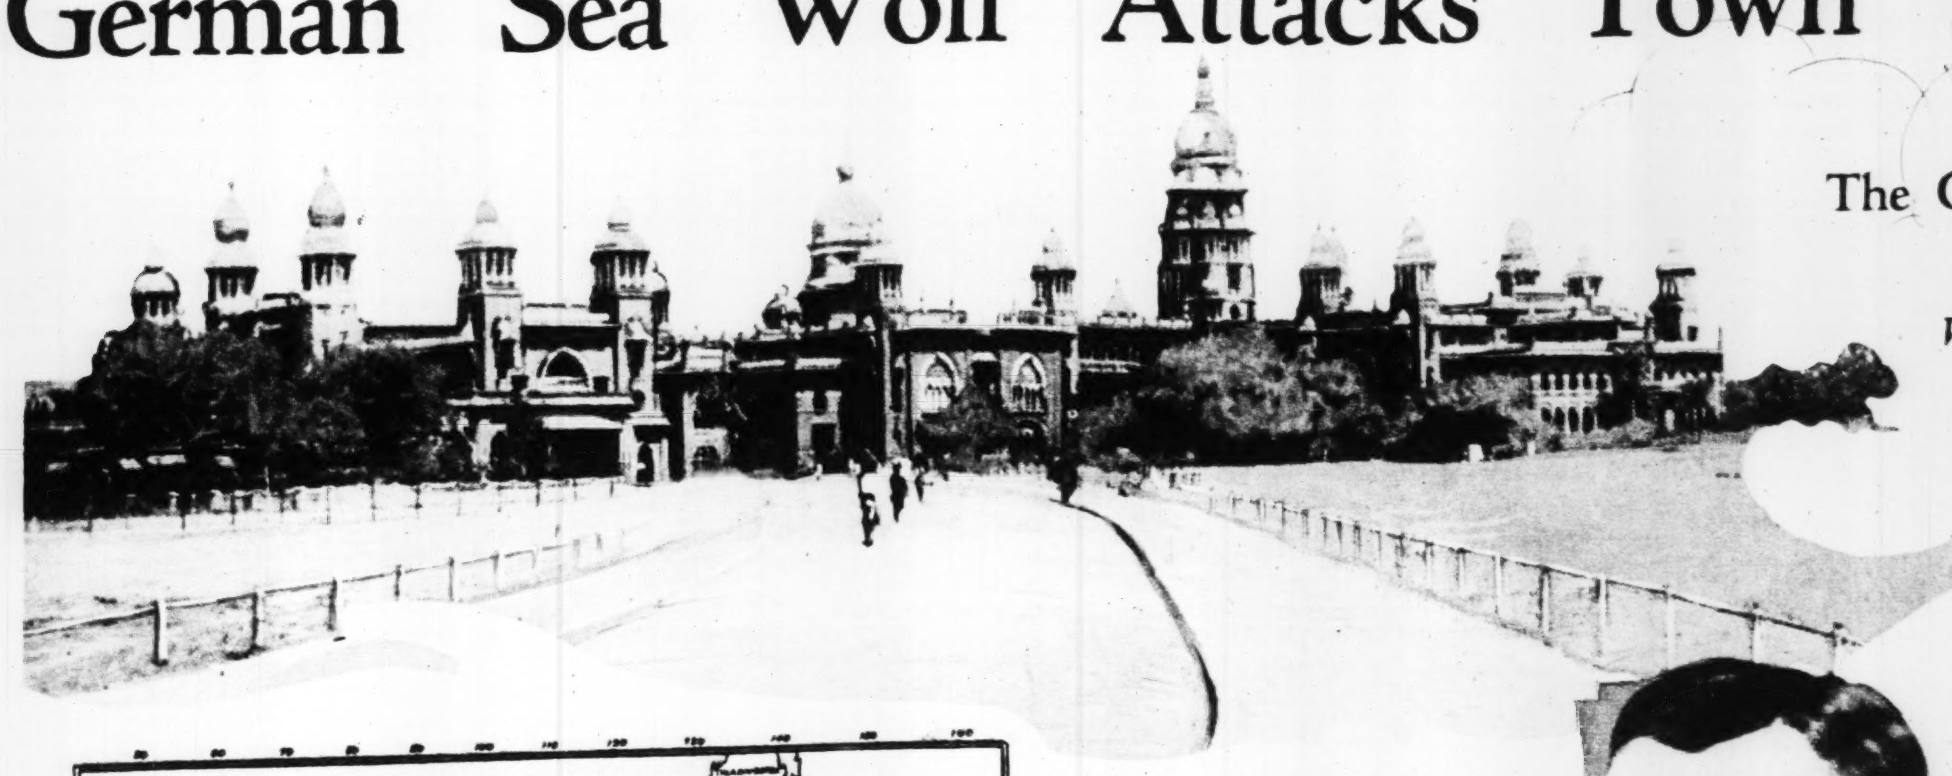
German Sea Wolf Attacks Town of Madras

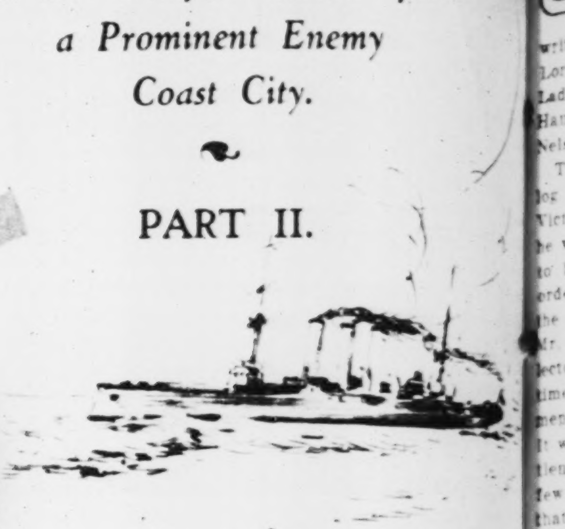
The CRUISE of the EMDEN Continues

With Woeful Results for a Prominent Enemy Coast City.

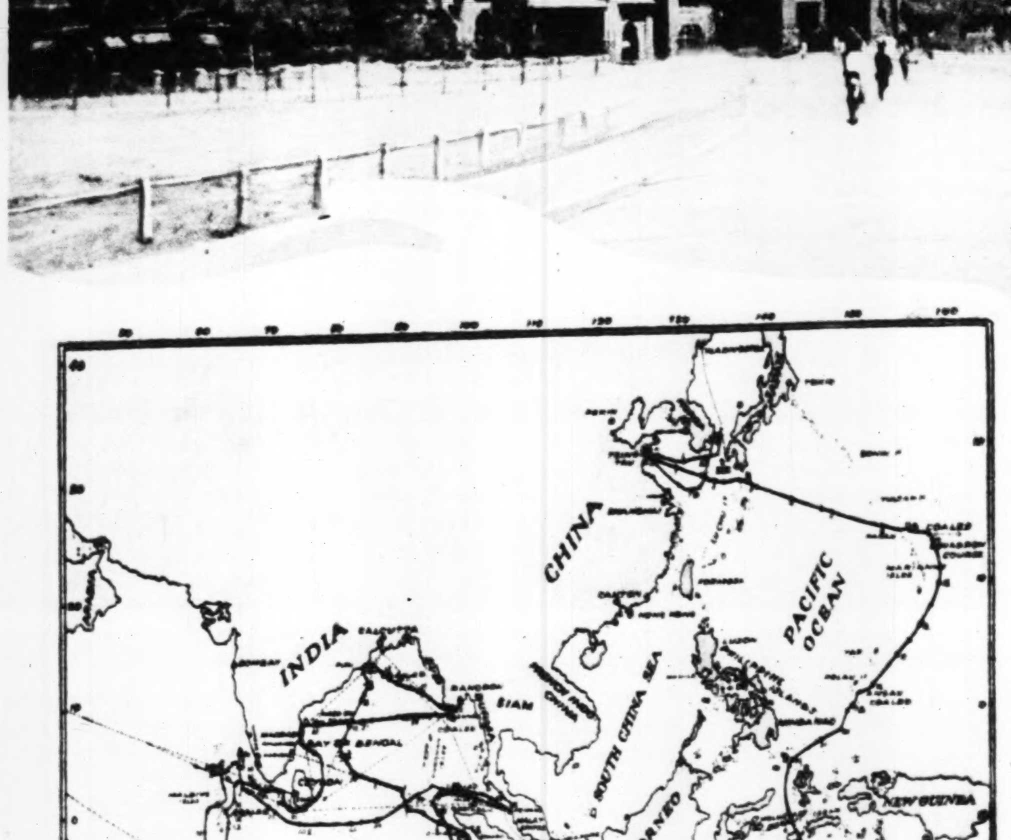
PART II.



The British Government Building in Madras.



Captain-Lieutenant von Mucke, the Emden's first officer.



By PRINCE FRANZ JOSEPH OF HOHENZOLLERN

A Lieutenant on the Emden During Her Brave Cruise

THIS is the second article of a series of six, to appear in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, recounting the valiant deeds performed by the German cruiser Emden on her mighty raid during the great war. The Emden made naval history in those days.

AFTER capturing and sinking the English troopship Indus in the Indian Ocean on September 11, 1914, we officers had scarcely finished our simple lunch when we felt the Emden turn and increase speed. Another ship was in sight.

At hunting speed we soon came up with our prey and signaled, "Stop."

The enemy heard at once and stopped, and Lauterbach was sent over with the necessary party.

An Englishman again, the Lovat, 6012 tons, equipped as a trooper and chartered by the Indian Government. Her destination was Bombay.

The crew of the Lovat, their ship being destined for destruction, were, as is customary, given a period in which to pack up their possessions and make ready to leave the ship. They were all brought aboard the Markomannia.

The Lovat was to be destroyed like the Indus, but with all her cargo, by boring bulkheads, opening the seacocks and a few shells. She was, however, as obstinate as the Indus, and did not want to sink, although she had to. As darkness fell before she did so, we left the spot and abandoned her to her inevitable fate.

Much more interesting for us was the news from the Markomannia, where the interned Captains had meanwhile been livened up by whisky and soda and had disclosed in their chatter some very important news.

This was accordingly signaled across to us. The purport was that behind them were three more ships equipped as troopers which had already left Calcutta. We therefore steamed slowly along the steamer line on a course for Calcutta, keeping our eyes open.

Toward 10 o'clock in the evening a light was reported ahead. Number one of the expected ships! She was coming directly toward the Emden, so that we hardly needed to increase speed. The usual signal to stop was given.

A prize crew was sent aboard under Lauterbach, who had orders to keep by the Emden.

This time the signal ran: "English ship Kabinga, 4657 tons, with cargo of piece goods. From Calcutta to Bombay, Port Said, Mediterranean and New York." She had a speed of 10 knots. Her cargo was valuable, but of little use to us, as the majority was American property.

According to international law, we could have sunk her, but we would have been bound to pay for the neutral cargo. This did not please Kapitan von Muller, and he decided to use this ship as a depository for the crews of the ships we had sunk and leave her in the next harbor.

In addition to this, the English Captain had his wife and children with him on board.

The matters of command and setting up guards in the Kabinga were therefore settled and the Emden, followed by her train, proceeded on her way.

All the officers of the Emden who were not on duty turned in. We did not sleep long, for only about three hours later the order was given: "Clear ship for action."

SEIZING the necessary clothing, we rushed to our action stations. In the same way as the Kabinga the new steamer was stopped. Oberleutnant Levetzow and Leutnant Zimmermann went on board the ship with the search and prize party.

Soon afterward came the message: "English coaling steamer Killin, with 6000 tons of Indian coal, from Calcutta to Bombay, speed eight to nine knots."

As the work of careful search and sinking had to be undertaken by daylight, our proud squadron then proceeded on the previous course.

On the morning of September 13 fine work began for our cutters' crews who had to transfer the English ships' companies to the Kabinga, which was now to act as a dump.

Meanwhile the sinking party had completed their unpleasant work on the Killin, and at about 10 in the morning she was given a few German shells and plunged into the depths.

We then continued our cruise in the direction of Calcutta with growing curiosity as to what our next surprise would be.

The afternoon was at first peaceful. Then a smoke cloud was again in sight.

The Emden approached the new victim at full speed. She was a good-sized ship with a big funnel, and presently we could make out that she was flying the English red ensign.

When the Englishman had stopped, Lauterbach and his party went across and we received the message: "English steamship Diplomat, 7615 tons, with 10,000 tons of tea from Calcutta to England."

Our Captain at once decided that the ship had to be sunk on the spot. Her crew was taken off and she was sent to the bottom.

Our new objective was the Madras-Calcutta steamer line, on which we hoped for rich booty.

On September 14 the Kabinga was to be abandoned with all the foreigners in her. The work was again carried out by the cutters.

Soon afterwards another ship with the British flag was sighted, which the Emden at once "adopted." She was ordered to join our convoy, and did so.

The ship was the Trabbock, 4028 tons, a collier, without a cargo, on her way from the Indian harbor of Negapatang to Calcutta. The English ship's company was quickly brought on board the Kabinga, which was at once detached. The "dump" took leave politely with three cheers for the Emden, and vanished into the darkness.

This unexpected ovation gave great pleasure in the Emden—a recognition of the considerate treatment we had willingly conceded as far as the circumstances would allow.

The Trabbock was given its death blow, and the Emden proceeded on her previous course.

In half an hour a light was reported on the starboard beam, and the Emden was after it at full speed. The stranger must have been warned, however, for she got up steam and went full speed to try to escape the Emden.

The Emden was without question the faster ship and soon was within signaling distance of the quarry, to whom she gave the order to stop by siren.

THE stranger made further efforts to escape. A few rounds of blank backed up the order to stop, but the quarry left this summons also unheeded. The Emden's patience was exhausted and a shot was placed across her bows. At that she stopped. The Emden sent the question: "What ship?"

The answer came obediently: "Clan Matheson."

An English ship. Lauterbach and Schall looked after the further investigations—4775 tons, piece-goods cargo.

The utmost speed was demanded for the dispatch of this Englishman. The Markomannia took on board the English ship's company.

Within 45 minutes everything had been done, and the English ship was sunk.

The Emden took an easterly course. Our objective was Preparis North Channel.

September 16 brought brilliant weather and a sea like a mirror, and our Captain decided to use the day for coaling at sea.

This time the Pontoporos was to be made use of and her coal transferred to the Emden. We therefore went alongside her and made fast.

The Greek had been assured that he and his ship would be set free as soon as the Markomannia also should be able to take over her full complement of coal from the Pontoporos. In this case he was to receive an adequate sum of money.

When this had been put in order the Emden left. The Pontoporos remained behind, and vanished on the horizon as we steamed away.

We again made for Preparis North Channel.

At about noon on September 17 the Emden reached the point of intersection of the two steamer routes, Madras to Rangoon and Calcutta to Singapore, and cruised for some hours there without result.

At nightfall we proceeded, passed the straits in the night and altered course for the Bay of Rangoon, the City of Rangoon being the capital of Lower Burma and possessing about 180,000 inhabitants.

WE FIRST sighted a smoke cloud towards 4 o'clock, to southwards, in the direction of the Molucca Straits.

There was no sense in steaming towards the ship, and the order was given to cut off her way to Rangoon.

We came up with her at nightfall. It was a neutral, the Norwegian ship Dovre, 3000 tons, whose Captain spoke German.

Though meeting with a neutral was annoying, it enabled us to get rid of the English crew of the Clan Matheson by passing them over to the Norwegian.

Lauterbach conversed with the Norwegian Captain, who told him he had been examined last night by the searchlight of a warship and had met an auxiliary cruiser behind Penang. He professed to come from Penang and told us that the French armored cruisers Montcalm and Duplex were at that time stationed there.

When Lauterbach and the prize crew were back in the ship the Emden took a westerly course.

Without meaning to, the various wireless stations gave us useful news. One intercepted message was pathetically harmless and came about as follows: A ship, Q. M. D., had probably been in communication with some land station. Another land station had intercepted the message and wished to know who Q. M. D. might be. A third station broke in with the answer: "Q. M. D. is the armored cruiser Hampshire!"

Towards evening of September 19 we passed through Preparis South Channel, between the Andaman Islands, and full war watches were set.

A view of the raider's after-deck.

In the night the Hampshire's wireless was so loud that our wireless staff estimated she could not be more than 10 sea miles distant.

After midnight we were through the southern straits and altered our course for Madras.

Madras is the capital of the Presidency of Madras, the most important town on the east coast of India, and the third biggest port of India, with 517,000 inhabitants. The town is the seat of the Government, and lies along the flat beach for about 15 miles, with a breadth of six miles.

On the beach in the middle of the town lies the old Fort of St. George. The harbor itself is surrounded by a large mole and in the south end of the harbor are the oil and petroleum tanks of the Burma Oil Company.

THE principal object of our visit was to unsettle the Indian inhabitants. In addition, we wished to destroy the oil tanks and if possible the shipping in the harbor.

We had to reckon that our fire would be answered by the St. George battery. From our nautical handbooks we found that this battery consisted of 5.9-inch guns. Although they would be of old construction—we assumed this at least, for the fort dated from the eighties—5.9-inch shells were not to be underestimated against our lightly-armored cruiser.

September 22, 1914, brought us a really beautiful day.

After lunch an officers' council took place, held by the first officer. Every possibility must be reckoned with. The men were given an opportunity of bathing in fresh water, and were ordered to put on clean clothes. These measures were purely hygienic, designed to insure that the men should be clean, so that in case of a wound there should be no complications.

Towards evening the Markomannia was detached at an appointed spot. She signaled us: "Wish you the best of success."

And now we were alone once more.

At nightfall our fourth funnel was set. The engines were all clear for full speed, all boilers had steam up, so that full speed could be used at will.

Toward 8 o'clock the Madras light came in sight. We were astounded that this was still burning, proving the unwatchfulness of the English authorities. They cannot have expected, and must have taken it to be impossible, that a fortified harbor should be attacked by "impudent Germans."

Well! So much the better for us, for surprise was in this case our best ally.

On approaching the town we had another surprise. The harbor lights were all burning, and the whole town was a sea of light.

Towards 9 o'clock we came so close that the order to clear ship for action was given. The searchlights, guns, etc., were manned at once.

We rushed toward the har at a speed of 17 knots, steerin thanks to their lights, so that the order, "Open fire," the o tanks and the battery would in line.

At 9:45 we were still abou 3000 yards from the land. Th Emden then turned to port an stopped. Immediately afterwar followed the orders: "Switch o foremost searchlight. Open fir A stirring moment!

A few seconds later the firs salvo blazed out, and salvo afte salvo followed.

THE first shots went too h but the next found their lets and tongues of flam went up from the oil tanks. On shell struck a steamer lying at th mole. I was very anxious abo the return fire from the Engl battery, but, to our astonishme not a shot was fired.

A few shells fell, howev about 100 yards too far from though we could not tell exact the direction of fire. In my opi ion there must have been a gun the mole, as this was roughly t direction from which the she came.

This was our baptism of fi Our Emden was preserved fro being hit.

When 125 rounds had be fired the Captain ordered "Cea fire!"

The results of this night's shoot ing were that all the oil tanks ha been set alight, a few shells ha done some damage in the tow and one ship had been slight damaged. A few inhabitants wer killed unintentionally, as the at tack was only directed at esse tial objects.

The moral effect of our ente prise was not at all bad. We lea later from the papers that a lar number of the inhabitants left t town next day by rail.

After the cease-fire the sear lights were extinguished, and electric lights were directed port. We were thus fully visib as we steamed on a fictitio course northwards. It was parti ularly necessary to mislead t enemy at this point. If we had once taken our proper course it certain that we should short have had enemy warships on o tracks.

We steamed northward for short time, then extinguished lights and proceeded southwa

The night passed without least disturbance. The fire w kindled burnt, like a great to the whole night through on t horizon. Even next morning, a distance of about 60 sea miles could see the huge smoke clo from the burning oil.

On September 23, in the ea morning, we again met the Ma omannia.

OUR next objective was t Island of Ceylon. We tended to steam past it a suitable distance and board s ships we met.

The Emden was in great ne of good coal, for the stock on t Markomannia was diminished, a the use of the pitiable stuff fr the Pontoporos caused us all so anxiety.

On September 24 we found o selves on our beat. In the e ning very active wireless w heard, but in cipher, so that could only tell that two warsh were communicating with e other not very far from us.

In the hope that ships would found more plentiful along

Harvard's Unpublished Letters of Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton

CAMBRIDGE, Massachusetts.

HARVARD COLLEGE LIBRARY has come by a great windfall. It has been presented, by certain alumni, with nearly 200 original letters written by that strange genius, Lord Nelson, by his mistress, Lady Hamilton, by Sir William Hamilton and other intimates of Nelson.

These letters, together with the log book of Nelson's flagship, the Victory, during the years when he was blockading Toulon, letters to his flag captains and official orders, in his own hand, formed the Joseph Husband collection. Mr. Husband, Harvard '08, a collector of New York, had for some time wished to see these documents placed in Harvard's library. It was the generosity of this gentleman and the generosity of a few other Harvard graduates that made the gift possible.

Many of these letters are unpublished and unknown. They are important not only as the missives of a great man, but they contain material of high historical value, material hitherto untouched.

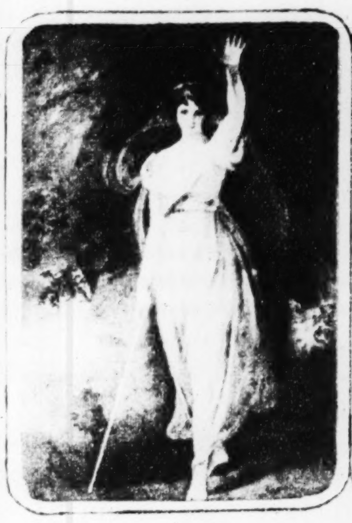
Horatio Nelson's career was as odd as it was brilliant. Born in 1758, he entered the British navy at the age of 12. At 19 he was made a lieutenant. Two years later he became a post captain. In 1787—he was 29 years old—he married the widow of Dr. Josiah Nesbit. He soon returned to England and was placed on the retired list.

Then came five years of obscurity. But in 1792 came the war with France. Nelson was called back to the service, and the real beginning of one of the most brilliant naval careers in history was at hand.

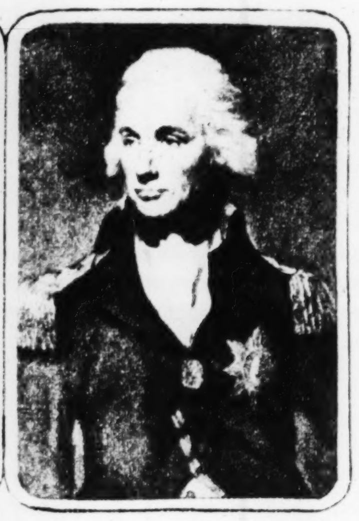
He was placed in command of the Agamemnon, of 64 guns, and rendered valuable service in the Mediterranean. He participated in the siege of Calvi, where he had the misfortune to lose an eye. It was in 1793, while on a diplomatic mission to Naples, that he met Lady Emma Hamilton, who was destined to play so important a role in his life. Then came more valuable sea service, and at the famous battle of Cape Saint Vincent, in 1797, he maneuvered his ship so gallantly he was made a rear admiral. His next service was at the attack of Santa Cruz, when he lost his right arm. A year later came his defeat of Napoleon's fleet off Egypt, an achievement which brought him the title of Baron Nelson of the Nile.

HERE began that period of his career when he came under the influence of Lady Hamilton, with whom, after the death of her husband, he lived openly, and by whom he had a child. With Lady Hamilton's entrance came Nelson's separation from his devoted wife.

Nelson was promoted to the rank of vice admiral in 1801. That same year he attacked the Danish fleet off Copenhagen, completely annihilating it. More important duty on the seas followed and in 1805 came the Battle of Trafalgar, when the French and Spanish fleets were beaten by Nelson's command, a great victory, but one that cost him his life. He was mortally wounded early in the day; he died that afternoon.



Lady Hamilton as Circe, from the painting by Romney.



Lord Nelson.

There was much unpleasant notoriety concerning Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton, and on this account the great sailor, in a letter to her, written on the last day of February, 1801, declares that he burns her letters. He says:

"I burn all your dear letters, because it is right for your sake, and I wish you would burn all mine—they can do no good, and will do us both harm, if any seizure of them, or the dropping even of one of them, would fill the mouths of the world sooner than we intend."

In his own letter of the next day, March 1, he speaks quite frankly of his desires with regard to both Lady Hamilton and their child, Horatia. "Now, my dear Wife, for such you are in my eyes and in the face of heaven, I can give full scope to my feelings, for I dare say Oliver will faithfully deliver this letter. You know, my dearest Emma, that there is nothing in this world that I would not do for us to live together, and to have our dear child with us . . . I love, never did love anyone else. I never had a dear pledge of love till you gave me one, and you, thank my God, never gave one to anybody else. I think before March is out you will either see us back, or so victorious that we shall insure a glorious issue to our toils. Think what my Emma will feel at seeing return safe, perhaps with a little more fame, her own dear loving Nelson." On the next day he added the postcript,

"Kiss and bless our dear Horatia, —think of that."

"St. George March 2nd 1801

"My Dearest friend

"This moment received your letter from Warbridge. My heart bleeds for you but I shall soon very soon return. Damn all those that would make you false, but I know you will be true and faithful. Send for Mrs. Nelson what signify's a few hundred pounds to make your dear mind at ease. Warbridge will forward your letter if you are at a loss to know where I am. I shall hate Mrs. Denis if she does not take care. My mind is fixed that if ever the damned fellow is admitted into your company then your Nelson is rejected, and I would sooner believe the world to be at an end this week. Just sailing therefore do not say much, fearing what I would say, but this I will say to the last moment of my existence that I am all all your Nelson & Bronte.

"Sir Wm wrote me in his letter that if he could get over that Sunday the . . . should never come into his house, remind him of that.

"Oliver went at 9 o'clock this morning. Love to my God child."

THIS next letter Harvard considers important because it carries the handwriting of both Nelson and Lady Hamilton on one sheet. It is signed "Nelson & Bronte," and reminds one that Nelson had an estate in Italy, given him by the King of the Two Sicilies together with the title of Count Bronte.

"Merton, Oct. 13, 1802

"My Dear Foley

"Although I have not wrote to you since your marriage the customary letter of congratulation yet I can assure you that no one person in this world more sincerely wishes you every felicity which that state can bestow, nor My Dear Foley, have greater obligations than I have to you and none, I am bold to say, more readily acknowledges this. Sir William & Lady Hamilton also desire me to say every kind word for them. We can none of us ever forget the very great kindness shown us by both your Brothers & Sisters In Law. Geo. Martin has been one day with us. He is very well. Lord Keith we have not seen. Martin says he is very low owing to him and Hallowell saying that they paid so much more for Shoes in Lord Keith's time than they did in mine; in short his secretary is implicated. Lord Keith has, I am told, demanded an enquiry; so these great folks go on.—We have seen very few Naval people since our return; London is thinned of them.

"I had a letter yesterday from our friend Stewart. He is at Sandgate with his rifle corps. I see no signs of war although many are fearful of it, but, I believe, without the smallest reason, and I think you will have plenty of time to finish your house and to live many years in it before you will be called forth—and that you may is the Sincere Wish of, My Dear Foley,

"Your attached & affectionate Friend,

"Nelson & Bronte

"Capt. Foley"

And then Lady Hamilton's note:

"My dear Captain Foley

"How sorry we were not to see you in Wales. Sir Wm begs his kind compliments & if you see your charming sisters-in-law pray remember me to them. We are all in love with them and your brothers & never shall forget their goodness and hospitality. We often speak about you and Lord Nelson, who loves you dearly, never ceases when you are our theme. God bless you. May you have every happiness & blessing this world can afford. Ever your obliged & sincere

"Emma Hamilton."

It will be noted that these particular letters were written before the death of Lady Hamilton's husband, Sir William.

no chance to use his pistols it seemed. Then another side glance and I saw old Barnstrom shooting George from his coat pocket while fighting with his left hand. I turned my left-hand gun on him and let fly. At the pop of my pistol the blood seemed to pop all over George from the corner of the old scoundrel's head. He dropped and George staggered out of the door, leaving one of his pistols upon the floorAs old Barnstrom dropped I walked forward shooting at whatever part of a villain was exposed. There were three still able to fight."

One by one, Little Jim knocked off these three, we are told, and then—

"The fellow made for the side room, his face streaming blood. He was the last man in the store except old Barnstrom, whom I thought was dead. I quickly broke open my pistols and reloaded, then cautiously advanced into the side room, or liquor department. Jim Trace was lying on the floor deathly pale. I asked him where the others were. He weakly muttered that they had gone to the woods and that they were nearly every one of them shot."

Although his clothes were shot full of perforations, we learn, this human fighting machine emerged from the smoke of battle with a whole skin. Not so the Kitchens. George was fatally wounded in the encounter and old Rufe later was killed. Little Jim himself had to flee, but once on his own ground, he held his pursuers in contempt.

It was that way right up to the end. Luck and the gods were always on the side of Little Jim. Consider his adventure with the moonshiners wherein he had his "narrowest" escape. He had turned his talents to the peaceful pursuit of varnishing when he ran afoul of a vicious gang in the white mule district. They thought he was a "detecter" and talked to him like this:

"Come out yer in the bushes where we can cover up the blood."

The execution, it seems, was interrupted by the timely arrival of the gang leader, who wanted to question the prisoner. He was locked up and, of course, escaped. He got hold of some revenue officers and they killed part of the gang and rounded up the others, including the local parson, who turned out to be not only a moonshiner but a philanderer.

When he got to be marshal of Allenscreek he was so reckless with life and limb that the Negroes said in an awed voice, "I'll bet dat police gits killed fo' three months." But he didn't. He cleaned up the place so effectively that he was commended all over Tennessee. But Tennessee finally became too tame to be interesting and Mr. Wilson moved with his family to Texas. Life there, while fairly peaceful for the last 18 years, has had its moments.

"The very last fight I had," he relates, "was months ago and I knocked that guy all over town. The citizens made up my fine and paid it. And I shook two hundred hands for the service rendered."

secret within the Captain's heart.

Four detectives—the bright stars of the department—quietly walk out of the Captain's office and out the door. They merely nod to a copper or two making out his report, for their thoughts are far away from such mundane procedure and in their eyes lurks a noble light, fitting to men about to seek their department's Holy Grail.

The brave officers get into their and drive to the poolroom whose floor bears the wounds of the tough hombre's gun. They ask the name of this gun-shooter and discover where he lives. They drive close to his home. They take up their sawed-off shotguns; they close in upon his house. And Mr. Paul McNess, caught quite unawares, becomes their captive. In his home they find four new decks of cards. The Jack of Diamonds is missing from each pack. Soon Paul McNess is at headquarters; Chief Reed and Captain Clark are asking him some exceedingly personal questions.

Then they order him to write his name on a slip of paper. He does so. He is still all bravado. The Chief and his Captain compare the McNess signature with the handwriting on those envelopes, those once bitter envelopes that arrived at their doors not so long ago with Jacks of Diamonds as their contents. To the high pleasure of these gendarmes they find the handwriting virtually identical.

They point out the likeness of the scripts to Mr. McNess. And Mr. McNess, still the proud adventurer, admits he is the Jack and admits it with gusto, not hesitating to give a brief autobiography of his criminal endeavors.

They put him in the jail house. The days pass by. Continued detention has removed the proud look from our swashbuckler's face, and in its stead comes grave concern. Well there might, for under the Colorado statutes he who has committed "aggravated robbery," that is, robbery with a fire-arm, is eligible, as a maximum, to spend the rest of his life at the State prison.

So it was through vanity, that pernicious boomerang, that the Jack of Diamonds played one hand too many.

The Cruise of the Emden

We drew closer to the steamship route Colombo-Penang-Singapore, the most important in the whole of the Indian Ocean, linking England with her East Asiatic possessions.

Soon after lunch we sighted a smoke cloud right ahead. With increasing speed we approached the ship.

On nearing her we found that she was flying the English commercial ensign. The Emden went quite close to her, and then ordered her to stop. The prize crew carried on as usual and announced: "English ship King Lud, 3650 tons, without cargo, from Suez to Calcutta."

As the ship was to be sunk at once, the torpedo officer and the blasting party boarded her. The English ship's company were sent to the Markomannia.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon the King Lud was so disabled that she could be left to the mercy of the waters, and the Emden went on her way.

Towards eight in the evening we were about 30 miles south of Colombo. The English here apparently did not wish to repeat the mistake of Madras. Searchlights were continuously playing over the horizon, and it was to be assumed with certainty that there would be ships patrolling outside the harbor.

(Copyright for the Post-Dispatch.)

Next Sunday's installment of the cruise of the Emden will include the story of the remote island that had not heard of the war.

Germs on hands endanger health, say nurses

With the season of winter sickness here, nurses are everywhere warning against the danger of germ-laden hands. Many diseases, they agree, are implanted in our system by germs carried from hand to mouth. It is for this reason that nurses advise washing hands often, always before meals, using Lifebuoy, the toilet soap with an antiseptic lather.

"Tommy Nickels, you're peeking"
"No, I'm not either, Mother"

Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Nickels and their sons.

Illness? None for years in the Nickels family

"... and Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather was a big help," says Mrs. Frank V. Nickels

"YES, it does seem marvelous that we haven't had a sick day in our home in so many years," exclaimed Mrs. Nickels when we visited her.

"But you see," she added, "we've used Lifebuoy all that time—and Lifebuoy always is a big help in keeping away illness.

"Both my husband and I are loyal Lifebuoy fans. I find it excellent as a complexion soap and my husband says that a Lifebuoy shower is just like a tonic.

"As for the children, I've naturally made Lifebuoy the rule for them, too. Frank is now five and Tom three—and I've never seen two boys pack more fun and mischief into one day than they. But no matter where they play, or how dirty they get themselves, I always feel they're safe after they've had a sudsy washup in Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather."
—Mrs. Frank V. Nickels, 40 W. Albermarle Road, Lansdowne, Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Nickel's experience is typical of the way countless mothers all over the country use Lifebuoy to help them keep sickness out of their homes.

Are you denying your family so vital a means of health protection? Hands can't escape germs. Just think of the many things you and your children must touch daily on which other hands may have left germs—such as money, doorknobs, telephones. The Life Extension Institute lists 27 germ diseases that hands may spread. Why take chances, when Lifebuoy's mild antiseptic lather removes germs? Keeps the skin healthier, too—prevents chapping.

Your family has to wash with some toilet soap anyway, so why not use Lifebuoy which gives added health protection—at no extra cost? You'll quickly learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant extra-clean scent which tells you it purifies. It vanishes as you rinse. Adopt Lifebuoy as your regular toilet soap today.

A TYPICAL ST. LOUIS GIRL

Drawn by William Van Dresser

TO draw a picture of one girl and designate the face as typical of a city so large as St. Louis is to provoke inevitably a great amount of argument. It is making one face cover a vast deal of territory. Nobody, perhaps, realizes that better than the artist himself. In a city with a population ranging around the million mark, there are to be found numberless types of young women with one type represented about as numerously as another. In the course of a day, virtually all types may be seen on the streets and in the shopping centers. There are light and dark complexioned, the tall and the short, the slender and stocky, round-faced and oval-faced, long-haired and bobbed, rouged and unrouged. From such an array, a dozen or two dozen, all different, might be selected, each with a more or less valid claim of being typical so far as external characteristics are concerned. How, then, is the artist to narrow the field down to one and say that this or that is typical of the city as a whole?

Obviously, he must look beneath such external characteristics as features, complexion and figure. He must look for those more intangible qualities of spirit, character, outlook and mental attitude—the qualities which contribute more to the individuality of a person or group than mere facial features. He must find out the likes and dislikes, the amusements and cultural interests of a large number before he can set down one characteristic or another as representative. Having found that spirit, he must paint or draw it into his picture. That is what the artist, William Van Dresser, has set out to do in his crayon study reproduced above.

The typical St. Louis girl, Mr. Van Dresser has found, is decidedly of the artistic type. Taking the younger female population as a whole, he declares, he has noticed this to be so conspicuously true as to distinguish the Middle West from both the East and the Far West.

Having observed the St. Louis girl in her daily life, having noted her habits and diversions and having taken account of her interests and her lack of them, he reaches the following agreeable analysis:

The typical St. Louis girl is cultured; she is interested in the better things of art, literature and music; she is capable of discrimination; she is resolute in her quest for these better things and is discontented with that sort of jazzy amusement which is dished up in huge quantities and labeled "popular." The St. Louis girl is wholesome and full of interesting projects which she is able to carry out in a professional manner but without professional help, contrary to the fashion among society people in many other sections. She is independent of spirit, but at the same time conservative in dress and behavior. She avoids the extremes common both to the East and the West.

"All things considered," says the artist, "the cultural and artistic development of the Middle West is assuredly in capable hands in the type of young woman I have met here, both in society and in the various fields of business and artistic endeavor.

"It is idle to assume that the girl of culture and artistic bent is to be found only in what we call society. She is found there, of course, but she is also found just as frequently in the world of business. No social group or class has a monopoly on culture in this day. As a matter of fact, the girl selected as the model for this drawing is not a society girl. She is employed in a line of endeavor which might readily appeal to one of artistic bent. She was selected for this drawing because she seemed to typify best in spirit the sort of girl I believe distinguishes St. Louis and the Middle West from other sections of the United States."

BUILDING A PERMANENT PRISON FOR THE UNRULY RIVER DES PERES

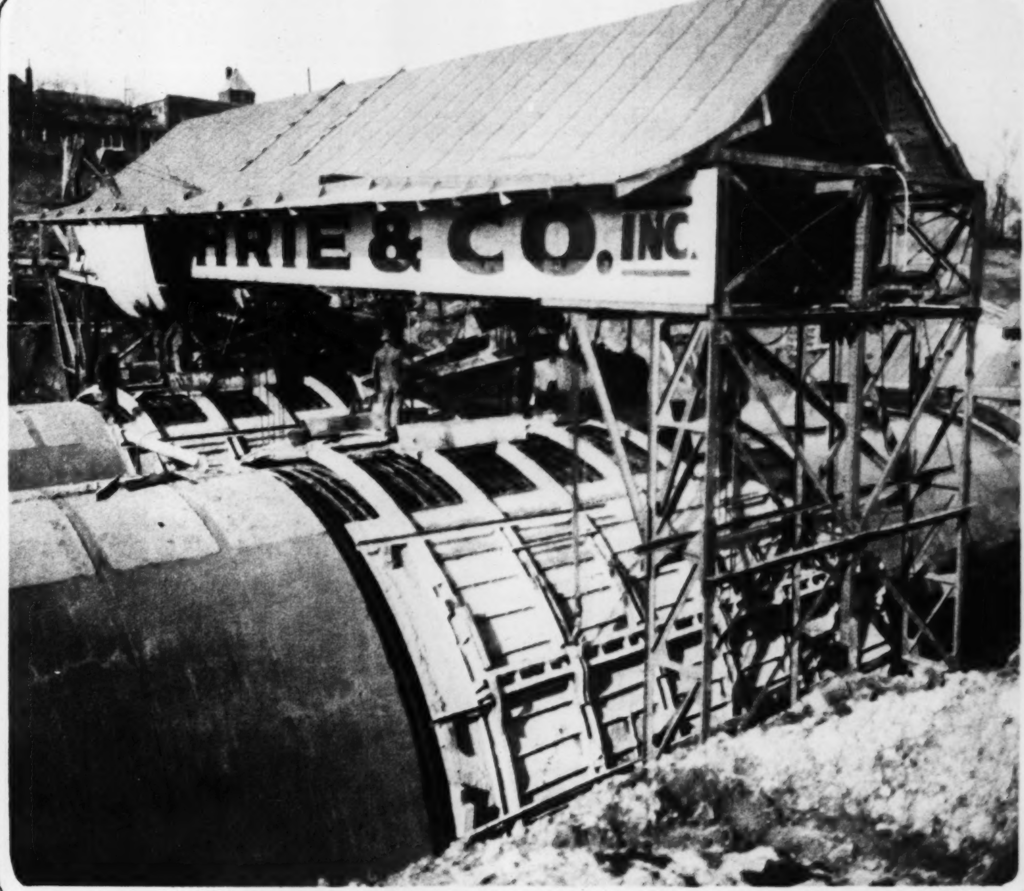
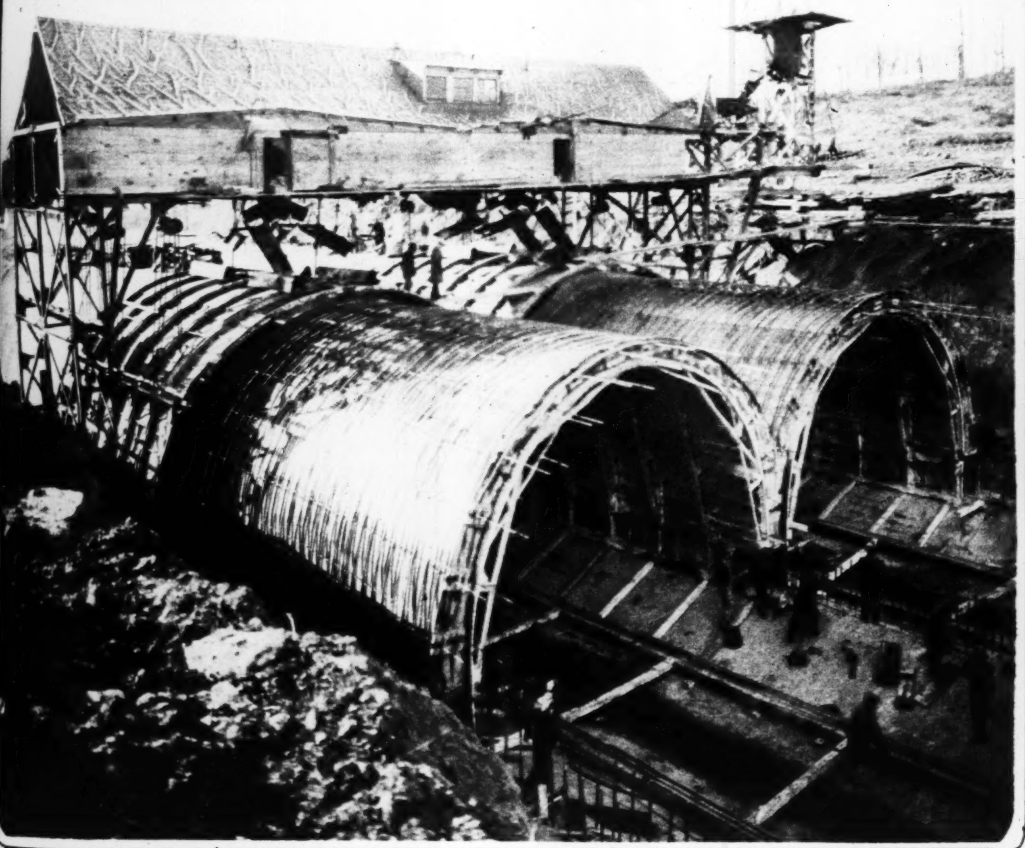
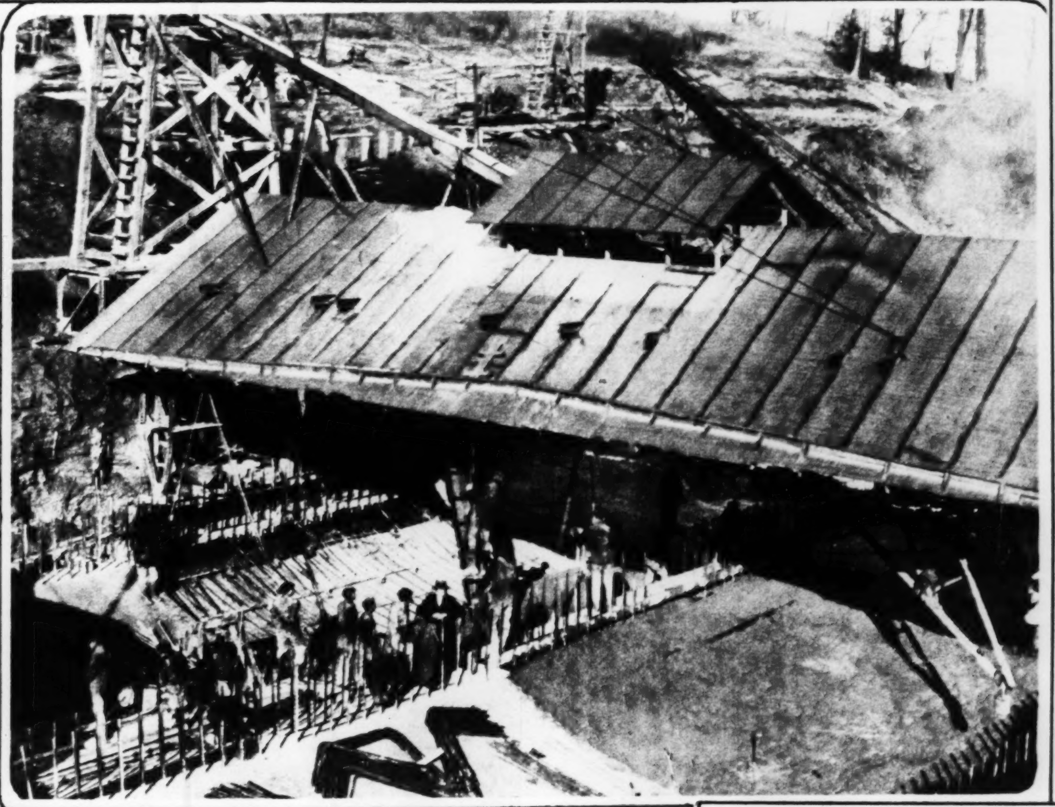
Three stages of the construction work shown in one photograph. At extreme right, a former for iron rods, which has just been pulled out of the metal lattice work just behind it. This former will next be covered with the reinforcing metal. At left, the mold in place for the pouring of concrete. This mold covers a section just like the one in the middle of the photograph. The total cost of imprisoning this troublesome stream, as it winds through St. Louis, is likely to exceed $11,000,000.



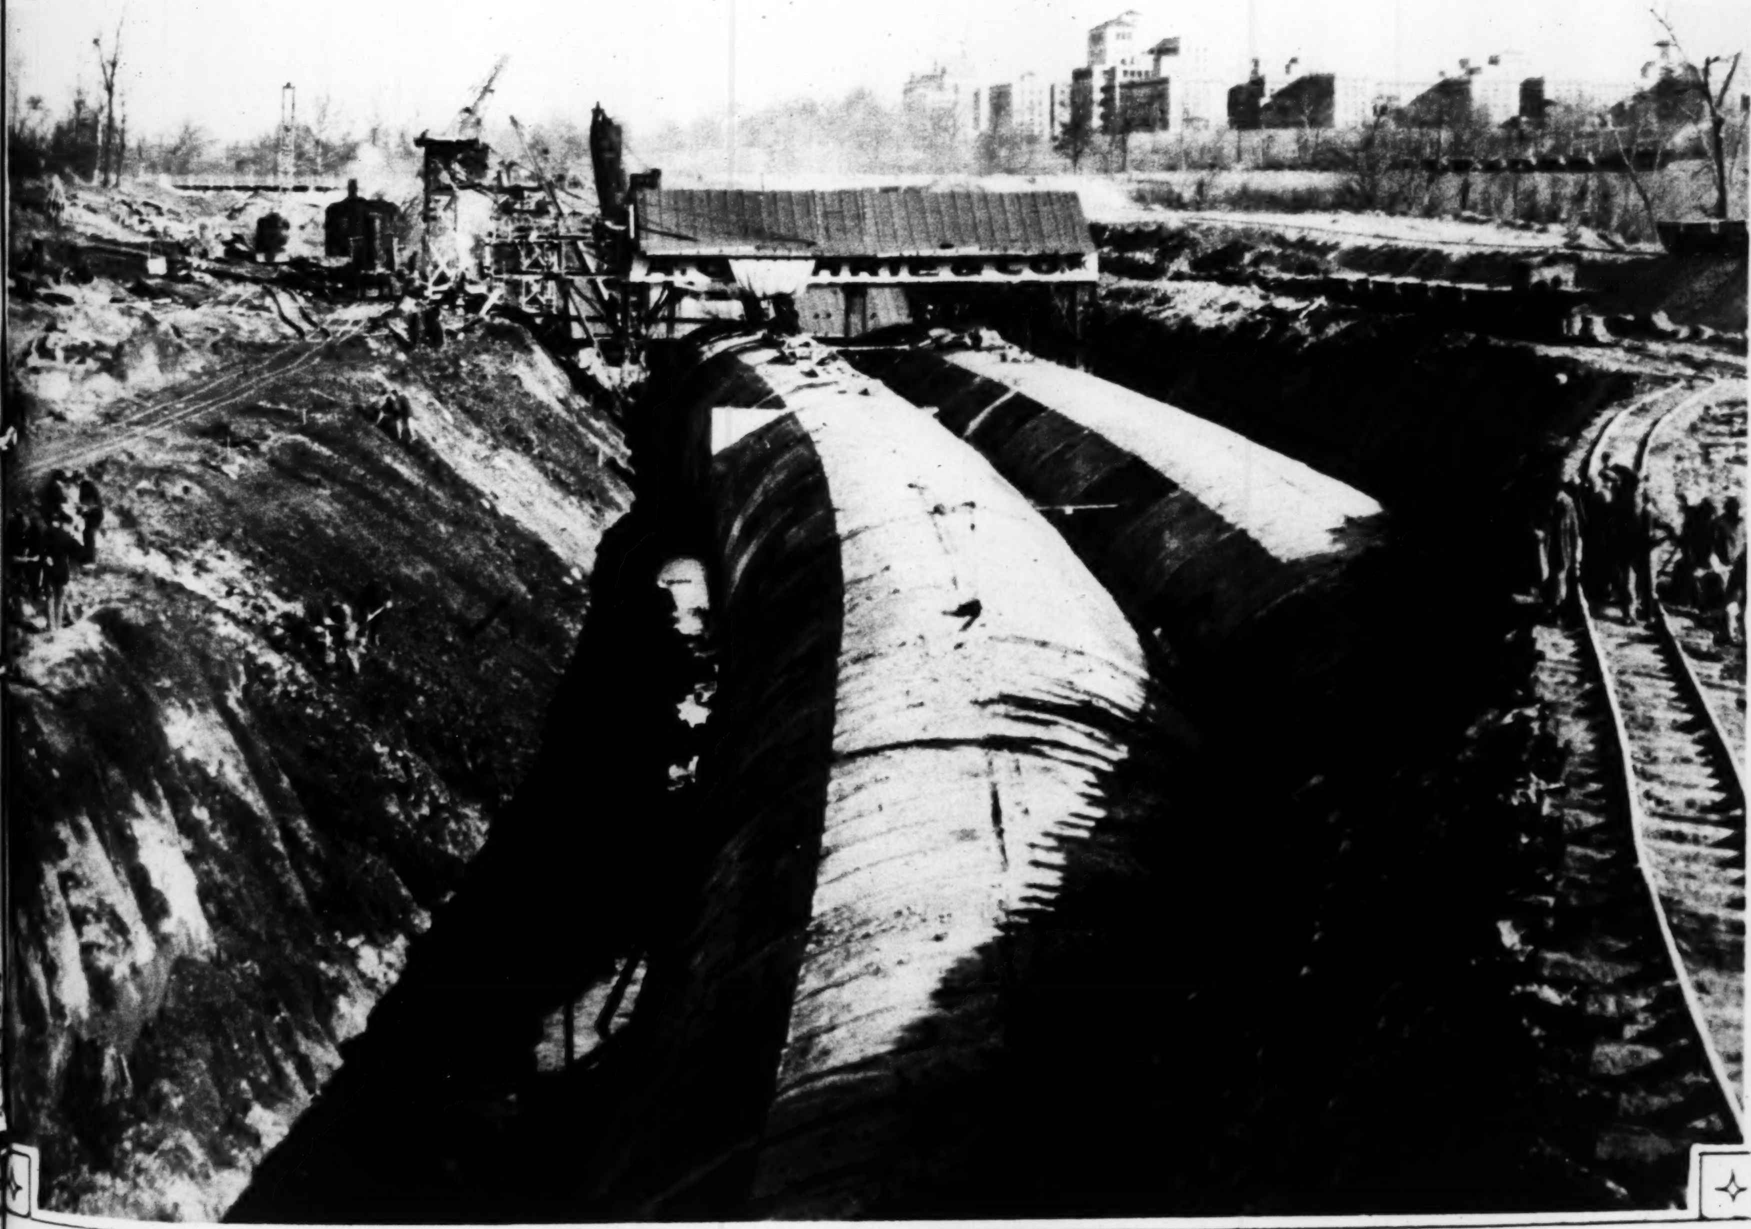
A closeup view of the form used in the pouring of concrete.



These huge pipes for the waters of the River des Peres are being built in pairs.



The lower side, or bottom of the sewer lines. On right the concrete has already been poured. On left, the reinforcing metal rods are being put in place ready for the concrete workmen.



A section all completed. As this photograph was taken the work of covering the pipes with dirt had already begun.

Phyllis Haver Says—

"I find Maybelline ideal for darkening and beautifying eyelashes and eyebrows. It is so easy to use, and gives such marvelous results. I would not think of being without Maybelline for everyday use, as well as for best effects in my screen work."

Sincerely yours,
Phyllis Haver

And so do millions of women in everyday life. For Maybelline multiplies the natural beauty of the eyes a thousandfold. A brush stroke or two applied to the lashes—and your eyes will have much the same charming depth, brilliance, and lovely expression as Miss Haver's eyes.

Try Maybelline. You'll be delighted with this popular eyelash beautifier. Perfectly harmless.

Mr. Earl McMahon of 91 Rensselaer Ave., Cohoes, N. Y., has a mighty cold job—cutting ice and selling it. He's found REM is best for the coughs he can't help getting:

"IT'S GOOD" said the Paper
"IT'S GOOD" said the Druggist
"YOU BET IT'S GOOD" says Mr. McMahon

"My business is harvesting ice out of the river and selling it wholesale and retail," says Mr. McMahon. "It's pretty cold sometimes when we are cutting ice. Sometimes I come home with a bad cough. I found by experience that REM is the best relief. I saw about REM in the papers and John Kennedy, the druggist on Ontario St. near Park Ave., told me it was good, so I tried it with good results. My wife has given it to our six children and she likes it as well as I do. They like to take it and it certainly does the work."

REM didn't just "happen",--there's 43 years of pharmaceutical experience back of it. We've done the experimenting for you.

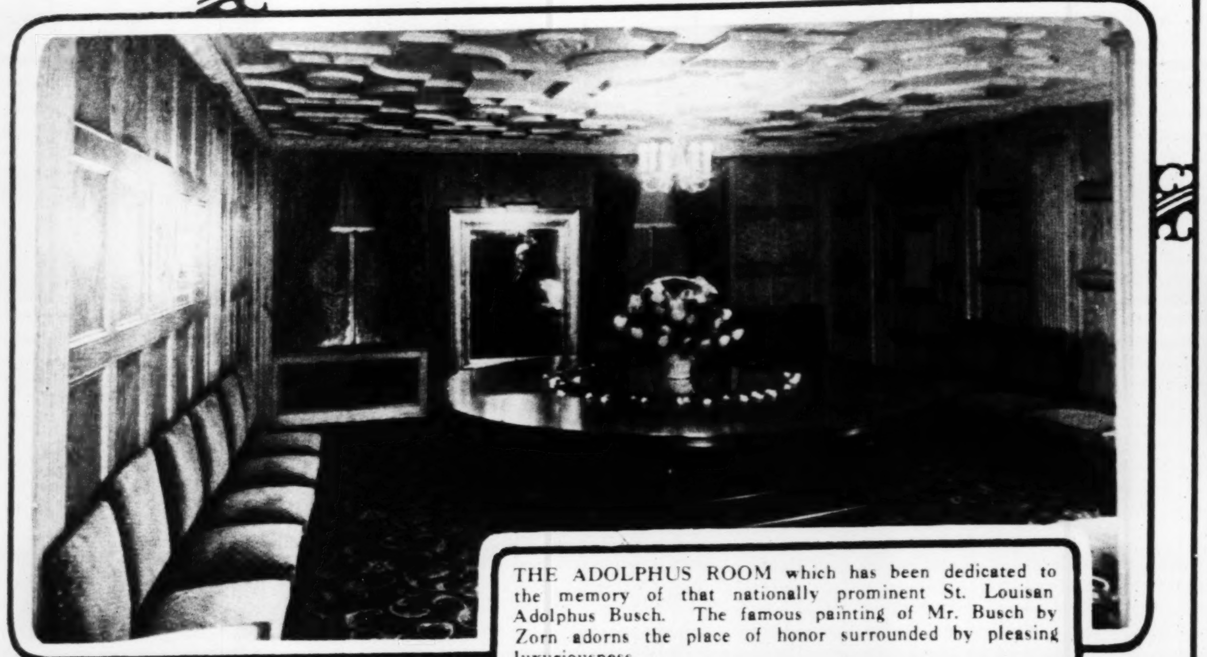
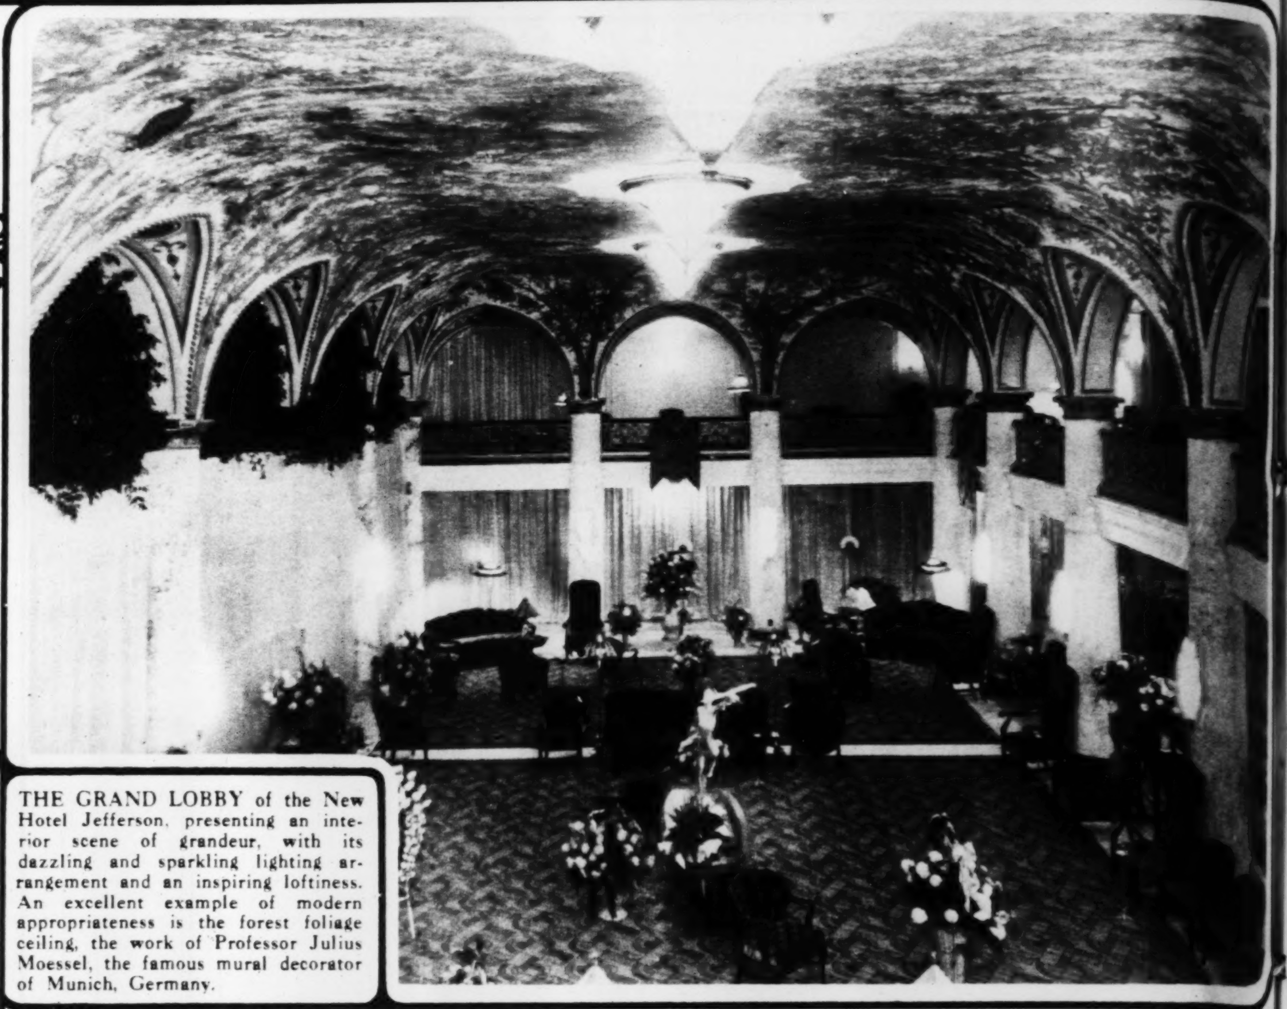
The JEFFERSON PICTORIAL

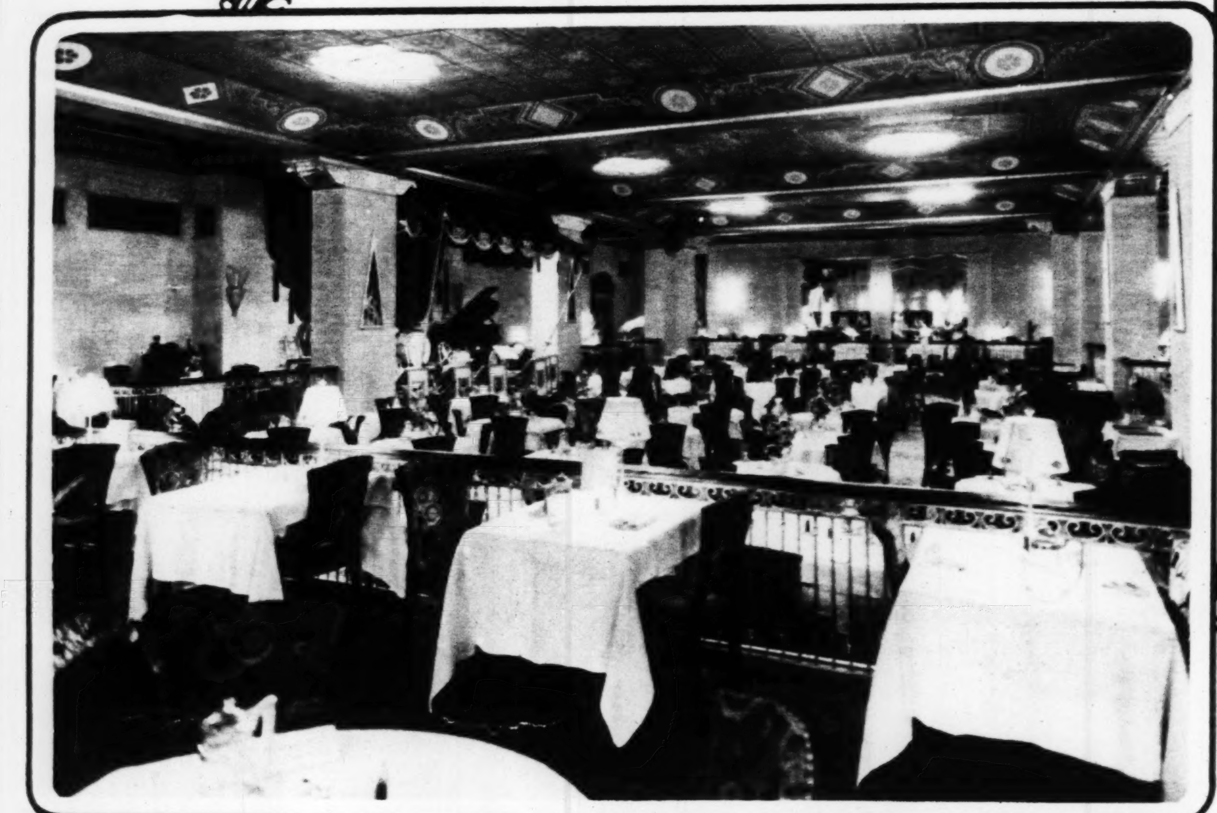
12TH BLVD
AT LOCUST
St. Louis



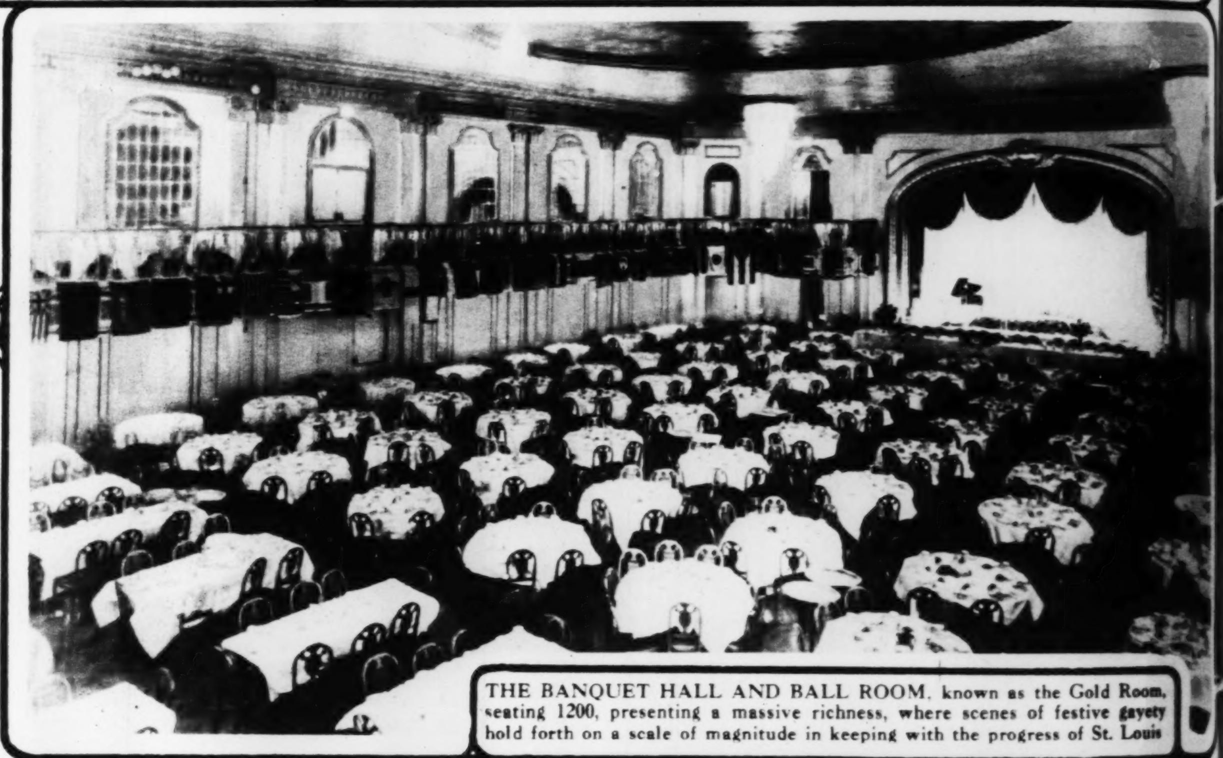
THE ADOLPHUS ROOM which has been dedicated to the memory of that nationally prominent St. Louisan Adolphus Busch. The famous painting of Mr. Busch by Zorn adorns the place of honor surrounded by pleasing luxuriousness.



THE GRAND LOBBY of the New Hotel Jefferson, presenting an interior scene of grandeur, with its dazzling and sparkling lighting arrangement and an inspiring loftiness. An excellent example of modern appropriateness is the forest foliage ceiling, the work of Professor Julius Moessel, the famous mural decorator of Munich, Germany.



THE SALLE ROYALE—The main dining room of the New Hotel Jefferson—in a setting moderne and cubist cut mirrors, arranged with charming terraced levels, affords the St. Louisan and his guest a cuisine incomparable at modest prices, with a service of faultless character.



THE BANQUET HALL AND BALL ROOM, known as the Gold Room, seating 1200, presenting a massive richness, where scenes of festive gayety hold forth on a scale of magnitude in keeping with the progress of St. Louis on the Mezzanine floor of modernistic Chinese artistry, cheerfulness and modern charm to arouse feminine enthusiasm.

LOUNGE

THE NEW HOTEL JEFFERSON

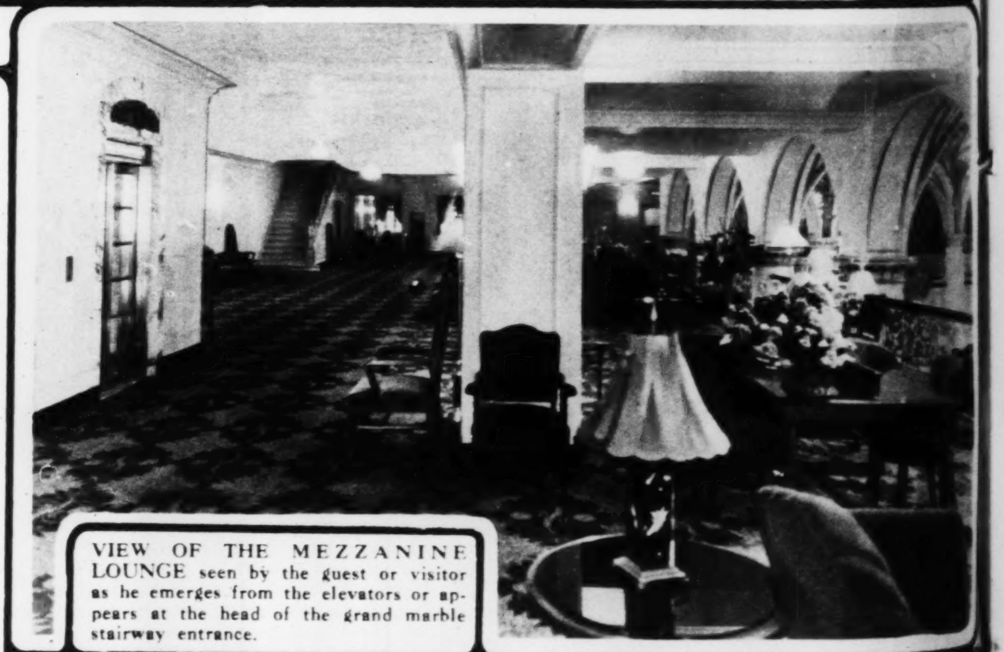
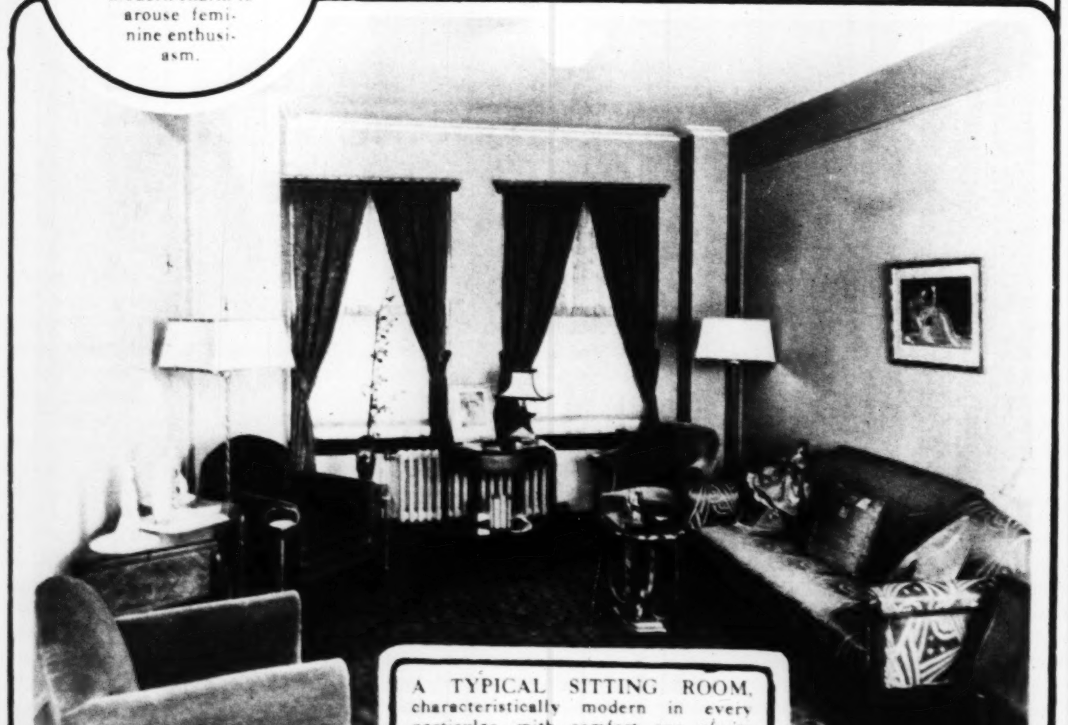
In the very heart of St. Louis' business, pleasure and civic centers, is the first and only hostelry in the West to catch and portray that new note of American modernism in its appointments, decorations and service, typical of progress, of the airplane and flashing searchlights. It is a revelation of today's visions symbolizing the achievements of tomorrow!

The new hotel has all the known facilities to demonstrate its warm hospitality and efficient service. Every comfort and convenience is available, clothed in beauty, beaming with courtesy!

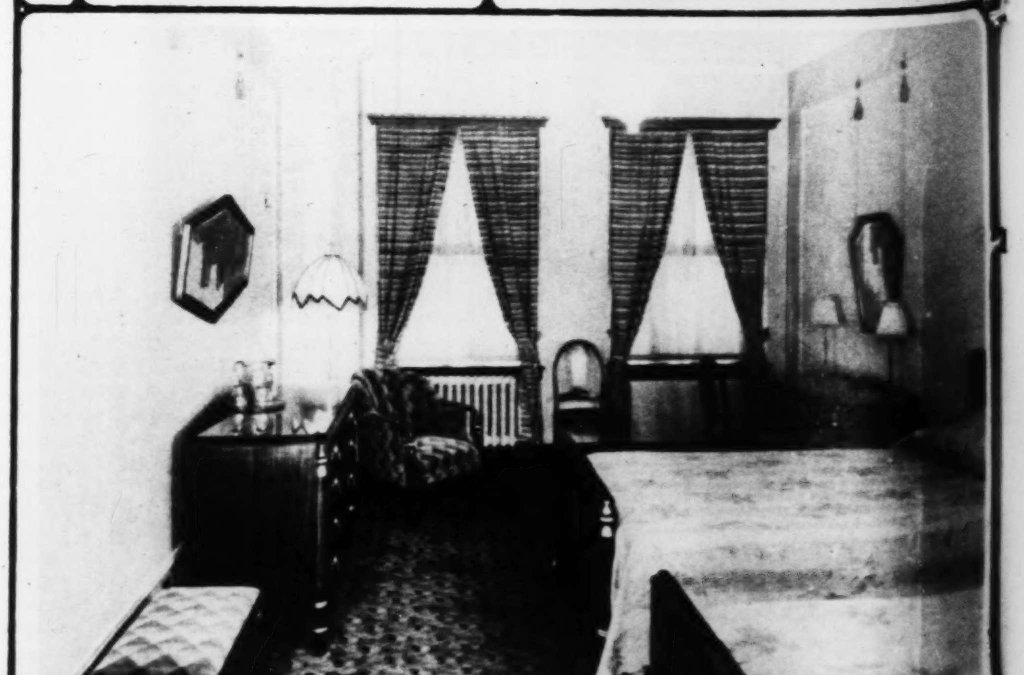
The beautiful furnishings of the new hotel were gathered from the country's modern shops, being selections made by SCRUGGS, VANDERVOORT AND BARNEY, Tenth and Olive Sts.; the attractive paneling and mill work of "Satin Brand" finish came from the HUTTIG SASH AND DOOR COMPANY, 1200 S. Vandeventer; the lighting equipment was designed and manufactured in St. Louis by the EDWIN F. GUTH COMPANY, 2615 Washington Av.; the electrical wiring throughout was installed by THE VIERHELLER ELECTRIC COMPANY, 1111 Pine St.; calking and Monarch metal weatherstripping by the W. J. MOSLANK COMPANY, 4800 Delmar Blvd.; the terrazzo in the lobby and staircases by the TERRAZZO COMPANY, Incorporated, 1232 Arcade Bldg.; the granite base for the building from the J. H. BROD GRANITE COMPANY, Arlington Av. and Terminal Tracks; JOHN W. ROWAN PLASTERING CO., Inc., Ambassador Bldg., executed the plastering contract and the painting was handled by BEAL & McNAMARA PAINTING COMPANY, 5078 Easton; BOAZ-KIEL were the general contractors and TEICH & SULLIVAN, Architects.



VIEW OF THE MEZZANINE LOUNGE seen by the guest or visitor as he emerges from the elevators or appears at the head of the grand marble stairway entrance.



A TYPICAL SITTING ROOM, characteristically modern in every particular, with comfort one of its prime motives and the artistic everywhere in evidence.



ONE OF THE BEDROOMS, typical of the quiet dignity of the modern trend in decorations and furniture, with an inviting and restful simplicity.

I CAN DRAW ANYTHING. HORSES, COWS, GOATS THERE'S AN ODD LOOKING BABY NEXTDOOR. HAVE YOU GOT A PENCIL AND PAPER HANDY GEORGE?
ONE MOMENT I'LL GET 'EM MURILLO.
HE'S LOOKING OVER HERE. HE KNOWS MURILLO IS UP TO SOMETHING.
THAT'S GREAT, MURILLO. BE SURE AND GET IN HIS BIG BEEZER.
I NEVER HAD A LESSON IN MY LIFE. JUST PICKED IT UP I WISH THAT BABY WOULD TURN HIS HEAD A LITTLE.......
I'LL ADMIT IT'S NOT UP TO MY USUAL STANDARD BUT AT THAT I GUESS IT'S FAIR EH?
OH, THE LIKENESS IS PERFECT.
YES, AND SO FUNNY.
I'LL CALL HIM OVER TO TAKE A LOOK.....OH HOMER....COME OVER........A PHOTO OF YOU.
TEE HEE!
HA! HA! HA!
IT REALLY ISN'T GOOD COMPARED TO WHAT I CAN USUALLY DO.
IT'S GREAT! GREAT! LOOK HOMER......WHO IS IT.........TAKE TWO GUESSES?
HM-MM! IS THIS SUPPOSED TO BE ME?
OH, HA, HA, HA! HE WAS SIMPLY FURIOUS! HA! HA!
I THOUGHT HE WAS GOING TO BITE MURILLO! OH, IT'S SUCH A REMARKABLE LIKENESS. HA, HA!
HE GOT SORE BECAUSE HE'S SIMPLY NARROW MINDED. NO SENSE OF HUMOR. NO.........
HOLD STILL GEORGE I'LL SKETCK YOU.
SHALL I HOLD MY HANDS THIS WAY OR.....?
STEADY OLD TOP.........HOLD YOUR HEAD UP A BIT. THAT'S IT. NOW HOLD THAT.
OH, THIS IS EVEN-BETTER THAN THE OTHER SKETCH.
REALLY DO YOU THINK SO?
I CAN ALWAYS DO BETTER WHEN THE MODEL HOLDS STILL. THAT ISN'T WHAT I'D REALLY CALL GOOD BUT—
OH, I THINK IT'S JUST AS FUNNY AS IT CAN BE. HA, HA, HA!
MY WORD, WHAT IS THIS BIG ROUND THING THAT LOOKS LIKE A TOMATO IN THE MIDDLE OF WHAT'S SUPPOSED TO BE MY FACE?
YOUR NOSE HUMPH!
MY WORD, WELL I MAY BE AWFUL DUMB BUT I SIMPLY CAN'T SEE THE LEAST BIT OF LIKENESS IN THIS THING. ABSOLUTELY
HAW HAW HAW!
I CAN'T SEE ANY RESEMBLANCE, EITHER.
LISTEN, FOLKS, WHY GET SORE OVER A BIT OF FUN. LET'S ALL BE BROADMINDED. LET'S......
HOLD STILL MURILLO. I'LL SKETCH YOU. STEADY! STEADY!
HA, HA! PERFECT! PERFECT!
HAW, HAW! THERE YOU ARE OLD TOP!
LISTEN BUNGLE, LET'S NOT CARRY THIS THING TOO FAR. THIS IS NOT ME.
WHY OF COURSE NOT! WELL MURILLO LET'S GET OUR THINGS ON OH, HA, HA! IT'S REALLY WONDERFUL. JUST LIKE MURILLO!
SUCH CRUST! GETTING SORE BECAUSE I FED HIM A DOSE OF HIS OWN POISON. WELL IF THEY THINK WE'RE WORRIED BECAUSE THEY LEFT WITHOUT SAYING GOODBYE THEY'RE SIMPLY...
OH, THEY'RE NOTHING! AND BOTH OF THEM HAVE SUCH PECULIAR IDEAS OF HUMOR. MY STARS THAT PICTURE HE DREW OF YOU DIDN'T RESEMBLE ANY HUMAN BEING I EVER SAW AND ....
WHY WHAT'S THAT NOISE IN THE HALL THAT STARTED WHEN YOU LET THOSE FOLKS OUT?
OH, THAT'S THE BABY NEXTDOOR WHO WAS WAITING IN THE HALL TO GIVE MURILLO A GOOD TRIMMING FOR DRAWING THAT FIRST SKETCH. AND IF MURILLO FIGHTS LIKE HE DRAWS HE'LL HAVE A LOT OF LOOSE TEETH TOMORROW!

GEE LOOK AT IT SNOW, DADDY, - IF THIS KEEPS UP WERE GOING TO HAVE A LOT OF SNOW, I'LL BET YOU
A LOT OF SNOW? THAT'S NOTHING - DID I EVER TELL YOU ABOUT THE TIME GRIZZLY IKE AND I WERE CAUGHT IN A TERRIBLE SNOW STORM?
- WE WERE OUT PROSPECTING, WHEN WITHOUT ANY WARNING A TERRIBLE BLIZZARD BLEW UP —
- IT SNOWED SO HARD, THAT WE FOUND IT IMPOSSIBLE TO GET BACK TO OUR SHACK SO WE TOOK REFUGE IN AN ABANDONED CABIN —
- WE MADE OURSELVES AS COMFORTABLE AS POSSIBLE AND WITH A ROARING FIRE, WE COOKED SOME OF THE FOOD WE HAD IN OUR PACKS - THE SNOW CONTINUED AND IN A COUPLE OF DAYS WE WERE OUT OF FOOD
- THERE WAS ONLY ONE PAIR OF SNOW-SHOES IN OUR OUTFIT SO I VOLUNTEERED TO MAKE THE TRIP TO THE NEAREST TOWN FOR PROVISIONS - I HAD TO CLIMB OUT OF THE TOP OF THE WINDOW - THE SNOW HAD DRIFTED UP AGAINST THE DOOR SO I COULDN'T OPEN IT.
- THE TRIP TOOK ME TWO DAYS AND WHEN I RETURNED WITH THE PROVISIONS, LO AND BEHOLD, THE SNOW HAD ENTIRELY COVERED UP THE CABIN AND I COULDN'T FIND IT —
- I KNEW JUST ABOUT THE LOCATION OF THE CABIN, SO, CUTTING OFF THE TOP OF A TALL PINE TREE, I MADE A POLE WITH WHICH I POKED AROUND IN THE SNOW UNTIL I LOCATED THE CHIMNEY —
- I DUG ENOUGH SNOW AWAY TO REACH THE CHIMNEY AND THEN I DROPPED DOWN INTO THE FIREPLACE —
- WELL, YOU CAN BET I WAS THE BEST SANTA CLAUS THAT EVER CAME THROUGH A CHIMNEY FOR GRIZZLY IKE - HE WAS NEARLY STARVED —
- AFTER A LITTLE REST I CLIMBED BACK UP THE CHIMNEY AND CLEANED AWAY ENOUGH SNOW SO OUR FIRE WOULD BURN FREELY AND SHOVELED THE SNOW AWAY FROM THE TOP OF THE WINDOW SO WE COULD GET MORE AIR - I MUST HAVE SHOVELED TONS OF SNOW THAT DAY
SAY! IF YOU DON'T GET THE SNOW OFF YOUR SIDEWALK I'LL HAVE TO ARREST YOU AND YOU'LL GET A SWELL FINE!
GEE, I NEVER GET A MINUTE'S REST - NOW I HAVE TO GO OUT AND SHOVEL SNOW - I'M GOING TO MOVE WHERE IT'S SUMMER ALL THE TIME.
YOU SHOULDN'T MIND A LITTLE SNOW LIKE THAT AFTER YOUR EXPERIENCE WITH GRIZZLY IKE - WHY, JUST TAKE JUNIOR'S BEAN BLOWER AND BLOW IT AWAY - IT'S NOTHING

AND THEN WHEN YOU SOCK HIM IN THE NOSE—DREAMLAND!
SO, THAT NIGHT
REMEMBER, BULL—THE ETHER'S IN YOUR RIGHT GLOVE. POKE HIM A COUPLA TIMES WITH YOUR LEFT, THEN LET HIM HAVE IT!
I'LL SOCK YOU SO HARD THEY'LL HAVE TO PRY YOUR NOSE OFF YOUR CHIN!
YOU TALK A GREAT FIGHT!

I WONDER IF IT HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THE MISTAKE I MADE TODAY—A BOY ASKED ME FOR SOME ETHER IN CAPSULES AND I GAVE HIM SPIRITS OF AMMONIA! I CAN'T UNDERSTAND HOW IT HAPPENED!
